WATCHED WOMAN KILL MRS. BAILEY

F. J. Farrell, Tramp, Testifies He Was in Yard at Time of Murder.

BROKE WINDOW AND SHOT

Slayer Was Tall and Wore Kimono and a Shawl, Says the New Witness.

MRS. CARMAN ASKS HEARING

And Waives Immunity—Compromise Indictment Charging Second Degree Murder Now Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEPORT, L. I., July 15.—Through the testimony of an eye-witness, the importance of whom District Attorney Smith had kept secret until today, the Grand Jury investigating the murder of Mrs. Lulu D. Bailey, who was shot in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman on the night of June 30, obtained the first account of the actual murder and a description of the woman who committed it.

The description of the woman tallied with that of Mrs. Carman as given by Celia Coleman, the negro maid of the Carmans, who testified yesterday that she had seen Mrs. Carman hurry into the kitchen from the rear yard just after the shooting. The Grand Jury is to conclude its consideration of the case at noon tomorrow.

Immediately after George M. Levy, the lawyer for Mrs. Carman, learned of this new testimony concerning the murder itself he filed with the District Attorney a petition in which Mrs. Carman begged to be allowed to appear before the Grand Jury to make a statement. In the petition Mrs. Carman waived immunity from prosecution for the crime with which she is charged.

In view of the damaging nature of the direct testimony adduced, the District Attorney was in doubt whether any testimony from Mrs. Carman was necessary, as well as whether under the law it was possible for Mrs. Carman to waive immunity in such a case. As a result it was uncertain tonight whether Mrs. Carman would be allowed to testify.

Mrs. Carman May be Heard.

The Carman lawyer, as well as Dr. Carman, expressed eagerness to have Mrs. Carman heard by the Grand Jury, counting on the impression she would make with the jurors as likely to outweigh any evidence that might have been adduced against her. For the same reasons, it was clear, the District Attorney was in doubt about the wisdom of allowing her to appear.

The settlement of the question rests with the Grand Jury itself, which alone can decide as to who shall and who shall not be called before it. If Mrs. Carman does appear she will be allowed merely to make a statement, not to testify as a witness. No question will be put to her by the District Attorney or by any juror.

As a result of the circumstantial dovetailing of the stories told by the maid yesterday, and by the eye witness today, it was learned this evening that the witness Elwood T. Bardes, who said he saw a woman walk away from the murder window toward the back of the house immediately after the shot was fired, would not be called before the Grand Jury. Bardes's character and credibility had been under constant fire by the Carman lawyer ever since he first testified at the Coroner's inquest. In view of the two more important witnesses the District Attorney feels that neither Bardes's testimony nor that of any other witness is needed to clinch his case.

The general opinion here tonight is that even if Mrs. Carman is not allowed to make her statement to the Grand Jury, and even if the jury hands down an indictment against her, it will be a compromise indictment, charging her not with murder in the first degree, but with second degree murder or first degree manslaughter.

Farrell's Testimony a Surprise.

The important testimony today was given by Frank J. Farrell, whose story District Attorney Smith had pretended to discount, and whose status he has described as "Farrell, alias Cullen, a tramp." Only after the man's testimony was on record was it made clear that the District Attorney's earlier discrediting of Farrell and the story he could tell was merely a part of Mr. Smith's steady scheme of masked batteries, whereby he planned to take unaware and surprise too late for action the Carman lawyer and all others who might be interested.

"Farrell's testimony before the Grand Jury was very material," was Mr. Smith's opinion today, and that was all he would say.

From another source it was learned that the following, in effect, was said to have been Farrell's story:

"I went to Freeport on the night of the murder to look for work. I walked along the Merrick Road until I reached this house, (the Carman house.) I was hungry. I did not go in the front way, but started to go to the rear door. I saw a light there.

"I was half-way down the yard when I saw a tall woman in a kimono, with a shawl about her shoulders. I was a bit firghtened. I saw this woman smash a window pane. I did not know whether she had a revolver or not at that time. I then heard a shot.

"What became of this woman afterward I do not know. I became frightened. I was a stranger in Freeport, and I figured that it would look bad for me if I were caught around a place where a shot was fired, so I went away.

"When I read in the paper about the murder I communicated with Sheriff Pettit and told him what I had seen that night. I did not know until I read about it in thenewspapers that the place was the home of Dr. Carman. I did know that it was in Freeport, and on the main street, where I had seen the shot fired."

Chief Witness Locked Up.

Immediately after Farrell had testified he was locked up in the Mineola Jail as a material witness, under bond of $1,000. Previously, whenever Farrell's name was mentioned to the District Attorney, Mr. Smith implied that liquor might have been present as well as hunger in his system at the time he told of being on the Carman lawn. All the time he was thus depreciating the importance of Farrell he was emphasizing the impor-

INVITES 'SWISS NAVY' HERE

Our Minister's Courtesy Embarrasses the Mountain Republic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Two incidents in the diplomatic career of Pleasant A. Stovall of Georgia, United States Minister to Switzerland, interested the Capitol today.

The first incident was his courteous presentation to the Swiss Foreign Office of an invitation for that country to participate in the naval display for the Panama Exposition. The other was the signing of an international convention for the preservation of natural scenery after he had been instructed specifically to attend the conversations on the subject in an informal capacity.

The Foreign Office of the mountain republic was amazed mildly at the invitation to the naval display, but assuming that the American Minister knew there was no such thing as a Swiss Navy, prepared to name a special envoy to represent Switzerland simply in his own personality. It would have forgotten the incident, but the State Department having learned of Mr. Stovall's invitation, directed him to withdraw it on the ground that it was intended only for maritime powers. Mr. Stovall did this in a formal letter.

After that a sort of international congress on natural scenery met in Berne. The United States was invited to participate, but Mr. Stovall was instructed to reply that as there was no appropriation for the purpose, participation was impossible. The American reply added, however, that the United States sympathized with the aims of the Congress, and that Mr. Stovall would attend the Congress informally.

Mr. Stovall did this, and all was well until the end of the session was near. Then, to the silent surprise of the other delegates, Mr. Stovall signed a general convention on behalf of the United States. The Swiss Government apparently expressed its appreciation of Mr. Stovall's action, only to get a hurried disclaimer from the United States, reminding Switzerland that Mr. Stovall himself had presented a reply which showed that he was unauthorized to sign anything.

The incident seems to rest there, with the American signature attached to a convention which was drafted entirely without the official cognizance of the United States.

BORDEN SON DISINHERITED.

Cut Off for Secret Marriage to Tailor's Daughter—Millions to Sons.

Matthew C. D. Borden, the cotton and print goods manufacturer, who died on May 27, 1912, left a net estate of $6,467,366, according to an amended appraisal report filed yesterday in the office of the Deputy State Controller. The amended report revealed that Dr. Matthew S. Borden, who incurred the displeasure of his father by his marriage to a tailor's daughter, would not share in the estate. Two weeks ago it was announced unofficially that Dr. Borden would not be disinherited.

Except a bequest of $250,000 to Yale University, Mr. Borden's estate will be divided between his two sons, Bertram H. Borden and Howard S. Borden. Each receives $1,036,227 absolutely, a life estate in $1,036,227 with power of appointment, and a life estate in the same amount while their disinherited brother remains married to his present wife.

Mr. Borden provided in his will for an equal distribution of the estate among his sons, but in a codicil he said:

"I have made the same provisions in my will for my son Matthew as for my other children, although he made an unfortunate marriage about a year ago without my consent or knowledge, and whereas I have upon reflection concluded not to leave the income or any portion of the principal of the share directed to be set apart for the benefit of my said son paid to him while he is married to the person who is at present his wife, whether under the marriage contract heretofore entered into or under future marriage contract in case the present marriage shall be for any reason dissolved, I hereby direct the Trustees named to apply rents, profits, and income of the share set apart for him to the benefit of his mother and brothers during the lifetime of my said son while he is married to the person who is at present his wife."

When a student at Yale Dr. Borden fell in love with a daughter of Julius Negbauer, a tailor. He secretly married her in 1893. He is now 39 years old. Dr. Borden's mother died about five years ago.

KILLED BY BORDEN AUTO.

Mounted Policeman Hit by Doctor's Car in Flushing.

Dr. Matthew S. Borden, disinherited son of the late M. C. D. Borden, living at 316 West Seventy-ninth Street, was driving his automobile through Flushing early yesterday when it knocked down Mounted Policeman John Mee of the Flushing Precinct and his horse. Mee and his mount were thrown with such force that the patrolman's skull was fractured and he died in the Flushing Hospital. The horse's leg was broken, and the animal had to be shot.

The collision occurred at Broadway and Fourteenth Street. Dr. Borden, with two companions, was driving more slowly than usual on account of a heavy fog, when the outlines of two mounted policemen appeared a few feet ahead. The doctor turned his car sharply to the side of the road and ran obliquely into an electric light pole that caused his automobile to rebound.

Mee's horse was struck when the machine rebounded, and the animal dropped on his side to the street, with the policeman still in the saddle. Mee's head struck the pavement heavily and his leg was crushed under the side of his mount. The horse, named "Commodore," one of the best trained mounts of the Flushing police, lay still. Mee was rushed to the Flushing Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Joseph Bloodgood.

With the hope of giving all possible medical aid to Mee, Dr. Borden hurried in his automobile to Manhattan for Dr. William Sharp, a specialist of 250 Riverside Drive, but the patient died just as they arrived at the hospital.

CROWN PRINCE BREAKS OUT.

Kaiser's Heir Writes Effusively, Praising Book That Predicts War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 15.—Another "Crown Prince incident" has arisen.

The future Kaiser has sent an effusive telegram to ex-Lieut. Col. Frobenius, the author of "The German Empire's Fateful Hour," saying that he has read the book with the greatest interest and wishes it to enjoy the widest circulation among the German nation.

The book fixes the Spring of 1915 as the date when the "Revenge of France" and the "Hate of Russia" will together reach a point when invasion by hordes of troops such as Europe has never before seen must be looked for any day.

"Then," it says, "the fateful hour for the German Empire and its allies will strike."

McREYNOLDS READY TO ACT

Friendly Receivership to Forestall Him and Untangle the Snarl is Discussed.

STOCK AT NEW LOW RECORD

Collapse in Wall Street Reflects Investors' Views of Road's Critical Status.

The Directors of the New Haven Railroad, at their meeting in this city today, will have matters of the greatest importance to consider. The most acute of these is the status of the threatened Government suit under the Sherman law.

This has been held in abeyance by the Department of Justice in view of the agreement reached by it with the New Haven and subsequently ratified by that company's stockholders, providing for a partial disintegration of the system, including the divorce of the Boston & Maine from the New Haven Railroad.

The bill passed by the Massachusetts Legislature permitting the New Haven to sell its Boston & Maine stock contained a provision that each certificate must bear a stipulation that the purchaser agreed to sell his shares to the State of Massachusetts at any time. The Directors of the New Haven took the ground in a public statement that this would make the stock unsalable on any fair basis and that it would be better for the New Haven to let the Sherman law prosecution proceed.

Attorney General McReynolds took the view that this was not sufficient ground for a failure to carry out the agreement and let it be known that the complaint in a Sherman law suit had been fully prepared and would be filed at once if the New Haven Directors persisted in the stand they had taken. He gave them until July 15 to file with the Department of Justice a report showing that they had taken all the steps agreed on, including the trusteeing of the Boston & Maine stock for the ultimate purpose of its sale. As their regular meeting was to be held today, another day was allowed for their decision, but it is understood that it must be made finally today.

No Change of Attitude.

The Directors, it was reported yesterday, had no intention of changing their attitude on this question, and the idea was advanced that the Department of Justice could be forestalled by the institution of a friendly receivership for the company, and that this might be discussed at today's meeting. Such a move, it was argued, would conserve the interests of all parties, and the Government, in the opinion of lawyers who discussed the matter, could not well bring suit against a company under the protection of the courts or against receivers appointed by the courts, while a receivership might also furnish the best means of a final untanglement of the whole New England transportation situation.

Another matter that will be before the meeting is the promulgation of a statement bearing on the matters contained in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission. While the commission's investigation was in progress Chairman Howard Elliott repeatedly refused to discuss any matters that had been brought up in the testimony, on the ground that it would be improper to do so until the report had been made.

Much preliminary work had already been done on the contemplated statement, and the New Haven Directors expected the report a week before it was made. The report will necessitate changes in the statement, and these will be threshed out by the Directors today. It is expected that the statement will be signed by James H. Hustis, President of the New Haven, who will preside at the meeting in the absence of Chairman Elliott, now on vacation.

The results of the meeting are also expected to develop whether or not there is any truth in the reports that have repeatedly cropped up since the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission were made public that the resignation of John L. Billard and perhaps of some other Directors against whom criticism was aimed would be forthcoming at the next meeting.

It has been a matter of frequent comment since Charles S. Mellen "was practically fired," as he expressed it in his testimony, that although the executive heads of the company have been changed, there has been no real reorganization, as most of the old-time Directors who have been held accountable for the acts denounced are still on the board. The present constitution of the board is as follows:

William Rockefeller, Charles F. Brooker, William Skinner, D. Newton Barney, Robert W. Taft, James S. Elton, James S. Hemingway, A. Heaton Robertson, Frederick F. Brewster, Henry K. McHarg, John L. Billard, George F. Baker, T. DeWitt Cuyler, Edward Milligan, Francis T. Maxwell, Samuel Rea, Morton F. Plant, John T. Pratt, Howard Elliott, W. Murray Crane, Arthur T. Hadley, James H. Hustis and James L. Richards.

Wall Street's concern over possible developments at today's meeting was reflected by heavy selling of New Haven stock, breaking it through 50 to a new low record at 49¼. It closed at 51¼, a net decline for the day of 4¼ points on transactions of 43,800 shares. Only a week ago the stock stood at 65½. The decline since Jan. 1 has been nearly

WHITMAN 'LETTER' A DRAFT BY DUELL

Roosevelt Says District Attorney Promised Really to Write It Later.

CALLS HIM A "WEAKLING"

In Long Statement He Says Duell, Representing Whitman, Begged for Indorsement.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, July 15.—Here is the so-called Whitman letter, given out tonight in a long statement by Col. Roosevelt, which the Progressives promised would be a deadly blow to the political aspirations of the District Attorney. Col. Roosevelt does not say that Mr. Whitman signed or drew up the letter, but says Charles H. Duell, Jr., promised that Whitman would sign the letter and that Duell had shown the draft of the letter to Whitman before Duell submitted it to Col. Roosevelt. The paper reads:

July 3, 1914

To the Executive Committee, Non-Partisan Whitman League, New York.

Gentlemen: In answer to your letter of July —, 1914, to the effect that in the newspapers of the State considerable misunderstanding has arisen on the ground I am Barnes's machine choice for Governor, I wish to say that any such statements are unequivocally false. You say that my silence has had the tendency to estop my friends from denying that I am opposed to boss rule. I regret this, of course, but notwithstanding any former misunderstanding, I have always meant to be perfectly clear on this point.

In order, therefore, that there may be no further doubt, and so that I may dispose once and for all of the absurd question that I am Barnes's choice for Governor, I will state that I am and always have been absolutely against him and all that he stands for in politics. There is no middle ground and in the coming fight this Fall each voter of the State is either for Mr. Barnes or against Mr. Barnes, for Mr. Murphy or against Mr. Murphy.

I am against Mr. Barnes and shall oppose Mr. Barnes; I am against Mr. Murphy and shall oppose Mr. Murphy—both of them, to the bitter end. Decent government in this State must be restored.

Let us make it even plainer. Ever since I have occupied the office of District Attorney, although I have been a Republican, Mr. Barnes has never either directly or indirectly, been the cause of any appointment made in my office. I have steadfastly conducted the office of District Attorney during my incumbency on a strict basis of non-partisanship. The merest investigation in this connection will bear out the truth of this statement.

I believe in the direct primary and prefer to carry my fight, win or lose, directly to the people themselves, and if Mr. Barnes is able to beat me in the primaries it merely means that the fight must be carried on with renewed vigor until the day finally comes when those who stand for decent citizenship and genuine popular government have swept away the last vestige of ring rule; in very fact the rule of such political parasites is the cause of the corruption which today dominates our entire State. Very truly yours,

C. S. W.

[This initialed signature is admitted at Oyster Bay not to be in Mr. Whitman's handwriting.]

In his statement Col. Roosevelt raked Mr. Whitman without restraint. Apparently, he said, the District Attorney was attempting to double-cross either the boss or the independents. He added that there was one statement by Whitman in the present controversy which could receive credence, and that was this assertion by the District Attorney: "I am a Whitman man from first to last."

Col. Roosevelt referred to Whitman's statement that he did not know of the Whitman Non-Partisan League as "sheer nonsense." He charged that Whitman was apparently "either a weakling or in league with Barnes."

The subject of obtaining Progressive support for Whitman was broached by Charles H. Duell, Jr., organizer of the Whitman Non-Partisan League after Col. Roosevelt's return from Brazil, according to the statement. Going further, the Colonel asserted that when he went to Washington to address the National Geographic Society Duell accompanied him and showed him a letter written by Mr. Whitman to Duell, in which the District Attorney sought the aid of the Progressives.

Not in Whitman's Handwriting.

Mr. Duell, said the Colonel, assured him that he had Mr. Whitman's authority to act in the matter. The rough draft of the letter, Col. Roosevelt said, was sent to him either on July 3 or 4 through his son, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., by Duell. This draft bears the initials, "C. S. W.," but the Progressives admit that the initials are not in the District Attorney's handwriting. To strengthen his charges, Col. Roosevelt said that several others had approached him as Whitman representatives.

Mr. Duell, it is understood, made every effort to hold Col. Roosevelt in check, but without success. He attempted to arrange an interview at Progressive National Headquarters this morning, but was put aside. Then he finally managed to get hold of Roosevelt in West Forty-fourth Street while the Colonel was on the way from headquarters to the pier of the New York Yacht Club. He soon found that his arguments were without effect.

Col. Roosevelt himself gave out the statement when he got here on George H. Childs's yacht, The Joyance, with George W. Perkins and Theodore Douglas Robinson, the State Chairman. He was in fine fighting trim and greeted the newspaper men heartily. His only other comment was that "I think the statement is reasonably explicit." Then he jumped into his son Archie's automobile and drove up the hill to his home.

Col. Roosevelt spent most of his time today getting up the statement in which he placed Mr. Whitman in the famous Ananias Club, and he did not get away from New York until after 6 o'clock, arriving here shortly after 9 o'clock tonight. He finished the statement on the way here after seeing Mr. Duell.

Col. Roosevelt's Statement.

Col. Roosevelt's statement is as follows:

"Shortly after my return from Brazil the latter part of May, Mr. Duell asked to see me on behalf of Mr. Whitman. Mr. Duell accordingly went down to Washington on the train with me when

MISS DODGE TO WED; FRIENDS SURPRISED

Hon. Mrs. Lionel Guest Announces Daughter's Engagement to W. T. Rosen.

DISAPPEARED IN LONDON

Granddaughter of Late John Bigelow Found in Lodging House Preparing to Begin Stage Career.

The Hon. Mrs. Lionel Guest announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lucy Bigelow Dodge, to Walter T. Rosen of New York. The wedding will take place early in August.

This announcement of Miss Dodge's engagement and approaching marriage, which was made last night in this city, will come as a surprise to her relatives and friends in New York. Her aunt., Miss Grace Bigelow of 21 Gramercy Park, said that she had not heard of the engagement and could not believe that it was true. Mr. Rosen, who lives at 64 West Fifty-second Street, was said to be visiting in Canada.

Miss Ddge, who is a granddaughter of the late John Bigelow, one-time Ambassador to France, and one of America's foremost diplomats and statesmen, was with her aunt at her country place at Highland Falls, N. Y., as late as two weeks ago, and she said nothing at that time, according to her aunt, about her engagement. Since that time she has been with her mother and stepfather at their villa at St. Anne de Bellevue, in the St. Lawrence River.

A year ago last April Miss Dodge came into considerable publicity when she disappeared from her mother's home in London, England, and was found later in a rooming house in Shaftesbury Avenue, in the heart of the theatrical district, where, under an assumed name, she was making plans to embark upon a stage career. It was said later that Miss Dodge, prior to returning to the Bigelow home in New York, gave as her real reason for disappearing, that her mother wished her to be married to an English society man; that she considered herself an American girl and, therefore, refused to obey.

Confirmation of the engagement was made through Felix Rosen, a brother of Mr. Rosen, who said that it was authorized by Mrs. Guest. Mr. Rosen lives with his brother at 64 West Fifty-second Street.

Miss Bigelow had just returned to her house in Gramercy Park from the country when she was told of the engagement. "I am sure there must be a mistake," said Miss Bigelow. "My niece was with me only two weeks ago, and I am sure that if she had been contemplating such a step at that time she would have told me. I do not know Mr. Rosen. If he is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Guest at their place in Canada, the report probably emanated from there, but I can hardly believe it."

Mr. Rosen is a member of the firm of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. He is a graduate of Harvard, class of '94, and is considerably older than Miss Dodge, who is 23. He belongs to many clubs, including the Metropolitan, City, Automobile, Lotos, City Midday, and Aero.

Miss Dodge's disappearance from her mother's home was explained by one of her friends when she arrived in New York several weeks after she was found in London, who declared that Miss Dodge had simply wanted to earn her own living instead of leading an idle life. For two years, this friend went on to say, she had been stenographer and secretary to her grandfather and really left her mother's home to get a position of a similar nature in London. There had never been any question of marriage involved, she said.

Miss Dodge was born in New York and made her London début at her mother's house. She has been very popular in society at home and abroad. Her father is Charles Stuart Dodge, from whom her mother was divorced in 1903 at Sioux Falls. Mrs. Dodge, after her divorce, married the Hon. Lionel Guest, brother of Lord Ashby St. Ledgers. Mrs. Guest is a sister of Poultney Bigelow, the author, and the sister of Miss Grace Bigelow and Mrs. Butler K. Harding.

THREE MISSING, BOAT FOUND

Youth and Two Girls Believed to Have Drowned at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 15.—An overturned boat, a boy's hat and a pair of oars found this afternoon furnished a clue to a tragedy which is believed to have cost three lives. The last occupants of the boat, Arthur Finney, 16, of Schenectady, and Ethel and Charlotte Heimburg of 23 Second Street, Troy, have been missing since last night from the Summer hotel where they stayed. The lake is being dragged for their bodies.

The party left the east side of the lake early last night intending to row to a park a mile away. It is thought that they attempted to change seats in the darkness and thus upset the boat.

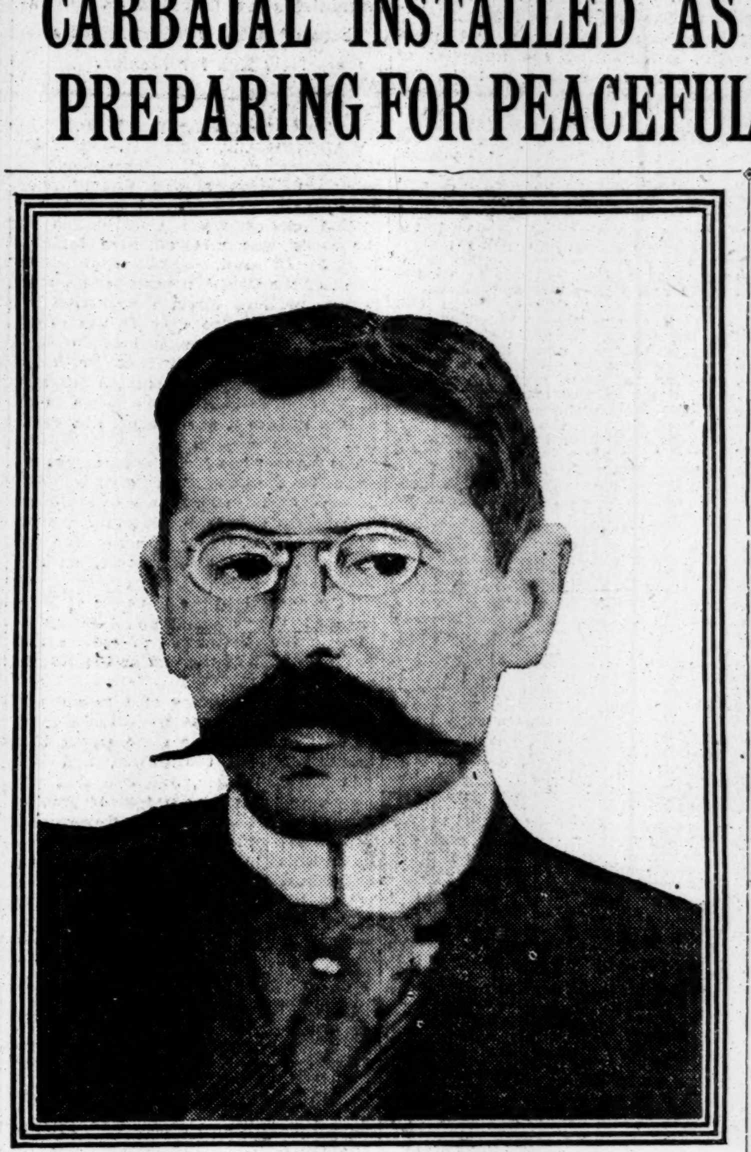
VANCOUVER, B. C., July 15.—The British Columbia Labor Convention decided today to call a general strike of labor forces in British Columbia because of conditions which have arisen out of the miners' strike on Vancouver Island. A referendum vote of the unions is necessary before any actual strike can be made effective. This defers a strike at least six weeks.

D'Annunzio Has a Relapse.

PARIS, July 15.—Gabriel d'Annunzio, the Italian poet, who has been slowly recovering from a serious illness, dating from last April, has suffered a relapse. His condition, it is said, requires the greatest precaution.

HUERTA RESIGNS, QUITS MEXICO CITY; CARBAJAL INSTALLED AS PRESIDENT; PREPARING FOR PEACEFUL REBEL ENTRY



Francisco Carbajal,

The New Provisional President of Mexico.

VILLA EXPECTS HUERTA TO FIGHT

IS ANXIOUS TO MEET HIM

Foe Not a Coward, He Admits—Thinks Final Stand Will Be at Queretaro.

Special to The New York Times.

JUAREZ, July 15.—Gen. Villa expects to meet Gen. Huerta in the last battle of the revolution. Villa arrived here this morning from Chihuahua with his staff and was in his office when the announcement was made that Huerta had resigned. He took it as if it had been the routine report of some official. His only comment was "Bueno," which indicated as much enthusiasm as Villa ever puts into anything but his fighting.

"Huerta's resignation at this time can mean but one thing," he said. "Huerta intends to take the field. Queretaro will be the final stand of the Federal troops, and Huerta will be leading the forlorn hope. I hate the man, but he is no coward, and I expect to lead my troops in person against his. This is as I would wish it, for I hate to think of him leaving the country with all the money he has stolen while he deserts his army and his friends.

"Huerta evidently thinks that he can defeat the revolutionary forces in the field and will be able to re-establish his waning power by force of arms. For this reason there must be no delay, and the war must be carried out to the bitter end in order to eliminate Huerta and the last trace of the old Cientifico crowd, for which he is fighting. He evidently expects to leave Carbajal in charge in Mexico City while he takes the field in an effort to retrieve his lost power; but he will find a force of determined men opposing him which he cannot resist.

"The sending of his family away at this time indicates that he intends to take the field against our victorious army. I have information that all of the siege guns and field artillery of the Federal Army are being concentrated at Queretaro, and there will be fought the great battle of the revolution. I expect to lead that fight in person for my men, and, of course, we shall win.

"Carbajal is impossible of acceptance by the Constitutionalist Party. He is a Cientifico, a Diazista, and has been appointed by Huerta. That is enough. But I do not believe he will serve long, for our troops will be in Mexico City before he has had time to complete his Cabinet. I have been informed by my confidential agents in Mexico City that he has already asked Gen. Candido Aguilar, the Constitutionalist commander in the State of Vera Cruz, to be ready to go to Mexico City at once to quell disturbances and to preserve order before the Zapatistas and the forces of De la O come from Morelos and other States. The revolution is all but over, and the victory of Constitutionalist Government will be made complete when we overthrow Huerta and his party at Queretaro."

The Carranzista faction is even more optimistic about the immediate future than Villa is. They say that the appointment of Carbajal, following Huerta's resignation, means that the machinery of Government is to be turned over to the Constitutionalists, and that Carranza will be provisional President before the end of the week.

Francisco Carbajal is well known here on the border, as he conducted the peace negotiations for Diaz in April, 1911. He is considered a Cientifico in sympathy, and the Constitutionalists agree that he will not be satisfactory to them or to their party.

CAFE CROWD CHEERS HUERTA.

He Drinks to the New President as His Last Toast.

MEXICO CITY, July 15.—It was reported tonight that Gen. Huerta was preparing to leave for Europe. A little after 8 o'clock, accompanied by a few friends, the ex-President entered the French café which he has been in the habit of visiting several times daily for the past year or more and took his usual place near the entrance.

An immense crowd followed him to the café, shouting "Vivas" for him. Many shook him by the hand, while others embraced him, and several kissed him on the cheek.

The stern old soldier was overcome, and tears filled his eyes. He raised his glass and said: "This will be my last toast in my favorite resort, and I drink to the new President of Mexico."

In view of possible disturbances as a result of the change of Government, placards are being posted on the walls along the main streets signed by Eduardo Iturbide, Governor of the Federal District, calling upon the people not to hold demonstrations, to preserve the peace, and to act as becomes a cultured nation. The proclamation says that the Governor will suppress disorder at any cost.

CRUISERS READY FOR HUERTA.

German Dresden and British Bristol May Offer Him Asylum.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, July 15.—The German cruiser Dresden cleared this evening for Puerto Mexico. She is thought to have gone to take Huerta and his family on board.

The British cruiser Bristol also departed, presumably for the same destination, on receipt of the report that Gen. Huerta had resigned.

By The Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, July 15.—The Mexicans of Vera Cruz received the news of Huerta's resignation without any show of excitement tonight.

El Dictamen, a Constitutionalist daily, issued a sheet containing the announcement of the resignation, which was given away on the streets. The paper asserted that the new President would turn the Government over to the Constitutionalists unconditionally, and that the officials of the Huerta Administration were flying in panic from the capital.

Military officials here say they would not be surprised if railway traffic between Vera Cruz and the capital should be interrupted temporarily in the confusion which will probably follow the collapse of the Huerta cause. They say many Federal Army officers will feel that it is not safe to remain at their posts and await the coming of the Constitutionalists and the result will be demoralization of the force now operating the railways.

It is thought that the next day or two may see many Mexican officers seeking safety within the American lines. It is even possible that virtually the whole Federal force near Vera Cruz may offer to surrender to the Americans rather than join the Constitutionalist cause.

Trains with the members of the families of Huerta and Blanquet are proceeding to Puerto Mexico. Advices received here report that they passed Cordoba at 2 o'clock this afternoon, taking the Vera Cruz-Isthmus Railway.

The Dutch cruiser Kortenaer, which for several days had been in dock here, left at 10 o'clock this morning. Her destination was said to be Puerto Mexico. The belief that Gen. Huerta and his friends intended to board the Dutch warship was strengthened by the fact that her Captain went to the capital soon after his arrival, and that the cruiser sailed without him.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Rear Admiral Badger reported to the Navy Department tonight that reports reaching Vera Cruz said that Gen. Huerta and Gen. Blanquet would "leave Mexico City by train under escort." There was no mention of destination, but officials here think the retired dictator will go to Puerto Mexico to board a foreign man of war for Europe.

Admiral Badger also announced that the British cruisers Hermione and Bristol sailed for Puerto Mexico tonight. Earlier in the day the Dutch cruiser Kortenaer, whose commander went to Mexico City several days ago, started for the same port.

HOPES HIGH IN WASHINGTON

Administration Thinks New Executive May Decide to Resist No Longer.

REBELS WON'T COMPROMISE

But Are Willing to Give Carbajal Guarantees to Protect Mexicans and Foreigners.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 15.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta, Provisional President of Mexico since a few days before the assassination of President Madero on Feb. 22, 1913, presented his resignation at a session of the Deputies, which met at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The resignation was accepted, and at 7:20 P. M. Francisco Carbajal, the recently appointed Minister of Foreign Relations, took the oath as Provisional President of the republic. He was immediately escorted to the palace by the Presidential Guards amid the cheers of the crowds.

Soon after the resignation was presented it was reported that Gen. Huerta, Gen. Blanquet and the former Ministers of Public Instruction and Communications and other officials and friends of the former Administration had departed in automobiles for Los Reyes station of the Inter-Oceanic Railway, about sixteen miles from the city, where they boarded a special train which carried an escort of troops. But Gen. Huerta was seen in the streets by reporters betwen 8 and 9 P. M. After that no trace of him could be found. At midnight it was stated positively that Gen. Huerta and Gen. Blanquet had left the capital and boarded a train on the Mexican Railway a few miles beyond the city. It is believed their destination is Puerto Mexico.

Go to Make Overtures to Rebels.

The news of Huerta's resignation had hardly become known when Jesus Urueta, Enrique Bordes Mangel and José Ines Novelo, all prominent Maderista Deputies who had been hiding in this city for some months past, engaged a special train to depart tonight for Celaya, where they will confer with the revolutionists and arrange with them for their pacific entry into this capital. Novelo is a relative of the late Vice President, Pino Suarez.

Gen. Huerta was Provisional President one year and a day or two short of five months. It would be a great error to suppose that he has not a strong and even enthusiastic following; and this fact is likely to become more and more apparent as time passes. Its influence may be more negative than positive, but it is likely to represent a force in Mexican national politics, which Huerta's adversaries will be made aware of. Consequently it is too much to expect Huerta's withdrawal to settle the Mexican problem.

The Deputies were called to order at 4:45 P. M., with Deputy Manuel Mercado in the chair. There was little in the aspect of the Chamber to indicate that any topic of unusual interest was coming up for discussion. During the half hour preceding the opening of the session the Deputies chatted in groups and gave no evidence of excitement.

The diplomatic gallery was well filled, the Ministers of Germany, Austria, Russia, and Great Britain being in the front row. The galleries open to the public were crowded, but the gathering was orderly.

Secretary Guasque read the text of Gen. Huerta's resignation, which was received with cries of "Viva Huerta!" The document was then referred to a committee, and the Deputies remained in the Chamber to await the committee's report.

The Chamber was again called to order at 5:30 o'clock, when Secretary Guasque read the committee's report, which proposed that Gen. Huerta's resignation be accepted, and that as a constitutional consequence Francisco Carbajal, as chief of the Cabinet, be summoned to take the oath of office as Provisional President.

The question was put to a vote, and the report as a whole was adopted, 121 votes being cast in its favor and 17 against it.

The ceremony in the Chamber of Deputies was scarcely completed when the city recovered practically its normal aspect. There is animation in the streets, but no disorder. If this forecasts the attitude of the people of Mexico, it may be said that seldom has there been effected a transfer of power with less popular effervescence and fewer manifestations of lawlessness. It is sincerely hoped that nothing will occur during the entry of the rebels that will be at variance with this spirit of order and respect for the persons and properties of all.

Orators Denounce Americans.

Although the ceremony in the Chamber of Deputies developed no unusual incidents, several orators opposed the acceptance of President Huerta's resignation, and spoke with great vehemence. Francesco Pascual Garcia of the Catholic Party was the chief of these. He said he was not a Huertista, but he maintained that Gen. Huerta's resignation ought on no account to be accepted, because its acceptance meant that Mexicans were entering into a compact with their sworn enemies of the North, and Huerta was the only man capable of saving Mexican nationality and autonomy.

Señor Garcia saw that if it was necessary to succumb it was better to do so with the country than to enter into dishonorable compositions. He saw that the Mexicans had lost all notions of patriotism and had even forgotten the honor and love due to God. The Mexicans of today, he said, cared only for material things, and therefore they had degenerated.

More violent still was the speech of Deputy Manuel Muzquiz Bianco, who spoke of the Americans as "blond beasts," and denounced "the Wall Street thieves" and "political banditti" of the White House, who wished to rob Mexico as they had robbed Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Panama, and other nations of this continent.

The audience gave signs of disapproval of these tirades. Deputy Alfonso Teja Zabre deprecated pessimism. He said that Mexico was a young country with superabundant energy and would soon recover from her afflicted condition and become strong and happy through peace. He denied that any compact had been entered into with the United States through the resignation of Gen. Huerta.

Señor Teja Zabre was applauded, particularly when he said it would not be patriotic to place any new difficulties, in these critical moments, in the way of Mexico's complete pacification, and, therefore, Gen. Huerta's resignation ought to be accepted.

Carbajal Makes a Good Impression.

Señor Carbajal, as he entered the Chamber of Deputies to take the oath of office, bowed with easy grace right and left. His slight, rather delicate frame might have suggested doubts of his ability to carry the burden of administration in these trying times, but his lithe, quick movements, his calm self-possession and the impress of character in his features served to reassure the onlooker.

He went through the ceremony without flurry, and with simple, unpretentious dignity which produced a most favorable impression.

If the scene inside the chamber was simple, that which followed when President Carbajal departed was impressive. In the portico the men of the Fifth Infantry were drawn up, presenting arms and rendering military honors to the civilian President. The regimental buglers played the fanfare reserved for ceremonies which the Supreme Executive attends, while the band rendered the martial strains of the Mexican national hymn.

President Carbajal, with a light, brisk step, passed between the lines of soldiers, saluting the regimental colors which were held aloft. The new President then entered an open carriage and drove to the National Palace.

There was a crowd in the streets behind the lines of troops outside the Chamber, and it cheered him, and though isolated "Muertas" ("Death") were shouted against this or that person, they found no seconders. In a general way it may be said that no one was insulted, and no one molested.

Gen. Huerta called on the President at the National Palace, but found that he was no longer there. He left word with an aide that he had called to pay his respects to the President, and regretted not having seen him.

No Cabinet appointments were made known tonight, but it is regarded as practically certain that Fernando Duret will be Minister of Foreign Relations. Antenor Sala, the author of various brochures on agrarian reform, is mentioned as a candidate for the portfolio of Agriculture. Gustavo Salas is spoken of for the War portfolio, and Gamboa and Calero are also being canvassed for Cabinet posts.

Many people consider that it would have been better if Gen. Huerta in his letter of resignation had confined himself strictly to the subject in hand, instead of having a fling at the United States and President Wilson. It is said that this would have been a more dignified course.

At 11 o'clock to-night the streets of the capital were almost deserted, and complete tranquillity prevailed.

HUERTA ARRAIGNS WILSON.

Letter of Resignation Calls Him a Puritan and Attacks His Policy.

MEXICO CITY, July 15.—President Huerta's resignation was submitted through the Department of Foreign Relations. The text was as follows:

"Deputies and Senators: Public necessity, admitted by the Chamber of Deputies, by the Senate, and the Supreme Court, called me to the supreme Magistracy of the republic. Later, when in this same hall I had the honor of addressing you in compliance with the Constitutional precept, I promised at all costs to bring about peace.

"Seventeen months have passed, and in that brief period of time I have formed an army with which to carry out that solemn promise. You all know the immense difficulties which my Government has encountered, owing to a scarcity of funds, as well as to the manifest and decided protection which a great power of this continent has afforded to the rebels—so much so that when the revolution had been broken up, seeing that its chief leaders were and continued to be divided, the power in question sought a pretext to intervene directly in the conflict, and the result of this was the outrage committed at Vera Cruz by the American fleet.

"Success was had, as you know, in adjusting honorably through our delegates at Niagara Falls the petty Tampico incident; but the revolution continued, with the support of whom we all know.

"Yet after the highly patriotic work achieved by our delegates at Niagara Falls, there are still some who say that I, come what may, seek my personal interest and not that of the republic. And as I need to rebut this allegation with facts, I tender my formal resignation of the Presidency of the republic.

"The national Congress must know that the republic, through its Government, has labored in entire good faith and with the greatest energy, having succeeded in doing away with the party which in the United States calls itself Democratic and having shown how the right should be defended.

"To be more explicit, I will say that the action of the Government of the republic during its short life has dealt death blows to an unjust power. Later on stronger workers will come, using implements that undoubtedly will end that power which has done so much harm and committed so many outrages on this continent.

"In conclusion, I will say that I abandon the Presidency of the republic, carrying with me the highest sum of human wealth, for I declare that I have arraigned at the bar of universal conscience the honor of a Puritan, whom I, as a gentleman, challenge to wrest from me that possession.

"May God bless you and me!"

The Congress passed the following:

Article 1—We accept the resignation presented by General Victoriano Huerta as President of the Mexican United States.

Article 2—We call licentiate Francisco Carbajal, Minister of Foreign Relations, to assume the Presidency.

CARBAJAL LONG A LEADER.

High in the Esteem of Diaz, de la Barra and Huerta.

Francisco Carbajal, who becomes Provisional President to succeed Gen. Victoriano Huerta, despite the fact that he is only 48 years old has been for many years considered one of the leading lawyers of Mexico. He is a warm personal friend, and by many considered a protégé of Francisco Leon de la Barra, who as Foreign Minister in the last Cabinet of Gen. Porfirio Diaz succeeded that old warrior statesman in the Presidency of Mexico. De la Barra, however, succeeded to the Provisional Presidency with the full consent and approval of the revolutionists, whereas it is not at all certain that the ascendancy of Carbajal will be approved by Carranza, Villa, and the other leaders of the revolution.

So far at least as Mexico City is concerned, Carbajal is now the ad interim President of Mexico, and as such his personality becomes interesting. To begin with, he is of the Mexican aristocracy. There is nothing of the bellicose about him. He is gentle-mannered and gentle-spoken. He is highly educated. He is a white and not a black Mexican in that he is of almost pure Castilian origin. Carbajal practically was unknown outside of Mexico prior to the Spring of 1911. He had been for a few years prior to April of that year a Justice of the Mexican Supreme Court, an office which he owed to the friendship of Porfirio Diaz, who previously had shown his friendship for him when for a brief time he sent him to Costa Rica as the Mexican Minister.

When, in the Spring of 1911, the fall of the Diaz régime was admitted even in Mexico City to be a matter of only a few weeks, it became necessary for the Diaz Government to treat with Francisco Y. Madero, whose irregular and ragged troops were then sweeping triumphantly over the entire northern part of the republic. Madero, just as Carranza and Villa have recently done, had announced his intention of continuing his victorious campaign to the very gates of the capital, and it was to prevent that humiliating end to his long-continued dictatorship that Diaz consented, on the advice of his best friends, to attempt to make terms with Madero. Madero's army was then encamped outside Juarez, the adobe city opposite El Paso, and was threatening daily to storm that most important of the Mexican border towns.

So it was that on April 28, 1911, President Diaz announced that he had appointed as a Peace Commissioner to treat with Madero Justice Francisco Carbajal of the Mexican Supreme Court. He notified Madero of Carbajal's appointment and the victorious rebel chieftain named Francisco Madero, Sr., his aged father; José Pino Suarez, who was to be his Vice President, and was to be his companion in death a year later, and Dr. Vasquez Gomez as the revolutionary representatives to discuss terms of peace with Carbajal.

On May 2, 1911, Carbajal arrived in El Paso, and the next morning he met the Madero Commissioners. The meeting place was under a cottonwood tree at the foot of a barren hill on the outskirts of Juarez, near the Rio Grande. Madero was present, and at the end of the conference it was announced that peace was in sight. Matters did not progress satisfactorily, however, and on May 6 Madero announced that the armistice with Diaz was terminated, and two days later the battle of Juarez was fought, and the city fell into the hands of the rebels. The taking of Juarez broke the backbone of the Diaz Government, and on May 15 peace negotiations were resumed.

Carbajal this time treated direct with Madero and six days later, at 10:35 P. M., May 21, the peace agreement that ended the Madero revolution sent Diaz into exile, and subsequently elevated Madero to the Presidency, was signed by Carbajal as the representative of Diaz, and by Madero as the head of the revolution.

By this agreement de la Barra became provisional President, and one of his first acts was the appointment of Carbajal as the Assistant Minister of Foreign Affairs. Madero did not approve of the appointment, however, and Carbajal's tenure of office was brief. In the same election that made Madero President, Carbajal was re-elected a Justice of the Supreme Court, a post he held at the time of the Madero assassination.

When Huerta was made Provisional President following the killing of Madero, Carbajal was one of the keen lawyers to whom he looked for expert advice. Huerta showered honors on Justice Carbajal. First he sent him to London as Mexican Ambassador but soon recalled him, and when Carbajal arrived home he named him Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. In January of last year it was said he for a time considered the advisability of sending Carbajal to Washington as an emissary to the Government of the United States. This plan, however, was abandoned and Carbajal remained in Mexico City as the Chief Justice of the highest court.

The name of Carbajal was, in November last, first mentioned as the probable successor of Huerta. At that time Huerta promptly denied the accuracy of the report and when Secretary of State Bryan was asked about the rumor he replied that he had never before heard of Justice Carbajal.

JOY IN WASHINGTON OVER RESIGNATION

Carbajal Expected to Turn the Government Over to Carranza Soon.

MAY BE NO MORE FIGHTING

Administration Officials and Members of Rebel Junta Predict a New Era for Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Naturally the resignation of Gen. Huerta caused great jubilation among Constitutionalists junta members and in Administration circles when confirmation of the news was received here tonight. Rafael Zubaran, chief confidential agent of the Constitutionalists in Washington, received direct information tonight from Mexico City to the effect that Gen. Huerta resigned at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and that Francisco Carbajal, the newly appointed Minister of Foreign Relations, was sworn in as Acting President at 6 o'clock this evening.

The manner in which the news was received by the Constitutionalists was evidenced by a statement made to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent tonight by Charles A. Douglas, attorney for the Constitutionalist agency here, as follows:

"I congratulate the Republic of Mexico and the Washington Administration on the elimination of Huerta and the beginning of the end of the Huerta régime.

"It is the beginning of a new era in Mexico, for it means the establishment of a free and stable Government that originated with the people, and was won by the people, and one that will be sustained by the people of Mexico. I predict that with such a Government revolutions in Mexico will end."

Confirmation of the report of the retirement of Huerta was received by Secretary Bryan tonight, but he made no announcement. When news bulletins of today's events in the Mexican capital were read to Secretary Bryan he said he had no comment to offer and would make no announcements before tomorrow morning.

Washington is now awaiting the announcement by President Carbajal of his attitude toward the Constitutionalist movement in Mexico. Whether more battles will be fought between the Constitutionalists and the Federals, so the representatives of the Constitutionalists here assert, will depend upon whether Carbajal intends to offer further resistance or is willing to surrender the government to the Constitutionalists upon proper guarantees from the latter as to the protection of the lives and property of Mexicans and foreigners.

Hope Carbajal Will Not Fight.

The Wilson Administration is hoping that Carbajal will indicate promptly his decision not to offer further resistance to the Constitutionalists. The Constitutionalist agents in Washington assert their belief that he has merely taken over the executive power to hold it until the Constitutionalists relieve him of it, and that there will probably be no more fighting.

"If the situation develops in that way," one of the Constitutionalist leaders said tonight, "all of the things needed to be done to work a devolution, or transfer, of the control of the Government from the Huerta régime to the Constitutionalists will be done in Mexico, on Mexican soil, by Mexicans themselves. There is now no reason or wisdom in having such a transfer made through agents, even through the agency of mediators, 5,000 miles away, when the principals are so close together in Mexico. There is no reason for anybody believing that the Constitutionalists would not accept the Government from Carbajal. They could not accept it from Huerta, whom they regarded as a usurper; but they are willing to take over the control of the executive power from the hands of Carbajal. If Señor Carbajal wishes to prevent further bloodshed, he will immediately issue an address in which he will state his position, and say that he will not offer further opposition to the approach of the Constitutionalists.

Rebels Will Not Compromise.

"If," said this Constitutionalist, "there is further bloodshed, it will be because Carbajal elects to continue resistence to the advance of the Constitutionalists. In that event there would be just one more big battle, and Carbajal would be swept aside. The Constitutionalists have no doubt whatever of their ability to wipe out the remnants of the Federal army and to take the Mexican capital. They believe they have won a complete triumph on the battlefield, and that there is no reason for further bloodshed. They will not compromise. They insist upon complete surrender. They are willing to guarantee the protection of life and property in the Mexican capital."

Constitutionalist agents here say that their policy for the next few days will be one of "watchful waiting" to ascertain whether Carbajal intends to oppose their advance on the Mexican capital, and to afford him time to announce his position.

Fears of a Military Government.

The Wilson Administration is extremely anxious to have the Constitutionalists establish a provisional Government under civil control, and not a military Government, when they take possession of Mexico City. The attitude of the Constitutionalists is not encouraging to the Administration's desire. The fear expressed here is that if a purely military Government is put in power by the victorious revolutionists excesses will be committed and counter-revolutions may be started which will throw Mexico into the turmoil of civil war again. The Constitutionalists maintain that a military Government is necessary to insure peace until a Constitutional Government can be established.

But, in spite of this attitude, the Administration and the nations which participated in the mediation movement will not abandon their efforts to persuade the victors that permanent peace can best be assured by establishing a civil government without delay. No definite decision as to the character of the Government to be established will be reached, however, until after the Constitutionalist leaders have gathered in the capital. They are bound at present by the plan of Guadalupe, but it was said tonight that this compact had been modified after Carranza, Villa, Obregon, Gonzales, and Natera had discussed the situation.

One great fear expressed in Washington is that when the Constitutionalists get into Mexico City they may undertake wholesale executions of Huerta sympathizers that will horrify the great nations of the world. Doubt is expressed if these nations would accord recognition to any Government which entered on a policy of vengeance of that character.

It is believed also that the Government of the United States would be inclined to withhold its recognition, and in this lies the great danger that may confront the Constitutionalist administration. Under the terms of the protocols signed at the Niagara Falls conference the Governments of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, and Chile are pledged to recognize immediately any Provisional Government established in accordance with the plan of pacification outlined under the guidance of the mediators.

It was thought that this provision would serve as an inducement to the Constitutionalists to accept the Provisional Government idea suggested by the Niagara Falls conferees. Even now it is probable that the recognition of these countries would be given to a provisional Government established in the City of Mexico if the Constitutionalists agreed among themselves on a Government that would be acceptable to the other Mexican factions.

REBEL GARRISON WIPED OUT.

Federal Filibusters Capture Palomas—May Be a Counter-Revolution.

COLUMBUS, N. M., July 15.—The annihilation today of the Constitutionalist garrison at Palomas, Chihuahua, by Federal troops broke the peace of Northern Mexico and revived reports of counter revolutions in the republic. Three hundred guerrillas under Gen. Gomez attacked the little border town in view of the troops of the United States Army on the border patrol. Every man of the village garrison was killed, it is reported.

Thirty men under Capt. Topete fought desperately from adobe houses in the town. All were overpowered within a few minutes, except seven men who kept up a fire for several hours later. It is believed that these seven were executed.

Gomez announced today that he would leave during the night, and it is believed that he will make no attempt to hold the town against troops from Juarez or Casas Grandes. It was learned that 200 men from the Pearson garrison, almost directly south, had been sent by Gen. Villa to retake the place.

Roque Gomez was second in command under Gen. Ynez Salazar when that Federal commander of former anti-Madero rebels took Palomas in November, 1912. His men are Chihuahua ranchmen who have been in arms since the Madero revolution of 1910. Recently they have been terrorizing the Casas Grandes district.

EL PASO, Texas, July 15.—The massacre of the Constitutionalist garrison at Palomas is taken here as an indication of renewed activity of the Federal irregular troops in Chihuahua State, which heretofore have confined their activities to the interior. There are many rumors here about filibustering expeditions to be set on foot in anticipation of a counter revolution after the fall of the Huerta central Government.

LONG FIGHT TO OUST HUERTA.

His Regime Doomed When Wilson Refused to Recognize Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The persistent effort of the Wilson Administration to compel Victoriano Huerta to retire from the office of Provisional President of Mexico began almost coincidentally with the incoming of that Administration in March, 1913. But no definite move to bring the pressure of the United States Government to bear in order to accomplish the object that President Wilson had in mind was made until John Lind, former Governor of Minnesota, was sent to Mexico in August of that year as the special confidential advisor of Mr. Wilson.

From the very outset of their incumbency in Federal office, President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had been dissatisfied with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador in Mexico City, who had held over from the Taft Administration. The Ambassador believed that the fundamental principle of any scheme to restore peace and order in Mexico was the recognition of the Huerta Government. But the President and Secretary of State were unalterably opposed to any such action. They regarded Huerta as one of those involved in the tragic death of Francisco I. Madero, who had been elected President of the Republic in accordance with constitutional forms.

Huerta took oath as Provisional President of Mexico on Feb. 19, 1913. The republic was immediately plunged into civil war again. The Sonora State Congress officially repudiated the provisional Government. Zapata, revolutionary leader to the south of the capital, after negotiating a few days with the new régime, went back to his guerrilla campaign. Salazar, one of the highest Generals in the army, denounced Huerta. Carranza, Constitutionalist leader in Chihuahua, assailed him in a bitter statement made public at San Antonio. Francisco Villa joined the ranks of the northern army. Pascual Orozco of the clan of northern revolutionaries, was the lone notable figure among the disaffected who declared for the new Government.

Further hampered at the outset of his Administration by the refusal of the United States to recognize him, Huerta soon faced growing difficulties in raising funds to run his Government. His uneasy hold upon affairs was weakened by minor Constitutionalist victories in the north and by recurring rumors of a break with Felix Diaz, nephew of Porfirio Diaz, and Huerta's ally in the overthrow of Madero.

On May 1, 1913, Huerta announced that he would urge Congress to call elections in October to pick his successor. The Congress selected Oct. 26 as the date of the election, and a decree to that effect was issued by Huerta on June 3.

Felix Diaz, who had announced himself as a candidate for the Presidency, was sent to Japan on July 17.

Huerta was attacked in the Senate on Oct. 5 by Senator Dominguez, who had the hardihood to speak what was in the minds of himself and some of his colleagues. Dominguez disappeared. The Chamber of Deputies adopted a resolution calling for an investigation. To this Huerta's reply was dramatic and swift. He marched a column of troops to the Chamber, seized 110 of the Deputies, and threw them into prison. Next he dissolved Congress and took to himself the legislative authority, calling for the election of new members on Oct. 26. Through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Chargé d'Affaires, who was left in charge of American interests after Mr. Wilson's departure, the United States made representations against violence to the imprisoned Deputies. In the election campaign certain influences close to the dictator worked for his return to the Presidency, with Gen. Blanquet as his running mate, and lent color to the persistent report that Huerta really desired to be elected and that his pretenses to the contrary were a sham.

When it became certain that the elections had resulted in no constitutional choice on account of the failure of the voters to go to the polls, the American Government peremptorily called upon him to resign. In a statement to the Diplomatic Corps he announced that he would declare the result of the election null and order another election.

On Nov. 12 Huerta refused to accede to the American demand for his resignation, and John Lind left Mexico City for Vera Cruz.

Meantime the United States dispatched other ships to the Mexican Coast and Americans continued to leave Mexico. Definite proposals were made to Carranza and his adherents. Several of the European Powers, notably Great Britain, Germany and France, gave strong support to the policy of the United States. The Constitutionalists waxed stronger and continued their advance to the south. They captured Victoria, Chihuahua, Juarez and Tuliacan. The situation became so critical that Great Britain, Germany, France, Spain and Japan ordered warships to Mexican waters.

Fighting continued at Tampico and many other centres, and Torreon was taken by the Constitutionalists.

An embargo placed on the exportation of arms from the United States to Mexico was raised early in February of the present year.

A large number of American troops were concentrated on the border, and the American fleet in Mexican waters was strengthened.

The Constitutionalists advanced on Torreon and Monterey, and the former place was captured early in April.

Then came the departure of John Lind from Vera Cruz and the arrest of a party of American bluejackets at Tampico, for which an apology and salute were demanded by the United States and refused by Huerta.

On April 12 bluejackets and marines were landed and occupied Vera Cruz in consequence of the reported arrival of a big consignment of arms. The Mexicans retired and destroyed a portion of the railway.

Shortly after, a mediation proposal from Argentina, Brazil and Chile was accepted and a conference ensued at Niagara Falls. In the interval American troops relieved the bluejackets at Vera Cruz and have since remained in occupation of the port.

Tampico and Zacatecas fell into the Constitutionalists hands and the victorious armies continued their march on Mexico City, where rumors have been in circulation for many weeks of the approaching resignation of Huerta.

PEACE ENVOY SURPRISED.

Rabasa Gets First News of Huerta's Move from The Times.

Señor Emilio Rabasa, head of the Mexican delegation to the peace conference at Niagara Falls, who is staying at the Hotel Netherland, was much surprised when he heard that Huerta had resigned. He had received no official intimation that such a step was expected, and for a time did not think it was possible.

"I have not heard a word from Mexico," he said, early in the evening, "other than instructions concerning the ending of the peace conference business. Of course, I did not know what President Huerta would do, and I ought not to be surprised that he has resigned. President Huerta is a most extraordinary man, and will always do just as he pleases. We never knew what he intended to do.

"This is the first news that I have had of his resignation, and like the news of his family leaving Mexico City yesterday, I hear it first from THE NEW YORK TIMES. I expect to return to Mexico just as soon as my business is finished here. I cannot say what effect Huerta's resignation will have on the political situation in Mexico. I only hope that his elimination will mean peace, and a lasting peace at that."

During the interview Señor Rabasa received a telegram from Señor Carbajal. It was in code and after translation Señor Rabasa said it contained nothing concerning Huerta's resignation, but advised him that another telegram would be sent in an hour or more which would contain important news.

Señor Dominguez, the legal adviser of Huerta's delegates, who is an elderly man, seemed greatly shocked that Huerta had resigned. He said that he could hardly beleive it. Several members of Señor Rabasa's part, said before news of the note in the Chamber arrived, that although the resignation had been offered, they thought the Chamber of Deputies would not acceptt it. They were of the opinion that the Deputies realized that Huerta was the only man who could bring peace to Mexico and would therefore refuse to allow him to resign.

Señor Rabasa and five of his party paced up and down in front of the hotel from 8:30 o'clock until after 11 waiting for the second telegram from Carbajal. They seemed dejected, but still expressed hope that Huerta's resignation would not be accepted until they were informed that the Chamber of Deputies had done so. Señor Rabasa asked if the Chamber of Deputies had voted for a suspension of hostilities, and if an amnesty had been proclaimed. On being told that these matters had not been taken up he said they would probably come today.

At 11:30 o'clock Señor Rabasa was called on the telephone from Washington. He said that he had no instructions, and asked if there were any for hi mfrom the Huerta representatives in that city. On receiving word that there were none, he retired for the night without waiting further for the message from Señor Carbajal.

The change in the Presidency will make no change in the status of the Mexican delegates to the peace conference inasmuch as their credentials are from the Mexican Senate and not from the President.

WAS EXILED, SAYS GEN. MAASS

Declares Huerta Was Angry Because He Sent His Family Away.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, July 15.—Gen. Joaquin Maass, who, with his brother, Gen. Mario Maass, is aboard the Espagne, said before starting for Europe this afternoon that Gen. Huerta expelled them from Mexico. He says he was preparing for the defense of San Luis Potosi when he received a telegram from Huerta, who is his uncle, saying: "I have learned with displeasure that your mother and your wife are about to leave the country; so you will go also."

Gen. Maass says that when he arrived in Mexico City he found a special train awaiting him, with his brother and other relatives aboard. It left immediately for Puerto Mexico, and on arriving there Gen. Maass says he telegraphed Gen. Huerta, saying that he knew he was being expelled from the country, but asking that the order be rescinded. Huerta, however, replied curtly: "Go on to Europe."

Querido Moheno will probably sail for Key West tomorrow.

FEDERALS QUITTING GUAYMAS.

Evacuation Began Tuesday—Arranging Exchange of Prisoners.

ON BOARD S. S. CALIFORNIA, Mazatlan, July 14, (via San Diego, July 15.)—The evacuation of Guaymas by the Mexican Federal forces was begun today on the arrival of the steamer Benito Juarez, according to reports made to Rear Admiral Howard. The first step preliminary to the general exodus of Federals began with the embarking of horse and cattle.

Conferences between the Federal and Constitutionalist Generals at Guaymas relative to the exchange of prisoners continued throughout the day, and the negotiations have been practically completed, the Federal commander reserving the right to certain exceptions when the transfers are made.

The California and the destroyer Preble departed today for La Paz, Lower California, where it is expected that the Federals and Constitutionalists will agree on the joint support of Carranza.

Col. Gomez, a Zapatista officer, who has taken charge of Acapulco in the name of the Constitutionalists, has promised protection to all foreigners. Hsi forces there consist of 2,000 men.

GUARDHOUSE FOR SALAZAR.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 15.—José Ynez Salazar, former Mexican volunteer Federal General, has been lodged in the guardhouse at Fort Wingate pending investigation of a report that he and Gen. R. Quevido were active in furthering a plot to start a revolution in Northern Mexico against the Constitutionalists.

This information was brought here by Elfego Baca, attorney for Salazar, who returned from Fort Wingate today.

Fernand Desmoulin Dead.

VENICE, July 15.—Fernand Desmoulin, the French engraver and philanthropist, died here today at the age of 61 years. M. Desmoulin was known in Paris as the "Lay Prison Chaplain," on account of his voluntary work in the prisons which he visited and consoled the prisoners, continuing to help them even after their release.

tance of the insurance collector, Bardes, as the chief witness of the prosecution.

Mr. Smith has had Farrell's record looked up, and is said to have found nothing against him, other than that he is a man who has fallen the other side of fortune and never stopped falling off, experiencing hunger and unemployment to the full. Farrel is 49 years old. He has been a stationary engineer, and comes from Stamford, Conn. His manner, while telling his story to the Grand Jury, is said to have been straightforward and convincing, and his story is said not to have differed in any detail from that which he had told the District Attorney.

In the absence of any statement from the District Attorney as to what occurred in the Grand Jury room, it could not be learned absolutely whether Farrell had identified Mrs. Carman with precisely the same description as that given by the maid. There seemed to be a possible confusion in that a kimono worn by Mrs. Carman had been mistaken by him at first as a long flowing cloak, somewhat resembling, under a shawl, an automobile duster.

The real importance of Farrell's testimony is felt to be that he supposedly described what took place, as far as Mrs. Carman was concerned, outside the house just before and at the time of the shooting; while the importance of Celia's testimony is thought to be that she did the same as far as the happenings in the house immediately afterward are concerned.

Farrell described the woman and took her up almost to the kitchen door. Celia took her up thereafter. There was said to be no point at which the testimony of either witness contradicted that of the other. And his belief that both were, to all appearances, disinterested witnesses, and that neither, so far as he could learn, had any reason to wish to injure Mrs. Carman, made the District Attorney place the more credence and confidence in their stories.

Immediately after the news of Farrell's testimony began to be rumored about the Court House, Mr. Levy, the Carman lawyer, appeared there, with Dr. Carman, and spoke bitterly about the way the proceedings before the Grand Jury were being conducted.

Mrs. Carman's Appeal.

Mr. Levy showed this petition from Mrs. Carman, which he said he had presented to the District Attorney, and to the Grand Jury:

"District Attorney and Grand Jury of the County of Nassau, Now in Session:

"I, the undersigned, do respectfully petition the Grand Jury now investigating the murder of Lulu D. Bailey for permission to go before your body and make a statement in respect to any knowledge I may have in reference to the charge against me.

"I make this petition voluntarily, and hereby waive any immunity which ordinarily would be afforded me by reason of making any such statement, and I waive any and all rights, constitutional and statutory, which might belong to me, relative to going before the Grand Jury, and I want no protection of any kind afforded me by reason of any statement I may make before the Grand Jury if I be permitted to go before the Grand Jury.

"I herein admit that such action will be entirely on my desire and volition and at no solicitation of the Grand Jury. I am willing that any statement I may make before the Grand Jury may be used against me at any future trial or hearing.

"FLORENCE A. CARMAN.

"Witnessed: William A. Hults,

"Warden Nassau County Jail."

"It was understood between the District Attorney and myself," said Mr. Levy, "that Mrs. Carman would be allowed to go before the Grand Jury if she waived immunity. Mrs. Carman is anxious to go before the jury and subject herself to any questions that may be asked, in order to present the truth to the Grand Jury.

"The District Attorney, after the examination of Bardes, which I conducted in his presence, said he was satisfied that Bardes was a reliable witness. I was satisfied that Bardes was not reliable. The colored maid, who gave a statement to me after the crime, and who testified at the Coroner's inquest that she had not seen Mrs. Carman in the kitchen, now changes her story and says she did see Mrs. Carman go through the kitchen and that she wore a kimono. This entirely confutes the story told by Bardes, who testified at the inquest that the woman he saw walking away from the murder window wore a white waist and dark skirt. In connection with Celia's testimony, it is interesting to note that since Thursday she has been attended by Burns detectives and that her whereabouts at present are unknown to me.

"Now the District Attorney says he will not put Bardes on the stand, because his story does not coincide with Celia's. Why doesn't the District Attorney permit Bardes to go before the Grand Jury? Why does he not permit the family of Mrs. Carman to go before the Grand Jury? If he wants the facts, why does he not allow all of them to go before the Grand Jury and bring out all the facts now?"

Two Grand Jurors Excused.

The District Attorney, in connection with Mrs. Carman's appearance before the jury, realizes that the only hope he can have of establishing the case he is building is through outside evidence of actual fact concerning the murder, and that it would be impossible for him to establish the guilt of Mrs. Carman through any amount of cross-examination of her as a witness. On all hands the impressive influence of Mrs. Carman as a witness in her own behalf is conceded, and it is realized that she could prove more than a match for any District Attorney, as far as impressing a jury by the force of her personality, is concerned.

Two of the Grand Jurors were excused today at their own request. They were Alva R. Smith of Bellmore, a contractor, who had a large contracting job that required his presence up-State, and Daniel B. Raynor of Freeport, who felt that his social relations to persons concerned in the case would make it undesirable for him to have part in the Grand Jury proceedings.

There are seventeen men on the Grand Jury. A majority vote of these will decide whether Mrs. Carman is to be indicted for murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, or first degree manslaughter. No lower charge is expected by the District Attorney. If an indictment were returned against Mrs. Carman, she would be arraigned in a day or two before Justice Van Siclen in the Supreme Court at Mineola. No plea of guilty is acceptable in a first degree murder charge. After pleading, the prisoner would be remanded to the County Jail to await trial before the special term of the Supreme Court conducted in September by Justice Charles H. Kelby.

If an indictment for first degree murder were returned, no bail would be possible. An indictment for second degree murder would permit of bail, probably very high bail, and an indictment for first degree manslaughter would permit of bail in a lower sum, in the discretion of the court. The District Attorney would not say today whether he counted positively on the Grand Jury's returning an indictment at all. It was pointed out that the question of permitting Mrs. Carman's statement to the jury had not yet been settled, and that injected a factor of unknown importance into the question of how the seventeen men would vote.

Other witnesses before the Grand Jury today, besides Farrell, were: Harry De Beau, a real estate man, who was the last man known to have seen Mrs. Bailey before she entered the Carman house; Gaston Boissonault, the manager of the General Acoustic Company, who told of Mrs. Carman's purchase of the dictograph which was put in her husband's office; Francis Calvin Burnell, the operative who installed the dictograph; Miss Hazel Combs and her companion, Miss Hannah Kahn, who visited the doctor just before Mrs. Bailey; Nellie Gherkin, landlady of Elwood T. Bardes; Dr. Roy D. Grimmer and Dr. Howard Phipps, who, with Dr. W. H. Runcie, performed the autopsy on Mrs. Bailey.

Coroner Is a Witness.

Another witness was Coroner Corodon Norton, who testified to what had happened at the Carman house after he was notified of the murder, and ex-Judge Archie Wallace, who told of taking Platt Conklin, Mrs. Carman's father, to the Carman home after the aged man had been notified by telephone of the shooting, and of meeting the maid on the east porch as he stopped his automobile there and helped Mr. Conklin dismount.

The Grand Jury took no vote after hearing the testimony today. A large part of its session was taken up with the discussion of whether it would consent to Mrs. Carman's testifying before it. The jury could not settle the point. District Attorney Smith expressed himself as confident that the jury would end with the case by noon tomorrow.

Dr. Carman, after visiting his wife in the jail today, denounced the way the District Attorney had handled the case.

"Smith told my wife he was acting as a friend, not as an official, when he talked to her in our house," he said, "and told her distinctly: 'I called Burns in only so that it would look better. Give him the run of the house the same as you would me.'

"He told Mrs. Carman that if he had only known of the dictograph being there he could have forestalled its discovery and hushed the matter up smoothly."

Asked whether he himself had known of the presence of the dictograph in his office, or ever suspected it, Dr. Carman replied with a grin:

"Well, sometimes when I came upstairs I found the door of Mrs. Carman's room locked, and when it was opened I found her fully dressed, and wondered why in the world she had to lock the door then."

Dr. Carman added a new fact to those he had mentioned in his story of the murder of Mrs. Bailey. He showed how he was standing at the time the window was broken, with his hand on Mrs. Bailey's shoulder, near the door. Then he said:

"There were two crashes of glass. The person who broke it shattered it with two blows. I heard the crashes and dodged behind the operating chair just as the shot was fired."

Heretofore, Dr. Carman had not told of more than one crash of glass.

Dr. Carman denied rumors that he had ever been with Mrs. Bailey at the White Cannon Inn, in East Rockaway, or at Abraham's Café, in Lynbrook.

"I have been there," he said, "but never with strange women. And I never saw Mrs. Bailey before."

The physician denied also a story that he and Mrs. Carman had quarreled about a woman at a dance at the Freeport Club on Lincoln's Birthday. He denied also that he and Mrs. Carman on the morning after the shooting had begged the maid, Celia, to say nothing of having seen Mrs. Carman pass through the kitchen, but to say instead that she had seen a negro girl pass around the rear of the house.

"I never talked to Celia for three days," said Dr. Carman, "because I didn't want to mix things up. I used to give her a tip occasionally, for work she did in cleaning up the office, but I seldom talked to her, anyway. When I brought her here to the Court House in answer to the subpoena on Thursday I told her: 'Celia, they're probably going to put you in jail or try to scare you into telling a different story than you told at the inquest.' She answered: 'They can put me in jail for 100 years, but I won't tell any other story.' As a matter of fact, though, the girl will tell the last story suggested by any one who last saw her and talked to her."

Dr. Carman said he was very anxious that his wife be allowed to appear before the Grand Jury. The only ordeal, he dreaded, would be that in case of an indictment his wife—"the Missus," Dr. Carman called her—would have to remain locked up in jail all Summer. He said no one ever considered as at all possible a conviction at an actual trial of the case; but he was eager to avoid a long Summer imprisonment in the meantime. He himself, he said, felt that the Grand Jury would not return an indictment against his wife.

District Attorney Smith denied Dr. Carman's statement that he (Mr. Smith) had told Mrs. Carman he could have hushed up the story of the dictograph if he had known it earlier. Dr. Carman was not even present at the conversation between Mrs. Carman and Mr. Smith, it was said, and nothing of the sort was said there.

If Dr. Carman and his lawyer thought the story told by the maid had been "framed" for her, that opinion was not shared by George Toomer, her cousin. Toomer said he was well satisfied with Celia in the unofficial custody of "the State of New York," and that he was confident the girl had told the truth to the Grand Jury. As for the possibility that she was prompted into saying things that were not of her own knowledge, the old man, while refusnig to tell anything she might have told him, and insisting that his opinion was merely his own, said emphatically:

"I only tell you one thing—she ain't been framed an inch!"

Toomer added that Mr. Levy had visited his house yesterday and today to find out what he knew about Celia's present whereabouts. Mr. Levy didn't learn it from Toomer.

WHY THE LEADER?

Growth in action is the best measure of supremacy. The New York Times leads all other New York morning newspapers in increasing circulation and in steadily growing advertising patronage; the most remarkable record of month-by-month and year-by-year growth ever presented by a newspaper. Advertising in The New York Times has the added value of presentation before a constantly increasing audience of intelligent, thoughtful people.

SEE JONES'S DEFEAT IN SENATE TEST VOTE

Foes of Nominee for Reserve Board Win Fight to Publish His Testimony.

HE INVITES FULL PUBLICITY

Senator Bankhead Tells the President the Chicagoan Will Lose by Margin of Five Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The opposition to the appointment of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, to the Federal Reserve Board was victorious in the first test of strength in the Senate today when Mr. Jones's testimony before the Committee on Banking and Currency was ordered published. As a matter of fact most of this testimony had been published informally before the Senate gave the order, but today's vote has emphasized Mr. Jones's weakness among Senators. As a result, the Administration is in serious alarm lest Mr. Jones be ultimately rejected, and this alarm is not far short of admitting the likelihood of defeat.

Even before the Senate vote was taken on the question of publicity, the White House admitted that the margin for Mr. Jones would be only "one or two." As a matter of fact the mathematics of the Senate makes a majority of one impossible if every Senator is accounted for, and a suggestion that a vote might come to a tie with the Vice President pushing Mr. Jones through, was not denied. Senator Bankhead of Alabama, who favors Mr. Jones, told the President today that he would fail of confirmation by a margin of five. Mr. Clarke of Arkansas, President pro tempore of the Senate, was quoted as estimating that the margin of defeat would be as wide as seven.

When the question of publicity finally reached the Senate for formal consideration Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, acting Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, consented to limit his motion so that it would affect merely Mr. Jones's testimony. Mr. Hitchcock also wants his report against Mr. Jones published, and it may be when the minority report favoring the Chicagoan is presented to the Senate. But until then Mr. Hitchcock is willing to regard his report as confidential. The motion to have debate on the appointment in open session will also be delayed until both reports are disposed of.

Borah Hits at Jones.

The Senate took action on Mr. Jones's testimony in secret session, after discussion of about an hour. But before the doors were closed the subject came up pointedly when Mr. Borah of Idaho, a Progressive Republican, in assailing the powers of the proposed Federal Trade Commission, asked what would happen to the country if a trust magnate like Mr. Jones should be made a member of that body, as the President proposed to make him a member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. Borah read from published reports of Mr. Jones's statements to the committee about his own corporate relations and views on corporate matters, and reached the conclusion that his influence would be wholly bad.

"This bill," said Mr. Borah, referring to the Trade Commission measure, "would put the law-making power into the hands of a commission. All that glitters is not gold, and not every one that says, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter into the Kingdom of Heaven. And not every bill that is called a measure for popular reform improves the conditions already existing.

"Suppose the halo of wisdom were dropped from the proposed commission for a moment and a man like this Mr. Jones was added to its membership. Here is where he expresses his views on monopolies. What chance would the little business man of the United States have with him on the Trade Commission? I am now trying to apply the views of the nominee for the Federal Reserve Board to the possible action of the Trade Commission that this bill seeks to establish."

Senator Borah's reference to Mr. Jones in connection with the trust programme of the Administration followed a sharp clash between Mr. Hollis, Democrat, of New Hampshire, who supported Mr. Jones on the committee, and Mr. Reed of Missouri, who opposed him. Mr. Hollis assailed Mr. Reed for his opposition to the prohibition against undefined "unfair competition," and Mr. Reed retorted angrily that while he did oppose the vesting of the commission with legislative powers, Mr. Hollis had "deliberately misquoted" him.

Mr. Lee of Maryland, who supported Mr. Jones on the committee, raised the point that the whole discussion should be in secret session. That point of order was overruled and it became apparent that the opposition had the situation under control when Mr. Hitchcock read a telegram he had received from Mr. Jones inviting the fullest publicity. The telegram reads:

Chicago, Ill., July 15, 1914.
Hon. G. M. Hitchcock, Washington, D. C.

I see from the newspapers that a controversy has arisen over the publication of my testimony before the Banking and Currency Committee. I do not assume the right to have anything to say in the matter, but perhaps I may be permitted to say that I have not the slightest objection to such publication, but would, on the contrary, rather welcome it. THOMAS D. JONES.

The debate in secret session was quiet. The speakers favoring publication of Mr. Jones's testimony were Mr. O'Gorman of New York, Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Mr. Reed of Missouri, Mr. Norris of Nebraska—all opponents of Mr. Jones—and Mr. Lewis of Illinois, and Mr. Smith of Georgia, who support him. For continued secrecy of everything related to the case were Mr. Stone of Missouri, Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, and Mr. Brandegee of Connecticut.

The discussion of publishing testimony that had been summarized all over the country had its humorous aspects. Pointing to a newspaper's full account of yesterday's secret session, Mr. Thomas of Colorado said that as he had always advocated publicity, he would hereafter move that all the business of the Senate be transacted in secret.

"In that way," said Mr. Thomas, "with curiosity aroused, the newspapers will print more about our doings than they do ordinarily. And these accounts are as accurate as the accounts of anything we do in the open."

Assailed as Trust Man.

While the adverse report on Mr. Jones was not made public, it is known that it treats of him as a Director of the Harvester Trust and as a heavy stockholder in the Zinc Trust. Under both heads he is discussed as a man whose connections and sympathies and views as expressed by himself make him unfit for high public office.

Before the Senate went into secret session there was a protracted secret session of the committee. There the opponents of Mr. Jones got the impression that the friends of the Administration, realizing that defeat was imminent if a vote were taken soon, were playing for time. At any rate, they did ask for a delay in filing the majority report. This, Mr. Hitchcock refused, though he afterward relented in part.

One of the strongest indications of the turning tide against Mr. Jones was a report that Mr. Sherman, a Republican of Mr. Jones's State of Illinois, finally had been induced by his partisans to make the question a party affair and would vote against Mr. Jones. As Mr. Sherman was in Chicago, the report could not be confirmed, but Republican Senators seemed to think that even if Mr. Sherman could not bring himself to oppose a Chicago man, he would at least absent himself and weaken the support by one vote.

EXPLAINS BIG ZINC PROFITS.

President Tells Operations of Trust in Which Jones Is Concerned.

The New Jersey Zinc Company, which has been brought into the limelight in connection with the fight over the confirmation by the Senate of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago as a member of the Federal Reserve Board, is a concern of which little has been known to the general public. It has been in existence in its present corporate form since 1897, but has made no reports to the stockholders, and even in the financial district persons rubbed their eyes when they learned that it had paid 40 and 50 per cent. dividends in the last two years.

Mr. Jones has been attacked chiefly because he is a Director in the International Harvester Company and a defendant in the Government suit for its dissolution, but his connection with the so-called Zinc Trust has also been urged against his appointment to a high official place. Senator Hitchcock, acting chairman of the Senate Committee, who has been much criticised for making public Mr. Jones's statements in a closed session, thus summarized what he had said about the zinc company:

"He testified that prior to 1897 he was President of a zinc company at Mineral Point, Wis., which he and his brother had taken in liquidation of a debt. It was capitalized at $400,000. In that year his company sold its property to the New Jersey Zinc Company, a holding company which had been capitalized at $4,000,000, but the capital of which was now increased to $10,000,000. The price received by Mr. Jones's company was $900,000, which was put in the stock of the New Jersey Company. The holding company also took in other companies and now produces, with its subsidiaries, 3 per cent. of the sulphuric acid of the country, 20 per cent. of the spelter and 85 per cent. of the oxide of zinc.

"Before the consolidation the properties were not very profitable for various reasons. Since the consolidation they have been highly profitable, one reason being that they are able to combine holdings of the various properties and another being improved methods. Of the $10,000,000 capitalization the dividends last year were $5,000,000 and the year before that $4,000,000. Mr Jones explained, however, that the company was using up its capital, as its property consists largely of its mines."

Edgar Palmer, President of the New Jersey Zinc Company, said yesterday that this partial statement of fact was apt to give an erroneous impression of its history and business.

"The dividends look very large," he said, "because they are based on a capitalization of $10,000,000, when the property is worth much more. In its early years it paid only 4 and afterward 6 per cent., and much of the earnings was put back into the property in the form of improved machinery and processes. The present dividends represent an accumulated earning power, that has grown in the same way a snowball grows in rolling down hill. Furthermore, as Mr. Jones said, the dividends represent not only earnings, but a distribution of assets, as the amount of ore in a mine, while not always determinable, is fixed, and sooner or later the mine will play out.

"The real advantage we have is that we are able to sell oxide of zinc for less than it costs most others to make it. This is because the ore from our mine at Franklin Furnace, N. J., is converted direct into oxide of zinc, instead of having to be converted first into metallic zinc or spelter, and then by a second process converted into oxide of zinc. Our processes were originally patented, but the patents ran out years ago. The process, however, is not applicable to the ores found elsewhere. It is used with some success by some of the other producers, and we use it ourselves at the Mineral Point plant in Wisconsin, but it is impossible in either case to turn out the fine grade of oxide of zinc that is made from the ore of our principal mine in New Jersey. It is only at the mines in New Jersey that we have this special advantage."

This ore deposit in New Jersey was discovered in 1640, and the first mining was done in 1774. The smelting process was not known at that time, but actual operations on a commercial scale began as far back as 1851. The early settlers had leased or sold the mining rights for the land to various persons. The owners of the land knew that it contained zinc ore and iron ore, but they didn't know that these ores were in chemical combination, instead of segregated, as they supposed. So they leased or sold the rights to the zinc ore to certain persons, and the rights to the iron ore to others. When it came to mining there was inextricable confusion among these concessionaries and fifty years of litigation resulted. During this time the various concessions became bulked mainly in the hands of three companies, but litigation continued among these.

Combined at Court Suggestion.

They were the New Jersey Zinc and Iron Company, the Passaic Zinc Company, and the Lehigh Zinc and Iron Company. The latter had a smelter at Bethlehem, Penn., but its ores came from the same deposit at Franklin Furnace. These are the three companies operating in New Jersey that were combined, and they were combined, it is said, at the suggestion of the New Jersey court, which declared that only in this way could the interminable litigation be ended. The Mineral Point Zinc Company, it is said, was taken into the consolidation because in some of the operations a different grade of ore was needed than that from Franklin Furnace, and this the Wisconsin mines supplied. The New Jersey Zinc Company of Pennsylvania is simply the Lehigh Zinc and Iron Company under a new name. It operates the smelters now located at Palmerton for the New Jersey ore.

Oxide of zinc is used chiefly in the manufacture of paint, which can be, and largely is, made also from lead. This puts a natural check, it is said, on the exent to which the price for oxide of zinc may go. Should its price, in relation to that of lead, go beyond a certain point, lead would be used more extensively and the sales of the zinc company would fall off.

It is freedom from lead and sulphur in large quantities that gives the ore at Franklin Furnace its advantage of convertibility into oxide of zinc by a single process. The ore body is from sixty to eighty feet in width, about three-quarters of a mile long and is known to be 1,100 feet in depth.

Franklinite, the constituent from which the oxide of zinc is made direct, is magnetic and it is by a magnetic process that it is separated from the other constituents, after the ore has been crushed. Franklinite is a glossy black, in striking contrast with the fine white powder into which it is converted, which is much used for toilet purposes. The change of color is due to the introduction of oxygen, making oxide of zinc. This process consists of burning the Franklinite in the presence of oxygen, with which it unites. To produce oxide of zinc of equal purity from other ores, it is said, requires their conversion first into metallic zinc, or spelter, and from spelter into the oxide.

After the Franklinite is extracted from the crushed ore, sand and a constituent known as Willemite, which is a light green in color, are left. Willemite is also a zinc-producing ore, but is not susceptible to the direct treatment applied to Franklinite. From Willemite spelter is made and from this also, if need be, oxide of zinc can be produced.

The Directors of the New Jersey Zinc Company, besides Mr. Palmer, are August Heckscher, Edwin M. Squier, Samuel P. Wetherill Edwin S. Marston, Thomas D. Jones, John J. Riker, William P. Hardenbergh, and Charles W. Cox. A. Polhemus Cobb and James E. Hayes, Jr., are Vice Presidents, Carrington W. Sexton, Secretary, and Henry S. Wardner, Treasurer.

Mrs. Carmack Made Postmistress.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Mrs. E. W. Carmack, widow of Senator Carmack, was nominated by the President and immediately confirmed in the Senate as Postmistress at Columbia, Tenn. Senator Luke Lea presented her name. Mr. Carmack served in the Senate from 1901 to 1907. In the following year, while editor of a Nashville newspaper, he was shot and killed in the street of Nashville.

United Fruit Co. Upheld.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 15.—An opinion filed in the Supreme Court today by Justice Swayze denied the application of Manuel A. De Vengoecchea of the Hotel Gotham, New York City, for a writ of mandamus directing the United Fruit Company to bring its books into this State for inspection. The applicant must pay the costs of the litigation. The complainant charged mismanagement. Justice Swayze says he does not believe the applicant acted in good faith and that the continued success of the company indicates good judgment rather than mismanagement.

ROOSEVELT TALKS POLITICS TO WOMEN

Tells Female Progressives at Colony Club Luncheon That He Is with Them.

WOULD GIVE THEM VOTES

Party Wants Their Help and Constitutional Convention Needs Their Advice.

For the first time in the history of New York, the leader of a political party conferred yesterday with the women of his party.

The conference was between Col. Theodore Roosevelt and the women of the New York State Progressive Service. Col. Roosevelt was the special guest of twenty-three of the women workers at luncheon at The Colony Club.

The luncheon was informal, with a simple menu and inexpensive floral decorations. It was held in the Assembly Room on the second floor, the room used for entertainments and lectures.

Col. Roosevelt sat at the right of the presiding officer, Miss Anne Rhodes, Secretary-Treasurer of the New York State Progressive Service. At Col. Roosevelt's right sat the Commissioner of Correction, Katharine Bement Davis. Mrs. Katharine Hooker of California, the one guest from outside the State and who is a National Committeeman of the Progressive Party, sat at the left of the presiding officer. At the end of the table opposite Miss Rhodes sat Miss Frances A. Kellor, Chairman of the National Progressive Service.

No definite action was taken at the meeting, and after speeches by Col. Roosevelt and Dr. Davis, the discussion was conducted in informal conversation. Representatives of the press were not admitted. Col. Roosevelt's speech was given out after it had been carefully edited and approved by him. Dr. Davis's speech also was handed out after its author had made it suitable for publication.

Miss Rhodes was responsible for the statement that the discussion was general and not particular. Party planks were not discussed, she said, though they were mentioned, as were methods of political work and the question of woman suffrage and women in the Constitutional Convention. Several women were suggested in this last connection.

"Women who become members of the Constitutional Convention," said Col. Roosevelt, "should have sound judgment and good heads as well as good hearts."

Col. Roosevelt had much to say to Dr. Davis, his neighbor during the luncheon, and was one of the most enthusiastic in applauding when she spoke. There was applause for the Colonel when he began his address by saying:

"This is the first invitation of anything like an official character which I have accepted in New York." He added:

There are just one or two things I want to say to the women members of the Progressive Party. We are fortunate in having with us a guest from California, where much that we now strive for here is already an accomplished fact.

I have been, as you know, most anxious that the activities of men and women in politics shall not be separated into watertight compartments. There are certain fields where one will be more active than others.

In most fields we see an opening for common activity—for activity in common—and I think it would be a mistake if there was anything like entire segregation of the activities of the women in politics at large, or in the management of our Government.

I believe that the surest way of bringing about a realization of one feature of the Progressive Party programme—that is, of securing the vote for women—is the constant development of what are already the social and industrial activities of women within the Progressive Party.

We have a very important contest on hand. I want each one of you to go back feeling that it is your special duty to busy yourself with the party affairs this year, in the sense of trying to get the best civil Government for the State—and in the sense of trying to get a thoroughly representative constitutional convention, representative of the highest and sanest aspirations of the people.

You must not forget the importance the Constitution. You will live under it for twenty years after its adoption. The Constitution is important, for it will give us the chance to secure far more easily than at present the opportunity for the ordinary plain hard-working man and woman in city and country alike, to conduct their work and live their life on a higher plane both of comfort and of usefulness. I shall hope to see that Constitutional Convention provide for woman suffrage.

I feel the Progressive Party should put up and should insist upon having among the candidates for delegates to the convention whom it favors a certain proportion of women. I earnestly hope that those women will be women with a record for efficiency in life, who will be fit to confer with and who will do their part in guiding their fellow-members. We should not put up any woman who we cannot be perfectly sure will represent the wisest forces for good government. We cannot afford such a mistake. As I have recently said, I feel very strongly that the body that makes the Constitution which is the fundamental law of our State should represent the people; and therefore the half of the adult people, which is composed of women, should have some representation.

I am anxious also, when we come to deal with the constitutional convention, that in barring out the corruptionist we shall not send either the well-meaning and wild-eyed lunatic or the honest fool reactionary.

I cannot be more specific, as I do not know what matters will be up before us in the constitutional convention. But I do want you to get that mental attitude before you. Remember that in some of these cases we shall not only face a conflict of right and wrong; we shall face a conflict between two rights. In such cases we must try to avoid doing injustice to one side in the effort to do justice to another.

Miss Davis said she was a Progressive because she had always occupied middle ground. She said she was not radical enough for her radical friends or conservative enough for the conservative ones.

"I was born a Republican," she said, "and it has seemed to me that the Progressive Party principles will best meet the conditions of the day. We must take men and women from both parties to make a party that will represent the middle ground."

She said that in the work of her department people on middle ground were needed, and quoted examples from her daily mail of extremists; people who said no sane man would talk to a howling mob of self-government and others who said that all prisoners must have it. Some letters said a Gatling gun should be used on the striking prisoners and others criticised the Commissioner for upholding the Warden.

"I need Progressiveism of the type outlined by Col. Roosevelt to help me out in the present crisis," she said.

"I wish I might help bring about the election, of perhaps not a Progressive Governor; I don't know as that would be possible, but at least of a good Governor," she said in conclusion.

Miss Lillian D. Wald said she had been criticised by the Socialist Party for having become a Progressive, and that she had lost some support because of her affiliation with that party. She spoke of her belief in woman suffrage, but said it would not bring the millennium. "We do not claim," she said, "that men and women are identical, but that they are equal. We are guilty of great waste when we do not utilize the services of both."

Among those present were:

Mrs. A. Gordon Norrie, Vice President New York State Progressive Service; Miss Cornelia E. Bryce, National Progressive Service; Mrs. Robert Elder, State Committee Second Judicial District; Mrs. Rudolph Muller, State Committee Third Judicial District; Miss Mabel Yeomans, State Committee Sixth Judicial District; Mrs. William Vanamee, State Committee, Ninth Judicial District; Mrs. William Grant Brown, State Committee Fifteenth Assembly District; Miss Bertha Rembaugh Chairman of Women, New York County, Mrs. Alfred J. WHITMAN 'LETTER' A DRAFT BY DUELL

I delivered my address before the National Geographic Society of Washington, returning on the train the following day. He was at that time busily engaged in getting up the Non-Partisan Political League in the interest of Mr. Whitman. He was announced in all the papers as so doing. Mr. Whitman now says he knew nothing of Mr. Duell's activities or of the existence of that league. If so, he was the only person in the State of New York who did not. Such a statement is sheer nonsense. He could not have avoided being familiar with what Mr. Duell was doing, and if Mr. Duell was not his agent it was his business to repudiate him then or to repudiate him when he came to see me on my return from Europe a month later, which fact was announced in all the papers. Mr. Whitman never repudiated Mr. Duell as long as there was a chance of Mr. Duell succeeding in the effort Mr. Whitman had asked him to make to get me to support Mr. Whitman. He repudiated his agent only when his agent had failed.

Duell Showed a Whitman Letter.

"On my way to Washington, Mr. Duell showed me a letter signed by Mr. Whitman and written to Mr. Duell. This letter was in effect as follows:

'In line with our last talk I agree with you that the time is ripe for an alliance between the Progressive Republicans and members of the National Progressive Party as well as of all other good citizens sharing their beliefs to rid the State of that kind of party control which in my opinion is mainly responsible for the corrupt conditions which have been clearly brought out in the various examinations and investigations carried on under my direction during the past year. These conditions are not localized, and the men and the policies responsible for them are not confined to any one party. I believe that a Fusion fight can be so carried on that we could elect to the important offices of the State responsible men who shall be guided by the State's best interest. I myself, until brought into direct contact with these conditions, had not realized the present condition to which the State had fallen or how wide prevailing these conditions were. All these offices are great and powerful offices, especially as many of the officials sit as incumbents upon various State boards and commissions. In fact, I doubt if the State Engineer office was ever more corrupt than it was during the first term of Gov. Hughes, and, of course, the Governor, although he himself was an honest man, could not exert any power over an elected official over whom he had no direct control. I know that you understand my feeling in regard to the whole matter. I am in favor of making up a ticket composed of men chosen solely by their fitness to occupy the high offices for which they are candidates. The method by which such a ticket could be presented to the people is, of course, provided by the direct nominations law. If we are to win in this fight we must have real and earnest action upon the part of those honestly interested and careful preparation, and I need not tell you that I am heartily and unqualifiedly in favor of the inauguration of such a movement.'

Quotation Is Not Exact.

"The above version is substantially, but not verbally, exact. The letter is in the possession of Mr. Duell, and if Mr. Whitman will ask him to publish it he will publish it at once in detail.

"I told Mr. Duell that the platform outlined by Mr. Whitman in his letter was entirely satisfactory provided Mr. Whitman would state explicitly in writing what Mr. Duell assured me he had stated again and again verbally, that he was as hostile to Mr. Barnes as to Mr. Murphy, and regarded the Barnes machine as being no less emphatically than the Murphy machine the enemy of decent and honest government in the State of New York. Mr. Duell assured me, that he had Mr. Whitman's authority to promise that Mr. Whitman would immediately make this statement, such as I desired.

"I informed Mr. Duell that my great object was this year to try to bring about a union of all the decent citizens of New York, no matter what their previous political affiliations might have been, behind candidates of rugged and aggressive honesty who would clean out the utter rottenness of the State Government, and would war just as mercilessly upon the boss and sub-bosses of the Barnes machine as upon the boss and sub-bosses of the Murphy machine. I said that I had not liked Mr. Whitman's attitude in accepting the Tammany nomination for District Attorney and leaving in the minds of many men a question whether he was supporting Mr. Mitchel or Mr. McCall for Mayor of New York, but that if he would in straightforward and unequivocal fashion come forward, as Mr. Duell stated he had the right to promise that Mr. Whitman would come forward, I would gladly do what I could to support him as the head of an non-partisan union citizens' ticket in an open campaign against the two bosses. Mr. Duell further told me that Mr. Whitman assured him that he had voted for me for President as an evidence of his independence of the organization.

Leaders Against Whitman.

"Immediately afterward I saw the leaders of the Progressive Party in the State of New York and told them of my conversation. They were strongly opposed to any indorsement of Mr. Whitman on the ground that he was utterly tricky and insincere. What if they were right? No harm would follow from my proposed course, because what I intended to do was to lay down what in my judgment ought to be the platform on which we conducted our campaign for honest government and for the overthrow of bipartisan boss rule in this State, and that if Mr. Whitman failed to keep his promise and unequivocally to come out, as he had said he would come out, it merely meant that he would show his unfitness and would leave us with the platform of our principles intact, ready to support any honest and competent man whom we thought most fit to carry out those principles and to rally the people of the State to his support.

"Accordingly, on leaving for Europe, I issued a statement in which I said: 'The people of this State, the honest people, the good citizens who wish clean, honest, and efficient government, no matter what their party affiliations may be, are growing bitterly indignant with a system which provides for the see-saw of the Murphy and Barnes machines in the government of this State.'

"Immediately after this statement appeared Mr. Whitman made his statement. It in no shape or way corresponded with what he had promised. It was precisely the kind of statement that Mr. John A. Dix made at intervals in his campaign for Governor four years ago, and it was precisely the kind of a statement which, if Mr. Whitman had consulted Mr. Barnes, Mr. Barnes would undoubtedly have advised him to make. I felt that with this statement in view there was no longer a chance of believing in Mr. Whitman's sincerity and courage.

Says Duell Is Truthful.

"On returning from Europe I was met by Mr. Duell at Quarantine, and he went up with me to Oyster Bay. I knew that Mr. Duell was absolutely sincere, absolutely straightforward, truthful, and responsible, and that if he stated that Mr. Whitman had made certain promises to him Mr. Duell's word could be accepted. I told him that in my judgment it was too late for him to try to get anything from Mr. Whitman such as Mr. Whitman had promised to say; that either Mr. Whitman was a hopelessly timid weakling who was too afraid of Mr. Barnes to venture to attack him or else that he was in league with Mr. Barnes. I accordingly issued a statement in which I said:

"I am struck by the statement in The Tribune today that the Whitman candidacy is being engineered by Mr. Barnes and his personal lieutenants in Albany County. I have similar information from other sections of the State.

"In my judgment neither the Progressives nor the independent citizens will accept either Mr. Whitman or any one else who has failed already to show as a matter of principle and not as a matter of expediency by clean-out statements in the open that he is as unalterably opposed to the Barnes machine as to the Murphy machine."

Duell Quotes Whitman Again.

"A day or two later Mr. Duell called on me, stating that he had seen Mr. Whitman, and that Mr. Whitman realized that he had made a great mistake and was only anxious to redeem himself and that he would shortly issue the statement that he had promised and attack Mr. Barnes by name, announcing that he was as much against Mr. Barnes as he was against Mr. Murphy. I told Mr. Duell that I doubted whether Mr. Whitman would venture to make any such statement, and that I could not commit myself in advance as to what my action would be in the event that he did make it.

"A little later, on July 3 or 4, Mr. Duell forwarded to me through my son a rough draft copy of the letter to be addressed to Mr. Whitman by the committee of the Whitman Non-Partisan League and a rough draft copy of Mr. Whitman's proposed reply. Mr. Whitman's proposed reply went as follows:"

Col. Roosevelt here quoted the Duell draft of the alleged proposed Whitman letter, and continued:

"Mr. Duell stated to me that he had shown his rough draft to Mr. Whitman, that it contained Mr. Whitman's ideas and that Mr. Whitman had said he would issue this statement if I would thereafter in some way indicate my satisfaction with it, or at least indicate that I did not intend to attack Mr. Whitman in view of his making it.

"I wish to emphasize that in this, as in every other action, every advance was made by Mr. Whitman, the effort being on Mr. Whitman's part to get me to say that I would support him and promising that he would come out against Mr. Barnes if I would do so.

"About the same time I received communications from other men who purported to come from Mr. Whitman and who assured me that Mr. Whitman's attitude was exactly what it had been represented by Mr. Duell to be. I was, however, also informed by one gentleman who had seen him that he had explained that he could not assail Mr. Barnes before the primaries for fear Mr. Barnes might beat him at the primaries, but that as soon as the primaries were over he would denounce Mr. Barnes.

"To this gentleman I answered that this represented merely an effort on the part of Mr. Whitman to double-cross either the boss or the Independents; that if he had not the nerve to attack Mr. Barnes before the primaries it would be accepted as unquestionable that he would possess neither the nerve nor the inclination to repudiate him after the primaries.

"There is just one statement of Mr. Whitman's, and only one, to which the people of New York can give implicit credence, and that is the statement that he issued the day before yesterday—'I am a Whitman man from first to last.'"

Colonel Jumps Like a Boy.

Dr. Alexander Lambert came here to spend the night at Sagamore Hill, but there was nothing in the Colonel's demeanor to indicate that he needed medical attention. He jumped like a boy from the dock, which is nearly three feet from the ground, and shouted lustily for the physician to follow him.

The Progressives have added another stab to the Roosevelt statement. It is asserted that the day after Col. Roosevelt returned from Spain, Charles H. Duell, Jr., spent three hours at luncheon with District Attorney Whitman at the Hotel La Fayette-Brevoort in New York. Duell was fresh from a long conference with Col. Roosevelt. It is understood that Col. Roosevelt has more material to fire if Duell or Whitman answer his statement to-morrow.

At the national headquarters in New York today, Col. Roosevelt met several of the State leaders, who again urged him to run for Governor. He gave them no encouragement, and there was nothing in his statement attacking Whitman which gave any hint that he had changed his mind.

Whitman on His Way to New York.

thirty points. Less than ten years ago it was quoted at 216.

Mellen Charges Unfairness.

Mr. Mellen, in an interview in The World yesterday, declared that the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission was unfair to him, especially in regard to the purchase of the stock of the Westchester road through the agency of the late Police Inspector Thomas J. Byrnes.

"There is not the slightest proof of any corrupt act," Mr. Mellen is quoted as saying. "I told the truth, the whole truth on the witness stand, and no human being can find therein anything on which to base a statement that I or any of the other Directors was guilty of a corrupt act.

"The Directors of the New Haven road instructed me to acquire possession of the stock of the New York and Westchester, but when the Directors decided in their best judgment to acquire the road, that ended it. I acquiesced, for it was an almost universal rule with me that after we had thrashed out any matter, the minority would acquiesce in the decision of the majority when the time came for a final vote.

"Well, I was instructed to acquire Westchester stock, and to pay for it not more than as follows: Placing a maximum value of $150 a share on New Haven stock, I was to offer one share of New Haven for three shares of Westchester stock. The necessary arrangements to that end were completed, and I was placed in possession of sufficient New Haven stock to meet the situation.

"Then along came Thomas J. Byrnes, whom I knew not from Adam, except by reputation. He told me that he had control of, or friends of his had possession of a large quantity of Westchester stock. Would I buy it?

"I explained to him the conditions, which were that first certain matters connected with the franchises of the New York & Westchester must be cleared up. There was litigation pending affecting these franchises, and while that litigation was still hanging fire there was a blot on the title of the Westchester properties.

"I never asked Byrnes to have anything in particular done—I simply explained to him that such and such things constituted blots on the Westchester properties, and they must be cleared up or else the stock would be valueless to the New Haven, or rather, we didn't care to buy.

An Everyday Transaction.

"The same thing is done every day in the year between buyers and sellers of houses, where there seems to be some doubt about a title. The seller must clear up the title satisfactorily or the purchaser will not do business.

"It is no part of the purchaser's business how the title is cleared up, provided it is done thoroughly. There then was my situation with Byrnes. Of course, I have my suspicions, or may have, as to what methods he used, or what his principals did. But I never asked him, and I never knew.

"I have not even the slightest scintilla of evidence or conviction founded on substantial proof that Byrnes or any of the people he represented did anything that was not entirely proper.

"What was there corrupt on my part in all this? If there was anything corrupt it was with Byrnes and his principals, and I haven't any reason to assert that there was. Certainly for the Interstate Commerce Commission to assert baldly that this was a corrupt transaction is the veriest nonsense, so far as I was concerned. Mere suspicions don't make crimes, and mere assertions don't either."

In reference to five due bills calling for 498 shares of New Haven stock, which have never been presented to him, Mr. Mellen went on:

"They are a sort of mystery to me. They will expire in a few months, all of them, through the Statute of Limitations, but I would not hide behind that if they were presented. But I have a suspicion that three of the five went down with the Titanic.

"Something that I have been told leads me to suspect that, but I have no proof of that. And I am not worrying about it. If they are never presented I will be just that much in pocket.

"I am convinced in my own mind that some very prominent people in New York were behind Byrnes and got him to handle their Westchester stock for them.

"Anyway, they had a right to sell their stock if they wanted to. If they hadn't used Byrnes, any broker would have concealed their identity just as well. But no doubt, for the purposes in hand, Byrnes was the right man at that time."

FEDERAL CASE PREPARED.

Ready for Prompt Action if New Haven Board Decides to Resist.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Attorney General McReynolds is waiting only for the outcome of the meeting of the Directors of the New Haven Railroad scheduled to take place tomorrow in New York before finally determining the course the Government is to pursue in untangling the New Haven system. If the Directors agree with the Executive Committee's stand there is practically no doubt that a suit will be filed late this week in the United States District Court at New York to have the New Haven dissolved under the Sherman Anti-Trust act. If they accept the Massachusetts legislation a suit will be averted and the department will withhold its hand while the railroad carries out its agreement for a dissolution out of court.

Attorney General McReynolds is understood to feel that the department has done everything possible looking to a settlement out of court. It was said today that his position had been made clear to the Directors, and it would not surprise officials if a failure of the directorate to accept the Massachusetts plan would lead to an official announcement from the department of its position all through the negotiations.

It also seems almost certain tonight that if the department decides to prosecute criminally any officials of the New Haven who were in power when the alleged combination in restraint of trade was built up, the cases will be laid before a Federal Grand Jury soon after tomorrow's meeting if the Directors act adversely. The department's brief in the civil case has been ready for a long time, and information to support the request for indictments has been in official hands for weeks.

REPUDIATED MORGAN TALK.

Boston Paper Quotes Financier as Saying He's 'Done with the Public.'

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 16.—The Post this morning prints the following from New York:

"Oh, don't talk to me about appealing to the public—I'm done."

The speaker was the new J. Pierpont Morgan, head of the ancient Wall Street firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. The subject was the New Haven Railroad and the place was the office of Mr. Morgan and his interrogator and audience was a reporter.

Mr. Morgan, who has constantly refused to make any public comment on the commission's finding in the New Haven case, responded to a note from the reporter, and met him with a smile in the open doorway. Though he is generally not accessible even to men having important business missions, if you once get the attention of the big financier, he will see the interview through to a polite conclusion. He always looks straight at you, but his eyes are kind and a constant smile plays about the corners of his mouth and eyes.

"Well, what's the trouble?" he asked with a twinkle as he took a seat in the outer office in order that he might have a way of retreat if things became too hot. The reporter told him briefly that the Interstate Commerce Commission having made a drastic attack on the Morgan administration, the people of New England would like to hear a thorough-going answer to its charges from the men accused.

"Well, I've no answer to make to it," he replied.

"Well, Mr. Morgan, won't you briefly survey the record of the New Haven under the so-called Morgan-Mellen régime and say why from your standpoint every act was justified? Don't you believe that the people of Massachusetts and New England will make a fair decision?"

"No, I do not," came the quick response. "I've lost all hope of receiving fair consideration from the people of Massachusetts. I don't propose to reply to these insinuations of the Commission and the newspapers. If they think that I'd be guilty of the things that report says outright or by innuendo, why, I've nothing to say! I won't undertake to champion my own honesty in the newspapers."

Mr. Morgan whirled with a smile through the doorway, but a quick response from the reporter brought his massive figure whirling back again, as he leveled his smiling eyes straight at him. Mr. Morgan's movements are quick and direct as are his answers. There is no pomp or pretense about him. He has the unstudied simplicity of a big-hearted boy.

"Well, then, Mr Morgan, how do you propose to act in the matter? Will you go right ahead and attempt to vindicate your policies of the past by the efficient operation of the road in future?"

"I don't propose to say what I shall do. I have not been a Director of the New Haven for six months, and I have nothing to do with its management. I am a heavy stockholder in the New Haven, and am its creditor in other ways. Of course, I shall be interested in what transpires."

Mr. Morgan said he was in no position to say what action the Directors of the New Haven are likely to take at their meeting tomorrow, either with reference to the Fisher-Ellis "string" bill previously rejected, or the Commerce Commission's report.

The great financier made it clear to The Post reporter that he is entirely disgusted with the Interstate Commerce Commission's attitude as shown not only in its report but likewise in the withdrawal of Government accountants from Mr. Morgan's office, where they had come at his invitation to look over the books of the firm wherever the New Haven was involved. It was a complete surprise to him when the accountants, who had been ordered back to Washington by Cimmissioner McChord, failed to reappear at his offices on Monday. Mr. Morgan said in effect that he has lost all hope for the present of getting a fair hearing from the public. And he added:

"I don't care, I'm done with the public for the present, anyway. The public reads the headlines, and that's all. The story itself is fair, and shows the facts. This would be all right if the public read the facts. But it does not. It reads the headlines and listens to the demagogues, and that's the stuff this public opinion is made of."

It was at this point that Mr. Morgan burst out with the expression of exasperation quoted at the beginning of this dispatch.

"Well, that's where I stand," he said frankly, as he retired though the doorway, still smiling.

When asked over the telephone at his home in Long Island last night if the Boston interview was authentic, Mr. Morgan said he had given no such interview. A Boston newspaper man, Mr. Morgan said, had asked him for an interview on the New Haven situation, and had been told that he did not care to give one at this time.

"But the public is anxiously awaiting a statement from you," Mr. Morgan said the correspondent told him, and he replied that he could not help that, and could not give the interview, whereupon the correspondent took his leave."

HINEBAUGH QUOTES ROOSEVELT

Will Head Progressive, Not Republican, Ticket in 1916.

OTTAWA, Ill., July 15.—Col. Roosevelt will not be the Republican candidate for President in 1916, but will head the Progressive ticket if he lives, according to W. H. Hinebaugh, Chairman of the Progressive Congressional Committee, in an address here today.

"I have talked with him three times since he returned from the South American jungle," said Hinebaugh. "Two weeks ago he told me he was in the Progressive fight to stay."

NAMES PLATFORM MAKERS.

Bury Lurton by His Children.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., July 15.—The body of Horace H. Lurton, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who died on Sunday, was buried today in Greenwood Cemetery, beside the graves of his two children. The interment followed services at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, conducted by the Rev. H. J. Mikell of Nashville. Justice Lurton's favorite hymns, "Just as I am," and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," were sung. Business was suspended during the funeral.

MRS. J. A. BLAIR BADLY HURT

Hurled Through Glass Front of Her Auto and Picked Up Unconscious.

Mrs. Isabelle B. Myers Blair, wife of James A. Blair of Blair & Co., bankers, 24 Broad Street, and Director in more than half a dozen corporations, accompanied by Miss E. Hahan, a trained nurse, of 4 East Thirtieth Street, was seriously injured at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when her auto landaulet was struck by a trolley car at Jackson and Junction Avenues, Corona.

Mrs. Blair and Miss Hahan were thrown through the glass front of the auto landaulet, and Miss Hahan was also hurt painfully.

Mrs. Blair was unconscious when she and Miss Hahan were taken to St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, by Dr. Sydney A. Brooks. There it was found that Mrs. Blair had received a deep laceration about four inches long above the forehead, in addition to a less serious laceration under the chin. Her left eye was bruised, and both her arms and her left foot were badly sprained, according to the ambulance surgeon.

Miss Hahan received a laceration above the left eye, and mining lacerations on the left side of her face. She also was bruised about the head, and had a laceration on the neck, besides other injuries, including sprains.

At first it was feared that Mrs. Blair had been mortally injured. She was recovering from a recent illness, and her weakened condition made her injuries all the more grave. Mrs. Blair is 54 years old. Late last night she was said to be resting comfortably at the hospital, as was Miss Hahan. Mr. Blair said he hoped to remove Mrs. Blair to her home today.

Mrs. Blair was returning from New York to her country home, Ontare, at Oyster Bay. She and Miss Hahan started from the Hotel Plaza, where her son, James A. Blair, Jr., lives.

French Courts Order American Bankers to Ignore Customs Demand.

PARIS, July 15.—The French courts today ordered Henry Munroe & Co., American bankers, not to send out of France the books and papers demanded by the United States customs in connection with the case of Miss Mary A. Dolan, a dressmaker of Brookline, Mass., whose imported dresses were alleged to have been undervalued.

The court affirmed that banks must maintain absolute reserve concerning the affairs of their customers, and that they have no discretion to disclose or not to disclose their business. The judgment adds:

"The court cannot be used to facilitate the investigation of a foreign fiscal administration when such an investigation may have as its aim obvious opposition to the private or general interests of Frenchmen, and is of a nature hostile to the national commerce and will add to the insecurities and dangers which surround transactions with foreigners."

The case has aroused great interest, and has caused a sharp controversy in regard to the operations of the United States Treasury agents abroad.

LORDS STILL DEFIANT.

Reject the Plural Voting Bill, Though They Are Helpless.

LONDON, July 15.—The House of Lords today rejected by 119 to 49 votes the Plural Voting bill, which embodies the principle of "one man one vote," and provides that a man who has more than one residence must before an election select which of his votes he desires to register.

Earl Beauchamp, on behalf of the Government, intimated that the defeat of the measure was purely academic, as the Government intended to see that it went into operation before the next general election.

The bill has already passed twice through all its stages in the House of Commons.

Churchill Receives Our Cadets.

LONDON, July 15.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, held a reception in the House of Commons today for a contingent of midshipmen from the American battleship Missouri, now at Gravesend. He conversed with them for a long time, showing great interest in American methods of training and the life afloat, and in return telling his young visitors all they wanted to know about British naval cadets.

MONK RASPUTIN OUT OF DANGER

The Czar Sends His Own Physician to Attend the Court Favorite.

LATTER BLAMES HIS RIVAL

"It Is All That Cursed Iliodor," He Says—His Assailant Says He Will Yet Be Killed.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—The Czar's Court physician, Prof. Sergius Petrovitch Federoff, and the Czarina's lady-in-waiting, Mlle. Virubova, started today for Tyumen, Siberia, according to the Courier, to attend the mystic lay monk and Imperial confidante, Gregory Rasputin, who is suffering from a wound inflicted on him by a woman who tried to kill him.

Rasputin, who is now declared to be out of danger, said in an interview:

"It is all that cursed Heliodorus (Iliodor, Abbot of Tsaritsyn.) But, to the confusion of himself and all my enemies, I will live and they will have nooses put around their necks."

Heliodorus was a great rival of Rasputin in the Russian capital, whence he was recently banished owing to Rasputin's influence with the Emperor.

In a newspaper interview today Guseva, the would-be assassin, who is in jail, said she had long mediated killing Rasputin and thus "putting an end to the awful evil wrought by him in Russia by his impostures under the guise of a prophet." She declared that he had "shaken Christianity, was sowing temptation and was blasphemously mocking the most holy feelings of true believers." She added that "he enjoyed absolute immunity and had openly and without conscience ruined the lives of young girls." Guseva concluded:

"I as a simple Christian could not suffer his abuse of the Church. I wanted to kill him last year. I went to Yalta, but could not approach him, because he was so closely surrounded by aristocratic women followers.

"I regret that I failed to kill him. All, the same, he will not live. The Russian people will not endure such disgrace."

TO TAKE SLINGSBY EVIDENCE

English Probate Court Appoints a Commissioner.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—A new development has arisen in connection with the Slingsby mystery.

Over a score of American witnesses who had been brought here to give evidence regarding the claim of Lieut. Charles R. Slingsby of San Francisco to the English fortune and estates of the Rev. Charles Slingsby have been here for some weeks, but owing to the congested state of business in the Probate Court the probability is that the case cannot be heard before October.

The court has consequently ordered that the examination of the witnesses take place independently.

The case will, it is expected, take several weeks in hearing and be of a sensational character. The charge of the substitution of a child in San Francisco is the chief subject of inquiry here.

Lieut. Charles Reynard Slingsby of San Francisco inherited an English estate, but by a special provision in the will of the Rev. Charles Slingsby of England an additional estate, valued at $500,000, was to go to Lieut. Slingsby's heir.

In 1910 Mrs. Dorothy Slingsby, wife of Lieut. Slingsby, gave birth to a child in San Francisco. When testimony was taken before the District Attorney of San Francisco on a charge of false certification of birth there was testimony to show that the Slingsby heir had died and that a child belonging to a Mrs. Lillian Anderson, a California high school girl, had been substituted. Dr. W. W. Frazer of San Francisco was accused of making the alleged substitution.

Lieut. Slingsby and his wife went to England to establish the legitimacy of the child, and it is this case which is now pending. Detectives have hunted California from end to end for evidence.

DR. NORDENSKJOLD'S PLANS

Expedition to Start in September, 1915—Expenses Guaranteed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, July 15. — The Swedish-English Antarctic expedition headed by Dr. Otto Nordenskjöld will, according to an interview with him, start in September, 1915, and proceed to Graham Land. The principal station will be Antarctic Sound, from which many boats and sledging expeditions will be sent. At the same time on this station systematic biological, geoglogical and meterological observations will be made.

Dr. Nordenskjöld points out especially that he expects important results from the meteorological work. The expedition will include twelve members.

The Swedish Parliament has granted half the expenses, while the other half will be subscribed in England. This latter money has nearly all been guaranteed already.

GERMANY TO OWN WIRELESS

State to Take Station at Nauen and Open Service to New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 15.—It is announced that the Imperial Post Office authorities will shortly take possession of the great Central German Telefunken experimental wireless station at Nauen, and forthwith throw it open as a public traffic station.

It is intimated that commercial traffic to Sayville, N. Y., will then be regularly inaugurated.

DUCHESS APPEALS TO LAW.

Application Regarding Westminsters' Children Heard in Secret.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 16.—The hearing of an application before Justice Sargant in the Chancery Court regarding the Duchess of Westminster's children, Lady Ursula Mary Grosvenor and Lady Mary Constance Grosvenor, was begun today.

The application was heard in camera, so no new details were published. It is understood that the application is made on behalf of the Duchess.

KAISER DROPS FAVORITE.

Prince Fuerstenberg Said to Have Fallen from Grace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 15.—It is stated circumstantially in Berlin society circles that Prince Max Egon zu Fürstenberg, the Kaiser's chum, has fallen from grace as a result of the Emperor being made acquainted with the details of the collapse of the "Prince's Trust."

The Prince has been missing from Kiel for a week for the first time since he became the Kaiser's favorite. He is also conspicuously absent from the list of guests now touring Norwegian waters on the Hohenzollern.

The Kaiser, it is said, frequently expressed displeasure at the tactics of the Prince's Trust but absolved Prince Fürstenberg last year on his promise to refrain from speculating on the Bourse. The same reports declare that the Kaiser has visited Fürstenberg's famous Black Forest estate at Donaueschingen for the last time.

WOULD HIDE BERLIN'S HEAT.

Hotel Men Petition the Newspapers Not to Publish the Facts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 15.—Because such news is calculated to keep visitors away from Berlin, the local Hotel Owners' Association today petitioned the newspapers to refrain from emphasizing the fact that Berlin is suffering under one of the most oppressive heat waves in its history.

The association begs the papers either to "curtail" weather reports or suppress them altogether. The temperature is still between 90 and 95 degrees in the shade.

STEAMSHIP MENDOZA LOST.

German Vessel Abandoned — The 257 Passengers and Crew Saved.

BUENOS AIRES, July 15.—The German steamship Mendoza was today abandoned as a total wreck.

She went ashore on July 11 in a fog off Mogotes Point, on the Argentine Coast.

The passengers and crew, numbering 257, were all saved.

BIG ST. PETERSBURG FIRE

Raging in the Workmen's Quarter—Four Bodies Found.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—Twenty-five houses have been destroyed in a conflagration which is still raging in the workmen's quarter of St. Petersburg near the Nicholas Station.

Four bodies have been found in the ruins.

First Ascent of Moench This Year.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 15.—Thomas Brady of Baltimore, with two guides, has made the first ascent of the year of the Mönch, 13,265 feet high, one of the most difficult climbs in the Alps, from Grindelwald. Ten hours were taken in accomplishing the feat, as the going was bad.

MILITANT LASHES BRITISH MINISTER

His Butler Saves Secretary for Scotland Wood from a Bad Thrashing.

TWO WOMEN WITH WHIPS

Later, in Court, Half a Dozen Policemen Are Needed to Remove the Suffragette Furies.

LONDON, July 15.—It required half a dozen policemen to remove from the Marlborough Street Police Court today two kicking, clawing, screaming militant suffragettes, who earlier in the day had attempted to horsewhip the Right Hon. Thomas McKinnon Wood, Secretary of State for Scotland.

Only for the timely intervention of his stalwart butler it is very probable that the Secretary would have been soundly thrashed. He was just leaving his residence when a woman rushed up, horsewhip in hand, exclaiming: "You Scottish pig, if you don't stop the forcible feeding of women we shall smash you!"

The militant lashed Mr. Wood across the chest, but before she could deliver a second cut the butler, who was standing on the steps, seized her and threw her sprawling to the ground, leaving him free to tackle the second woman, who was shouting: "Let me get at the Scotch pig!"

The second woman made a rush with her whip at the Secretary, and was still struggling in the butler's grip when the police arrived and bundled both women to the police station, where they were searched. On one of them was found a decomposed egg labeled "Refreshing fruit."

In court the women gave their names as Jeanette Wallace and Bertha Watson. They were fined 20 shillings each, ($5,) but refused to pay and were sent to jail for fourteen days.

FRENCH BUDGET PASSED.

Senate and Chamber Then Adjourn—Poincare Going to Russia.

PARIS, July 15.—The Budget of 1914 was finally passed tonight by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, which then adjourned, thus enabling President Poincaré to start on his trip to Russia.

The only important difference today between the Senate and the Chamber concerned a clause which provides that if, when an estate comes to probate, it is learned that the tax on the full income has not been paid, the amount so withheld shall then be deducted from the legacies.

The Chamber passed this article and the Senate rejected it at first, but finally adopted it tonight.

President Poincaré and Premier Viviani left Paris at midnight for Dunkirk, where they will embark on the battleship France for a visit to Russia. Recently the Chamber of Deputies voted an appropriation of $80,000 to cover the expenses of the visit.

Nathan Straus Aids Simon Fund.

GENEVA, July 15.—Nathan Straus has sent $400 to the fund started here to erect a monument to Dr. Simon, one of the first martyrs to science in experiments with the Röntgen rays.

SMITH GETS MOST BOOKS.

New York Dealer Continues His Triumphant Career in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15. — George D. Smith, the New York dealer, today continued his career of conquest. The library of the late T. G. Arthur of Carrick House, Ayr, Scotland, was offered for sale at Sotheby's, and the English buyers appeared to have given up the fight.

The library contained a number of first editions of such famous authors as Byron, Carlyle, Browning, Defoe, Burns, and William Blake. Yet the only really important volume offered today which will not cross the Atlantic is Robert and James Adam's "Works in Architecture," three folio volumes published from 1773 to 1822, with 105 plates, which Quaritch bought for $640.

One of the most notable of Mr. Smith's trophies was a copy of R. Watson's "An Apology for the Bible, in a Series of Letters Addressed to T. Paine," which belonged to William Blake. Blake himself annotated it copiously on the back of the title page and on the margins. Mr. Smith paid for it $235.

Among Mr. Smith's other purchases were Barham's "Ingoldsby Legends," first edition, three volumes, uncut, 1840-47; $130.

Blake, "Descriptive Catalogue of Pictures Painted by W. Blake in Water-Colours," 1809; $122.

Blake, "Poetical Sketches by W. B.," a very fine copy of the extremely rare first edition, 1783; $280.

E. B. and Robert Browning, "Two Poems by Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning: 'A Plea for the Ragged Schools of London,' and 'The Twins,'" a presentation copy to Frederick Tennyson from the Brownings in its original covers, 1854; $205.

Robert Browning, "Dramatic Idyls, Second Series," final proof sheets with author's autograph corrections; $335.

Byron's "Hours of Idleness," first edition, presentation copy from the author to Henry Mackenzie, uncut, 1807; $147.

Byron's "Poems on Various Occasions," first edition, a very fine copy of a privately printed work, a great part of the edition of which was destroyed by the author, 1807; $840.

William Combe's "English Dance of Death," 24 monthly numbers from the designs of T. Rowlandson, uncut, 1814-16; $285.

Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe," three volumes, first edition, 1719-20; $550.

Dickens's "Sketches by Boz," first edition of both series, plates by Cruikshank, in original cloth, 1836-7; $185.

John Astley's "The Art of Riding Set Foorth in a Breefe Treatise," 1584, and Claudio Corte's "The Art of Riding," 1584, in one volume; $135.

Bacon's "The Two Bookes of F. Bacon," 1605; $105.

Cervantes's "Don Quichote," translated by T. Skelton, first English edition, 1612-20; $205.

Benjamin Franklin's edition of Cicero's "Cato Major," printed in Philadelphia in 1744; $180.

Blake's "The Gates of Paradise," with 17 plates in green paper wrappers, 1793; $360.

Blake's "Illustrations of Dante," seven plates, 1824-7; $115.

Boccaccio's "The Modell of Wit, Mirth, Eloquence, and Conversation Framed in Ten Dayes," (The Decameron,) 1625-50; $125.

Mr. Smith said after the day's sale was over that the prices had ruled extremely low. He himself bid $6,250 out of the total of $10,385, which the auction realized.

SHE LOATHED AMERICA.

And Hated New York—Letters from Respondent in Divorce Suit.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—Considerable public interest is taken in the divorce suit brought by J. B. Hissey against his wife, known on the stage as Mary Merrall, on the ground of her alleged misconduct with Albert Whelan, a well-known vaudeville artist. The names of several other men have been mentioned in the evidence, including that of an American named Sicard, with whom Hissey also accused his wife of misconducting herself.

Asked by the wife's counsel why Sicard was not named as co-respondent, Hissey replied that when he began to make inquiries about Sicard his wife made a confession about Whelan.

Mrs. Hissey went to the United States as a member of Cyril Maude's company. Some striking letters which then passed between husband and wife were read in court. Hissey in one letter said no girl on the stage in America had "the ghost of a chance." New York was full of rich young Americans "who go for girls who are unprotected."

The wife, writing from New York, said: "I loathe this country. The people are so objectionable." Further on she said: "I hate New York. All is so gaudy. It reminds me of Earl's Court all the time."

The hearing was adjourned.

HIS VOYAGE A FIASCO.

Fishing Smack Tows Holborrow and His Boat Back to Land.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—A fishing smack has towed to Plymouth the self-made sailing boat in which the cripple Holborrow set out to cross the Atlantic.

Owing to head winds Holborrow made only 60 miles in five days, and was then found by the smack drifting rapidly inshore near Plymouth.

Holborrow now says it was only for the sake of health that he embarked on the voyage.

CAT REFUSED TO SAIL.

Deserted the Empress of Ireland Before the Fatal Voyage Began.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—After a lecture at the Occult Club tonight on psychic experiences a woman speaker referred to the strange behavior of the ship's cat of the liner Empress of Ireland.

When the vessel was about to leave Quebec the cat came hurrying down the gangway, bearing two of her kittens in her mouth. Efforts were made to get her to return, but though she had made the vessel her regular home even when in ports, nothing would persuade her to go back, and she was allowed to take her abode in the shed. She consequently escaped destruction on the foundering of the vessel.

Furthermore, according to the speaker, the cat was heard to emit a long and sustained "miaou" at the very moment when the ship sank.

PROMPT DEPOSIT OF CLAFLIN NOTES

The Committee of Noteholders, Gratified by Response, Urges Quick Action on Others.

TELLS WHY THIS IS NEEDED

Best Results Obtained by Keeping Stores Going, Conserving Assets and Restricting Legal Expenses.

The Claflin Noteholders' Committee sent to the other creditor banks yesterday a circular letter emphasizing the necessity for the prompt deposit of their claims.

"There has already been deposited with the depositories of the committee," the letter said, "a large amount of the outstanding notes executed by the twenty-three corporations and indorsed by the H. B. Claflin Company. The committee is gratified at the amount of notes that have been so promptly deposited, but this is a situation where the immediate co-operation of all the noteholders is essential for the protection of their interests, and the committee again urges you to make a deposit at once of the notes held by you with one of the trust companies named below.

"The reasons, among others, which in the judgment of the committee make it advisable and necessary that immediate co-operation of the noteholders be had, are:

First.—Large amounts of notes are outstanding, executed by the twenty-three stores, and it is of greatest importance in the case of each store, without exception, that liquidation be prevented, and that the organization, good-will, and other assets, valuable only to a going business, be preserved, which can be accomplished only by practically united action by the noteholders.

Second.—If these stores can be continued as going concerns, the assets will be preserved for the benefit of the holders of the notes and other creditors of each store.

Third.—Many of the noteholders have obligations of a number of the twenty-three stores, and the committee is acting for these holders with respect to all of the stores, thus obviating the expense of employing attorneys, accountants, or agents by each noteholder in the several cities.

Fourth.—The committee is obtaining information with respect to each of the several stores as well as the H. B. Claflin Company, which will be available as soon as procured, for depositors of notes.

Fifth.—There are now twenty-four separate receiverships with the large expense unavoidably incident to such proceedings. These legal proceedings can be more expeditiously and economically terminated if the noteholders act with unanimity.

Sixth—Some of the holders of these notes are awaiting the maturity of the notes, or of some of them, before making a deposit with the committee. None of these notes will be paid at maturity, and delay in depositing is undesirable and unnecessary, and may seriously interfere with the plans for an early adjustment of the indebtedness. The committee has obtained waivers of protest from the H. B. Claflin Company, authorized by its Board of Directors, and from the receivers of the H. B. Claflin Company, given under express authority of the United States District Court. As an excess precaution the committee has arranged to have the depositary protest all the notes at a very small cost, which is to be considered a part of the expense of the committee.

"The committee," says the letter, "wishes again to impress above all else that the maintenance of the organization of the several stores, at this time, as going concerns, is of such prime importance that prompt action on the part of all concerned is necessary for the accomplishment of satisfactory results."

The members of the committee are James S. Alexander, Chairman; Lewis L. Clarke, Howland Davis, William T. Elliott, Charles W. Folds, Ernest A. Hamill, Seward Prosser, Philip Stockton, and Festus J. Wade.

B. W. Jones of 16 Wall Street is Secretary, and the depositary and its agents are the Bankers Trust Company of New York City, the Northern Trust Company of Chicago, the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia, the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, and the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston.

Judge Learned Hand of the Federal District Court, after hearing argument yesterday, reserved decision on a motion to compel J. B. Martindale and F. A. Juilliard, receivers of the H. B. Claflin Company, to return to Emanuel Shebar, a merchant of Aberdeen, Miss., $9,036.25, the remainder of a deposit of $10,000 he made with the company on Jan. 17. The money, accepted "on account," was to draw interest at 4½ per cent., payable semi-annually, and to be subject to draft.

Edward W. Drucker, Mr. Shebar's attorney, declared that the H. B. Claflin Company in accepting this deposit had illegally conducted a banking business, and would be guilty of conversion if it commingled Shebar's deposit with its own funds. He asked that the matter be sent to a Special Master to trace his client's deposit.

Henry Root Stern, representing the receivers, denied that the Claflin Company had accepted Shebar's money as a bank deposit. He pointed out that the $10,000 was deposited "on account," to cover purchases of merchandise, and called Judge Hand's attention to letters written by the Claflin Company last May to Shebar, complaining that his purchases aggregated only $800, and saying it would have to return the deposit if he did not buy more extensively. Shebar had answered promising an improvement.

A KING WAS HER CHAUFFEUR

Belgian Monarch Drove an American to Her Hotel in Territet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 15.—The King of the Belgians, one of the most democratic of European monarchs, who has been spending the past three weeks in Switzerland, is here and tells the following story.

At Territet the King and Queen were motoring. His Majesty was driving and there were no attendants. The Queen went into a shop to make some purchases.

The King was standing by the car reading a newspaper when an American woman came out of the shop, jumped into the car, which she mistook for a public conveyance, and bade the monarch to drive her quickly to her hotel. "Certainly, Madame," said the King, and deposited the woman at the hotel.

Accounts vary as to whether the King accepted or did not accept any fare.

In the meanwhile the Queen had come out of the store and was surprised to find that her husband and the car was absent. However, they speedily returned and their Majesties laughed over the story together.

Inquiries as to the identity of the American were fruitless.

INDICT LONGO KIDNAPPERS.

Five Men and One Woman Charged with Holding Boy for Ransom.

Five men and one woman were indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury for kidnapping of Frank Longo, 8 years old, of 190 Bleecker Street, who was stolen on May 13, and held until his father paid $700 for his release. Those indicted were Anthony Siragusa, said to be the chief plotter; Francisco Macalusa, Vincenzo Acena, his wife Katherina, Archillo La Rosa and Pasquale Milone.

The case will be continued before the Grand Jury today, and Assistant District Attorney Royal Weller is confident that at least four more indictments will be found. Four witnesses testified in the case on Tuesday and twelve were heard yesterday. The Longo boy remembers almost every detail of his kidnapping and his detention in the house at 53 Goerck Street. Matteo Pallazola, who is believed to have been an innocent go-between, has sent word to Mr. Weller that he believes his life is in danger. He believes that no matter what precautions are taken the band will "get" him.

The Grand Jury is investigating also the stealing of Giuseppi di Fiore, who was kidnapped in 1912 and released on the payment of $600. Two of the alleged kidnappers of the Longo boy are implicated in the di Fiore case.

DIVORCES ARE INCREASING.

So Is General Litigation, County Clerk's Statistics Show.

Divorce is increasing, according to the figures submitted to the Board of Estimate yesterday by County Clerk William F. Schneider. During the period from Jan. 1 to June 30 540 final decrees of divorce were signed by Supreme Court Justices. During the same period last year there were only 372 final decrees signed. It must be taken into account also that this year's 540 divorces were in New York County alone, while last year's divorces included decrees of residents of the Bronx.

The report of the County Clerk shows also that whereas in the first half of 1913 there were 17,355 suits started in Manhattan and the Bronx combined, 18,406 suits were started in Manhattan alone during the first half of this year. Last year there were only 75,397 papers filed in the County Clerk's office, while this year there were 77,777. Judgments have also increased in number from 10,426 in the first half of 1913 to 11,527 in the first half of this year.

Any One
Of the Vast Army

of former coffee drinkers can tell of freedom from coffee troubles since the change to Postum—

"There's a Reason"

The coffee-drug, caffeine, is a common but often unsuspected cause of headache, nervousness, heart flutter, indigestion, and various other ills.

Postum is the easy, pleasant way back to comfort. It is free from caffeine or any other drug—has fine color—a delightful Java-like taste, and is within reach of all.

Regular Postum —must be boiled—15c and 25c pkgs.
Instant Postum—a soluble powder—made in the cup with hot water instantly—30c and 50c tins.

Grocers sell both kinds, and the cost per cup is about the same.

143 YACHTS RACE IN LARCHMONT REGATTA---CUP YACHTS OUT TODAY

LARCHMONT FLEET SWARMS ON SOUND

Skillful Seamanship Required to Avoid Fouls Among 143 Yachts.

There was plenty of life and snap in the yacht racing at Larchmont yesterday, the third day of race week. The wind came from the northeast by east, a steady breeze, of considerable weight. The first legs of the courses led into the eye of the wind, and the starting line was set at practically a right angle to the first leg. As a consequence every class in the latter part of its manoeuvring approached the line from off the southerly end of it, because by so doing they were all on the starboard tack, and each helmsman felt that he would have the right of way in case of getting into close quarters. Nearly every class, too, cut the starting time pretty fine, and was almost dangerously close to the line at the signal, and class after class found itself almost aboard the committee boat, with not an inch to spare.

In the fifty-foot class, for example, Pleione struck the line exactly as the signal was sounded. She was in the middle of the fleet, and on her port bow were Barbara, Spartan, and others. Barbara, at the extreme end, called for room a few seconds before the gun fire and swung over to port; Spartan and another boat also tacked to give her room, and all came about on the starboard tack again almost immediately. Three or four minutes later the fleet spread out, some going to the southward and some to the northward.

The New York thirty-footers also made a sensational start, and several of them, including Nepsi and Okee, were compelled to jibe within a few feet of the committee boat and to swing circles in order to kill time. In the end Oriole got the advantage of the start, but she also was compelled to call for room from Okee. Both tacked to port on crossing the line and immediately swung back to starboard.

The very liveliest start of all, however, was made by the Larchmont interclub class, a fleet of ten boats, every one of which cut circles of very short diameter within a few yards of the starting line, and several of them were forced to take the port tack in order to get out from underneath the committee boat at the gun fire.

It required the most skillful sort of seamanship to avoid fouls, but there was none in this class. There was one, however, in the start of the first and second divisions of the handicap class, in which Mignon of the second division, on the port tack, came into a light collision with Joker of the first division, but sailing for the day as one of the two Bar Harbor one-design boats, and carried away some minor portion of Joker's rigging. For this she was disqualified at once and was withdrawn from the race.

The fleet numbered in all 143 yachts. All the smaller classes were well filled, there being thirteen of the Star boats, five of the Glen Cove dories, nineteen of the handicap class in the four divisions, a half dozen American dories, four of the Greenwich dories, five of the Glen Cove Jewell boats, and bugs and birds and things like that in plenty, not forgetting a half dozen of the Naval Reserve sailing cutters, which made a brave race of it with a stiff windward leg. The winner was manned by men of the First Battalion, Seventh Division, of New Rochelle, commanded by Carl Forberg.

Winners other than those already mentioned were:

Schooner class, Princess; New York Yacht Club fifty-footers, Spartan; Stamford schooner class, Hopewell; Sound schooner class, Alicia; Buzzards Bay class, Gamecock; Bar Harbor class, Joker; handicap class, first division, Amada; second division, Sally IX.; third division, Amanita IV.; fourth division, White Cap; Class R, Margaret; sonder class, Joyette; Indian Harbor class, Yaqui; bird class, Heron; Glen Cove Jewell class, Cyric; Manhasset Bay one-design class, Scylla; star class, Vega; Seawanhaka Corinthian class, Dacoit; Manhasset raceabouts, Arizona; Stamford one-design class, Dart; Orienta one-design class, Alcyone; New Rochelle one-design class, Virginia; bug class, Dragonfly; American dory class, Alice; Greenwich dory class, Squaw; butterfly class, Cabbage.

Handicap Allowances for Today.

Allowances of the yachts of the Handicap Yacht Racing Class sailing in the regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club today will be as follows:

First Division—Joker, Okee, and Alert, scratch; Dorinda, 2 per cent.; Amada, 3½ per cent.; Edena, 1 per cent.; Rohilla, 1 per cent.; Senora, 2½ per cent.; Heron, ½ per cent.

Second Division—Mignon, scratch; Sally IX., 2 per cent.; Victory, 5½ per cent.; Tillicum II., 6½ per cent.; Nadia, 8 per cent.; Clare, 2¼ per cent.; Sentana, 6 per cent.; Red Wing, 1 per cent.; Ariel, 2 per cent.; Kenmure, 4 per cent.; Lillian, 3½ per cent.; Mist, 7½ per cent.; Alerion, 3½ per cent.

Third Division—Natoma and Amanita IV., scratch; Robin Hood III., 8½ per cent.; Cliphora, 4 per cent.; Twinkle, ½ per cent.; Peg, 3 per cent.

Fourth Division—Mediator, Kenosha, and Solita, scratch; Blue Bill, 6 per cent.; Insurgent, 8 per cent.; White Cap, 18½ per cent.; Grace II., 12½ per cent.

GEORGE V. THANKS BOXERS.

King Acknowledges Message of Carpentier and Smith.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 15.—The boxing boom which has set all London and Paris in a fever will reach its height tomorrow, when Gunboat Smith and Georges Carpentier will meet at Olympia in a contest for the white heavyweight championship of the world.

The booking for seats for the fight has broken all records. It is estimated that 12,000 persons will be present and pay $75,000 for the privilege of seeing the contest.

The royal box has been taken, and it is presumed that a royal personage will be present, but his identity is not revealed.

Dick Burge, the promoter of the contest, sent a message to the King on behalf of his boxers and received the following reply through the King's secretary:

"I am commanded to express his Majesty's thanks for the message contained in your telegram on behalf of M. Georges Carpentier and Mr. Edward Smith and for the sentiment to which it gives expression."

The spectators of the fight will include many peers. The applications for tickets indicate the attendance of an unprecedented number of women. The contest will be witnessed by, among others, Lords Lonsdale, Curzon, Caledon, Vivian, Denbigh, Fielding, Faber, Louth, Titchfield, and Dalmeny.

It is hinted that M. Maeterlinck, who is a great admirer of Carpentier, will also be present.

A great deal of money is at stake over the contest. Carpentier, whatever the result, will get $20,000. Smith receives $15,000 if he wins and $10,000 whatever happens. The betting indicates that Carpentier is slightly the favorite, the odds being 6 to 5 on him.

Over 400 officers and men from the battleships Missouri and Illinois, now anchored at Gravesend, came up to London today on leave especially to witness the fight. Their interest centres chiefly around the fact that Smith was formely a member of the Missouri's crew.

FOG STOPS CYCLE RACES.

Blanket of Mist Prevents 30-Mile Event at Brighton Motordrome.

A heavy fog settled over the track and caused the postponement of the thirty-mile motor paced race at the Brighton Beach Motordrome last night.

Five events were run off before the fog thickened. The three-mile handicap amateur bicycle race was the most interesting contest, George Bowker, with 275 yards, outlasting the big field and finished first by three lengths. Joseph O'Shea, with 425 yards, was second, and Louis Hiban, with 300 yards, third. The time was 6:13 2-5. A field of thirty started in the event and were well bunched until the finish after the first mile.

P. S. Kane of the Empire City Wheelmen, while riding in a front position in the third heat of the two-thirds-mile open race, run in three heats and a final for amateurs, blew out his front tire, causing a bad spill. Kane was picked up unconscious. He was severely bruised about the face and arms. Harry Kaiser finished first in the final heat in 1:26 2-5. A. O. Lake was a close second and Jerry Nunziato third. Tom Bello finished third, but was disqualified for "switching," throwing his rear wheel into the rider behind him.

The two-thirds-mile novice race went to P. Brock in 1:22 2-5. The second prize was taken by E. Bell.

Saturday night the five-mile professional race will be run, with Kramer, Rutt, and all the other professionals competing, along with a programme of twenty other events, including a match race between Caesar Moretti and Alfred Grenda.

MACKIE EASTERN CHAMPION.

Fox Hills "Pro" Takes Golf Title by Two Strokes Margin.

Special to The New York Times.

WATER GAP, Penn., July 15.—Maintaining the excellent form that he displayed yesterday, Isaac Mackie of Fox Hills won the Eastern open golf championship at the Shawnee County Club today, with the remarkably good score, considering the conditions, of 305. This was two strokes better than the score turned in by Joe Mitchell, with whom he played. Mitchell was leading in the afternoon round until the thirty-first hole, where Mackie got on even terms again. At the thirty-second hole Mackie took the lead, and finishing up with a four to a five by Mitchell on the last hole, secured the championship.

The prize winners were: Isaac Mackie, shield, $250, and gold medal; Joe Mitchell, silver medal and $250; J. M. Barnes, $75; Tom Anderson, $50; Mike Brady, $30; Alec Smith, $25. Herbert Strong and Walter Hagan divided seventh and eighth prizes of $25.

FOUR CALIFORNIANS WIN.

Miss Browne and Sister Easy Victors in Clay Court Tennis.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—With all the matches in the fourth round of the fifth annual clay court championship tennis tournament completed, four Californians, one Minnesotan, and three Ohioans remain tonight to contest for championship honors in the men's singles. Elia Fottrell and Clarence Griffi of San Francisco, Nat Browne and Claude Ways of Los Angeles, P. J. Armstrong of St. Paul, and R. A. Holden, Jr., Clifford Lockhorn, and H. T. Emerson, all of Connecticut, won their way into the fifth round today.

In the ladies' singles both Miss Mary Browne of Los Angeles, national woman champion, and her sister, Mrs. R. H. Williams of Chicago won their way into the fourth round, as did also the Misses Madell and Mary Lyons of Louisville.

Probably the most exciting match of the day was between Holden and C. M. Rodgers of Knoxville, Tenn. The match went three sets, and there were few games that were not deuced. The local boy seemed to have more endurance than the Southerner, however, and won the final set rather handily.

English Davis Cup Team Named.

R. D. Wrenn, Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee of Management, announced yesterday that he had received cable messages from Germany and England, respectively. The German players, Otto Froitzheim and Oscar Kreutzer, are now on their way across the ocean on the steamship Amerika, which will arrive in Boston July 24, one message said. The Germans will at once go to the Alleghany Country Club, near Pittsburgh, to play the winning team of the Canadian-Australian ties. The English Association of London cabled the nominations of Arthur H. Lowe, J. C. Parke, T. M. Mavrogordato, and Lieut. A. R. F. Kingscote as the team which will represent the British in the final matches for the eight to challenge America. These matches will be played at Boston. The challenge matches for the cup will be played at the West Side Tennis Club of this city on Aug. 13, 14, and 15.

Central New York Tennis.

UTICA, N. Y., July 15.—The fourth round of play for the $1,000 trophy in the Central New York championship tennis tournament being held on the courts of the Yahnundasis Golf Club today recorded the retirement of Harry Greenough of Boston, who startled the tourney yesterday by defeating E. R. McCormick, the Pacific Coast interscholastic champion. Dr. Rosenbaum of New York today defeated Greenough, 7—5 and 6—1. H. L. Hahn, the other California expert, was successful in his match with Fred Baggs of New York, and will play J. P. Steinkempf of New York in the semi-finals. Rosenbaum will play Whitney of Boston.

Wolffe Abandons Channel Swim.

BOULOGNE, July 15.—Jabez Wolffe, English amateur long-distance swimmer, was forced by a rising wind and sea to abandon his attempt to swim across the English Channel today. He had reached mid-Channel.

CUP YACHT VANITIE TO BE MUCH LIGHTER

Top Hamper Weight Reduced 400 Pounds—Trial Race at Newport Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 15.—Important changes were begun today on the Cochran cup candidate yacht Vanitie in an effort to increase her speed for the three trial races which begin tomorrow. When the vessel goes out tomorrow she will carry a new gaff 247 pounds lighter than the old one, and she will have aluminum spars on her club topsail, the pair being more than 150 pounds lighter than the old club and yard, which were of wood.

The total reduction of her top hamper weight will exceed 400 pounds, and it is estimated that this is equivalent to the removal of more than one and one-half tons of lead from her keel. One of the faults with Vanitie has been that she was too heavy, and this has caused her to "hobby horse" in a rolling sea. That Alexander Smith Cochran, her owner, is determined to get the boat down to racing weight is further shown by the fact that an aluminum gaff is now on its way here from Lawley's shipyard in Boston. If the new wooden one is not light enough, the aluminum gaff will get a trial.

The old gaff, which was of Oregon pine and weighed 847 pounds, was taken off this afternoon. This spar was made in two strips hollowed out and glued together. The new one is made in eight strips, put together like the staves of a barrel. One of the strips is Oregon pine, the others white pine. The total weight is 600 pounds. This spar alone means a difference of a ton in ballast.

With the top hamper lightened, the vessel will be less tender in a breeze, and it seems quite certain that more ballast will have to be taken out. The changes kept Capt. Harry Haff and his crew busy all day, and Vanitie did no sailing.

The gaff now on its way is 47 feet long, 10 inches in diameter, and is made of rolled aluminum plate three-sixteenths of an inch thick. With it is another aluminum club, which is 55 feet long.

Resolute took a short spin in the harbor, circling Dyer's Island, and returning to her anchorage after an hour this afternoon. Her tender, Cape Cod, steamed up to the Herreshoff yard in Bristol, and returned with a new mainsail. Defiance did not stir from her anchorage, her officers and crew enjoying the holiday that George M. Pynchon, the Managing Director, had promised them.

The races tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday will be held under the auspices of the Yacht Racing Association of Newport.

SHAMROCK SAILS JULY 18.

Cup Challenger Will Be Convoyed to New York by Lipton's Erin.

GOSPORT, England, July 15.—Everything is ready for the departure on July 18 for the United States of Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup. Her compasses have been adjusted, her ketch rig fitted and the steam yacht Erin, also belonging to Sir Thomas Lipton, is waiting to convoy her across the Atlantic.

"Shamrock IV. has done all that has been asked of her," is the final word of Charles E. Nicholson, the designer. He admits, however, that the trial boat was in no way satisfactory as the type of opponent which would enable yachtsmen accurately to gauge Shamrock IV.'s chances of lifting the America's Cup.

Underwriters at Lloyds are not so optimistic as Mr. Nicholson concerning Shamrock IV.'s chances. Their estimate today was roughly 3 to 1 against the challenger. In other words, they are issuing policies at a premium of 35 per cent. to pay the total loss if Shamrock IV. should prove successful. A similar risk in connection with an aeroplane flight across the Atlantic during the present year is being covered at 8 per cent.

The crew of Shamrock IV., numbering more than thirty men, is to be divided during the voyage across, half of the sailors luxuriating on board the Erin as far as the Azores and then relieving their shipmates for the remainder of the journey.

OUIMET MEDALIST IN GOLF.

Open Champion Leads Big Field in Massachusetts Tournament.

NEWTON, Mass., July 15.—Francis Ouimet, national open golf champion, led a record field today in the qualifying round of the State amateur championship over the links of the Brae Burn Country Club. Ouimet's score was 77, three better than that of the second low scorer, R. R. Gorton of the home club, with 80. Two former State amateur champions, Percival Gilbert of Brae Burn and Arthur G. Lockwood of Belmont, failed to qualify among the first thirty-two eligible for medal play.

John C. Anderson of Brae Burn, another former champion and runner-up to Jerome D. Travers for the national title last year, barely won a place, with 87.

With the exception of Gorton, the best players in the field of ninety starters were at least five strokes behind Ouimet's card. Among those qualifying were: P. W. Whittemore of the Country Club, 82; W. C. Chick of Brae Burn, 82; V. S. Lawrence of Woodland, 82; R. C. Lehane of Commonwealth, 82; L. B. Paten of Homestead, 83; B. W. Esterbrook of Brae Burn, 83; R. D. Pierce of Brae Burn, 83; C. T. Dunham of North Adams, 83; H. H. Wilder, the Country Club, 83; Frank H. Hoyt of Woodland, 84.

Raymond Ouimet, brother of the champion, and himself junior amateur State title holder, qualified with 88 in his first open tournament competition.

Maryland Track Denied License.

At a meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club, held at the office of the Chairman, August Belmont, 43 Exchange Place, yesterday, Schuyler L. Parsons was appointed Steward to represent The Jockey Club at Saratoga. The approval of the Stewards of The Jockey Club was granted the Maryland Jockey Club to conduct a race meeting at Pimlico from Nov. 2 to 12, and to the Harford Agricultural and Breeders' Association at Havre de Grace, Md., from Nov. 13 to 30. The application of the Southern Maryland Fair Association to conduct a meeting at a track not completed from Nov. 13 to 30 was denied, as all available dates had been allotted.

JOHNSON KNOCKS JEANNETTE OUT

Referee Would Not Decide Claim of Foul, but Allowed Bout to be Resumed.

"In order to prevent an unsatisfactory ending," as Joe Humphreys solemnly announced, Joe Jeannette, the big negro heavyweight, was allowed three minutes to recover and was then permitted to resume the bout after being knocked out for the prescribed ten seconds and considerably more in the first round of his encounter with Battling Jim Johnson at the Stadium A. C. last night.

Jeannette and his backers claimed that the blow which knocked him out was a foul—below the belt—but Referee Billy Joh said he did not see the blow. Under those circumstances there appeared to be only two things to do, either declare Johnson a winner on a knockout or disqualify Johnson for hitting a foul blow.

Before Joh found a third way of getting out of the difficulty, however, a way which will probably force him to do some explaining in the future and which naturally caused considerable criticism, by ruling that Jeannette could go on with the bout after three minutes to recuperate. Joh refused to rule either that the blow was foul or fair.

Those who expected Jeannette to return to the ring and beat his overweight opponent were much surprised. Johnson fought Jeannette to a standstill in the remaining nine rounds, and the best that Jeannette could expect, even with the foul or fair knockout in the first round crossed off the book, was a draw.

Johnson's remarkable showing was a big surprise. He was vastly different from the unwieldy boxer who was unmercifully beaten in his previous engagement with Jeannette at the Stadium recently, even though he had reduced his weight only ten pounds since that bout. His weight was announced last night as 220 pounds. His weight in the previous bout was 230. The rubber belt which he wore around his stomach in the previous bout was not in evidence, although it might have been covered up by an extremely high pair of trunks.

The knockout came after a wild exchange of blows. Johnson had evidently taken Jeannette by surprise when he started at once to lead instead of going on the defensive, and he hammered away at his opponent with both hands. Driving him over in the corner, Johnson swung a left to Jeannette's stomach. The latter fell to the floor and remained there for the count. The knockout came so suddenly that the crowd did not realize it at first, but in a moment everything was in an uproar. Johnson stood as if waiting for Jeannette to rise, but was called back to his corner by his seconds, while Jeannette was carried to his corner.

Jeannette soon recovered, however, and was anxious to resume. The announcement that he would be allowed to go on came as a stunning surprise. Boxing followers at the ringside found no precedent for such an action. The only statement Joh would make was, "I didn't see the blow."

Although he appeared to be unwieldy Johnson showed agility and some little science, more than was expected, anyway, and at no time did Jeannette have him in trouble. The tenth round was a furious slam-bang affair, with the honors about even.

Leaving the questionable knockout out of consideration it was a fair draw.

"COME AND SEE"

To all who love the motor car and who wish to see its best expression we say, with that sublime confidence with which Philip answered Nathaniel, "Come and See."

Lower, swifter, lighter, more flexible, quieter, more comfortable, the Pierce-Arrow Car has gone forward more definitely this year than ever before.

The Pierce-Arrow Car today is the least common multiple of a long list of improvements too numerous to catalog here, but which can be observed in a single experience. Our enthusiasm is justifiable.

YANKEES BREAK EVEN--GIANTS TOSS GAME AWAY---RACING AT YONKERS--TENNIS

UMPIRE AROUSES IRE OF SOX AND FANS

Spectators Resent Poor Decision and Chicago Players Protest When Game Is Called.

If ever a man was boiling mad, it was Jimmy Callahan as he stood in the darkness at the Polo Grounds last night after the double header between the White Sox and the Yankees, and told Mr. Hildebrand what a poor umpire he was. Hildebrand called the game after seven and a half innings, with the Yanks in front by a score of 2 to 1. He stopped the game on account of darkness. It was dark all right, but Manager Callahan wanted another chance to chop down the New Yorks' narrow lead.

Callahan said he would protest the game. He said it was plenty light enough to finish it. He talked right down into Hildebrand's face and placed one hand on his shoulder—but not in kindness. As a matter of fact, it had long ceased to be day. It was dark enough to burglarize a bank.

Hildebrand was in a bad way. He was being heckled by Callahan on one side for calling the game and on the other by hundreds of New York fans for a bad decision in the first game. He was getting it coming and going. When the crowd surrounded him he jumped into one of the boxes and escaped under the grand stand, closely followed by Bill Dineen. No casualties.

Taking it all in all, it was a turbulent afternoon. The White Sox won the first game by a score of 3 to 2 and were quite lucky, because the Yankees in the ninth inning uncorked a rally which almost carried them through flying. After the Yanks had used up Scott and Cicotte, "Iron Man" Faber came in and repulsed the vicious assault of the Chancemen. He arrived just in time.

That first tilt seethed with excitement. The Yanks made a run in the first inning, when Maisel got a three bagger and scored on an out. In the third the Sox tied the score. Weaver singled and Blackburn sacrificed. Demmitt fouled out and Collins walked. Fournier's single scored Weaver.

Ray Demmitt put the Sox in the lead in the fifth by pumping a homer into the right field grand stand. Then along in the eighth Fournier got a home run. This gives Demmitt and Fournier enough free socks to last them all season. Later on in the day "Ping" Bodie also put in a big stock of hosiery.

Now comes the seething ninth of the Yankees. Cook singled to right. Nunemaker struck out and Ray Caldwell was called upon to pinch hit for Cy Pieh, who had succeeded Warhop, Jack being extracted in a previous inning to allow Ed Sweeney to make a single. Caldwell poked the ball into the right field stand, and it looked as if the Yanks had pulled the game out of the fire. Umpire Dineen said it was foul by inches, so Caldwell returned, only to strike out.

Truesdale walked. Scott was getting very wild and when he had given three balls to Maisel, Scott was taken out and Cicotte went to the rescue. Cicotte passed Maisel, filling the bases. It looked shaky for the Sox. Hartzell fouled several balls, one a high fly right over tht Yankees' bench. With undaunted gameness Catcher Mayer went after it and almost broke his neck as he tumbled into the dug-out, and after risking his life in that way missed the ball anyway.

Cicotte walked Hartzell, forcing Cook over the plate with a run. At this point Jimmy Callahan, Kid Gleason, and a dozen others held an open convention in the pitcher's box and drew straws to see what should be done. The "Iron Men," Walsh, Russell, and Faber, were lined up, all ready to work. The job finally fell to Faber, after a close vote, and he came in and saved the day, as Capt. Peckinpaugh hoisted a fly to Blackburn.

King Cole pitched great ball in the second game, and the Soxs's only run was made by Ping Bodie, when he hammered the ball into the left field bleachers in the seventh inning. Joe Benz, the butcher boy, was pulled out of the game after the Yanks had scored their two runs in the third. Cicotte had to take up the rescue work again, and held the Yanks safe to the end.

In the third inning, after Truesdale went out at first, Hartzell walked. Peckinpaugh hit to right, sending Hartzell to third. Cree got an infield hit, scoring Hartzell. Mullen singled to center and Peckinpaugh scored. Cook forced Mullen at second, and after Benz had failed to get the ball over for Sweeney, Cicotte succeeded him and Sweeney walked. Maisel went out at first for the third out.

Bodie was the first man up in the seventh. His high fly bounded off the railing of the left field bleachers among the fans. The Sox had the makings of a rally in the eighth. Blackburn was safe on Hartzell's error. Demmit singled to left and Blackburn hurried around to third base. Hartzell made a fine throw in from left and Blackburn was out sliding into the base. Blackburn protested loudly and was put out of the game. Collins flied to Hartzell and Collins lofted to Cook in right. Umpire Hildebrand then called the game. The scores:

Senators Tie the Tigers.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Detroit and Washington played a 3-to-3 tie here today, the game being called at the end of the eighth inning to allow the visitors to catch a train. Detroit scored a run in the first inning on Purtell's double and McBride's error. Bush's triple and Purtell's sacrifice fly gave another run in the third, and the last came in the fourth on three successive singles off Boehling. Engel relieved Boehling at that point and ended the scoring. Washington scored twice in the third on triples by Boehling and Moeller and a sacrifice fly. Morgan's home run in the seventh off Dauss tied the score. The score:

Umpire Banishes Eight Players.

BOSTON, July 15.—Boston shut out Cleveland, 4 to 0, today, making it four straight for the series. Leonard pitched great ball, holding the visitors hitless and striking out five men during the first four innings. Cleveland bunched two hits in the seventh with one out, but Chapman's fly was taken on the run by Rehg, and Leibold struck out. Eight of the local players were sent from the dugout to the dressing room by Umpire Connolly for uncomplimentary remarks about the visitors. The score:

Fraternity Backs Up Kraft.

The Baseball Players' Fraternity, of which David L. Fultz is President, has issued a statement in relation to the case of Clarence O. Kraft, the player who has been ordered to report to the Nashville club. Kraft is claimed by Newark of the International League, which is of a higher classification than the Nashville club.

The fraternity will stand back of Kraft, and has advised him to stay in Newark, despite the verdict of the commission that he report to Nashville. President Fultz explains in his statement that at Cincinnati, when the agreement was drawn up between the players' organization and the National Commission, it was provided that:

"Before a major league player shall be released outright or under an optional agreement to Class A or a lower classification, his services shall first be tendered to all Class AA clubs at a price notto exceed $1,000, and then to Class A clubs at a price not to exceed $750. If he be a drafted player the club from which he was drafted shall have prior claim to all other clubs in its classification."

Flag Raised, but Too Wet for Games

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—While thunder endeavored to drown out the music of two bands, the world's championship flag which the Philadelphia Americans won last Fall was raised at Shibe Park this afternoon. Through miniature lakes and ankle-deep mud the visiting St. Louis Americans and the champion Athletics paraded the field, and during a momentary let-up in the almost continuous thunder showers which fell all day the pennant was hoisted to the top of the pole. Both games of the double-header scheduled for today were postponed.

Paterson Players Climb Higher.

TESREAU'S WILDNESS COSTS GIANTS GAME

Forces in Enough Runs to Beat His Team—Should Have Blanked Cubs.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 15.—Jeff Tesreau presented Chicago with a game this afternoon and the Cubs got an even break in the series with the Giants. The score was 5 to 4 with the Cubs on the long end, but it should have been 4 to 0 in favor of the Giants. Jeff forced the first Cub run across by hitting Zimmerman when the bases were full. In the fourth he walked Bresnahan and the pass blossomed into another run. In the ninth, with two out and the bases loaded, Jeff could not locate the plate and passed Zimmerman, forcing in another run. Schulte followed with a double, which scored two more.

When the West Siders came up for their turn at bat in the ninth nearly half the crowd had left the park. Williams halted them for a second by singling. They stopped dead still when Leach followed with another hit and then started on their way again when Good fanned. Here Tesreau played an important part in the final figures by failing to cover first base on Saier's tap and the sacks were loaded. Zimmerman walked, forcing one run home and then came Schulte's performance.

Red Murray, who had been substituted for Robertson for just such an occasion, started back with the swing. Bescher came over from centre. Murray reached the ball just as it bounded against the fence, then let it roll away, while he ran for the clubhouse. There was no chance to head off the deciding marker at the plate. And the game was over.

Teaming it with Schulte for the leading honors was Charley Smith, last hope of Manager O'Day, and a pitcher who has not been able to go through a full nine-inning game this season. It was more or less of a last chance with him, and he pitched a skillful exhibition, making up for his lack of curves and speed with his ability to judge the batters. Outside of the third inning he pitched a clever game.

Three of the New Yorkers' hits were bunched in this third round, an error helping the Giants to three runs. Stock's single, Bescher's walk, and Doyle's single netted two, and then Sweeney's miscue off Robertson put the Giants in a position to make a double steal, which sent one tally more over the plate. From the third until the ninth the leaders were held to one hit, while two came together in the ninth and Merkle scored their fourth run.

McGraw picked Tesreau to pitch the windup contest, because "Big Jeff" was the only member of his flock who had succeeded in standing off the Cub hitters. He won Sunday's game without much effort, but today it was different.

As early as the third inning the Cubs showed signs of pounding Tesreau, but he braced in the pinch with the bases loaded and one out, and managed to get through with only one run against him. Singles by Leach and Good, along with walks to Saier and Zimmerman, went for one marker. Schulte then fanned and Sweeney skied to right. In the fourth Bresnahan's walk, Smith's single and Leach's sacrifice fly made the second game. The score:

Reds Rally in Eighth and Win.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—Cincinnati rallied in the eighth inning and, assisted by Mattison's wildness and an error by Byrne, scored enough runs to win from Philadelphia today, 6 to 4. After one out in the eighth, Mollwitz singled and Miller and Erwin obtained bases on balls. This was enough for Mattison and Mayer relieved him. Hoblitzel sent up a sacrifice fly, scoring Mollwitz. Moran then singled to short, bringing home Uhler, who ran for Miller and afterward entered the game as centre fielder. Then Byrne fumbled Herzog's drive and La Ross, running for Erwin, scored. Killifer and Groh were banished from the field for disputing the decisions of the umpires. Score:

SUPERBAS LOSE ON ERRORS.

Pittsburgh Outbatted, but Took Advantage of Brooklyn's Misplays.

PITTSBURGH, July 15.—Although outbatted, Pittsburgh took advantage of Brooklyn's errors today and won, 4 to 3. Pittsburgh obtained a two-run lead, but the visitors bunched hits in the seventh and eighth innings and tied the score. Mowrey's single, a wild pitch by Allen and a single by Viox, gave the Pirates the winning run in the eighth. Mensor, the first Pirate to bat, hit a home run, the first made by a local player here this season. The score:

FAVORITES SPLIT CARD AT YONKERS

Outsiders Get an Equal Share of the Purses and It's Poor Day for Bettors.

A heavy track at the Empire City race course yesterday made a lot of trainers decline to run their horses, so that only about half those entered took part in the races. Outsiders and favorites divided the honors, the outsiders taking the first half of the card, much to the disgust of the players. When the favorites began winning they were at too short a price for the players to recoup themselves. Butwell and McCabe were the successful jockeys, each riding two winners.

Loud tips, widely circulated, made Mabel Montgomery and Tamira the most heavily played pair to win the opening clash. Egmont upset calculations, however, by winning in a drive from Mabel Montgomery, the latter closely pressed by Dixie, and Tamina next to the last in the bunch to finish. Thus the good things began going wrong.

Young Emblem was the one to be tumbled over in the next race by Captain Swanson, which was the second choice in the betting. The race proved to be entirely a contest between that pair, Young Emblem getting well away in front and holding the lead to the head of the stretch. There Captain Swanson caught him, raced him to a standstill in less than a hundred yards, opened up a lead of a half-dozen lengths and come on to win, eased up, with Young Emblem under a drive and a couple of lengths behind him as they passed the judges.

Desparity won the third race at a mile handily.

Just when every one had tired of backing the favorite the fourth race came along with its ten entries reduced to three by scratches. Disgusted backers plunged on either Gipsy Love or Belray to beat the favorite, Isidora, which was at the prohibitive odds of 7 to 10. As is customary under such circumstances the favorite won handily, Isidora never being headed from flag fall to finish. Gipsy Love gave her a stiff challenge in the run around the far turn but it was "a flash in the pan," as she stopped badly by the time the stretch was reached. So Isidora had things her own way from that on.

The summary:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds; selling; $400 added; five and a half furlongs. Time—1:10 2-5.

INDEPENDENCE CUPS POLO.

Meadow Brook Magpies Victors Over Speeders in Final Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 15.—The final game for the Independence Cups, as well as the last match of the annual polo tournament of the Rockaway Hunting Club, was played here this afternoon, and resulted in a victory for the Meadow Brook Magpies over the Meadow Brook Speeders, by 10 goals to 5. The Speeders were allowed one goal by handicap. Owing to the slippery field fast riding was impossible, but the game was fast enough to be interesting at all times. Thomas Le Boutillier, 2d, and T. A. Gatins came croppers, owing to the poor condition of the field, but neither was hurt. Rene La Montagne, the internationalist, refereed the match because of the absence of Capt. George A. Miller, who was incapacitated by a fall he received while refereeing a game here on Monday. The ine-up and summary:

MEADOW BROOK SPEEDERS.	H'cap.	MEADOW BROOK MAGPIES.	H'cap.
1—E. Morgan	1	1—E. L. Appleton	2
2—T. Le Boutillier, 2d	2	2—Davis Dows	2
3—R. Bacon, Jr.	1	3—P. I. Downey	1
Back—T. Gatins	2	Back—H. Phipps	2
Total	6	Total	7

Speeders—Allowed by handicap, 1; by earned goals, 4. Magpies—Earned goals, 10. Goals scored: First period—Gatins, 5:35; Appleton, 1:16. Second period—Appleton, 1:45; Dows, 4:15. Third period—Morgan, 7:30. Fourth period—Gatins, 2:57; Phipps, 1:04; Dows, 1:19. Fifth period—Downey, 4:47; Dows, 1:14. Sixth period—Gatins, 6:24; Phipps, 1:30. Seventh period—No score. Eighth period—Downey, 2:35; Dows, 4:13. Time of game—Eight periods of seven and one-half minutes each. Referee—Rene La Montagne. Scorer and timer—Robert Hunter.

Squadron A Reds Defeated at Polo.

Though the polo field at Van Cortlandt Park was wet and heavy from rain, the poloists of Squadron A managed to play through six periods of practice yesterday. E. Ely, E. C. Smith, R. Hunt, and H. W. Cram, known as the Whites, triumphed over the Reds, made up of T. H. Strong, W. Bolton, S. M. Rumboueh, and H. E. Holt, by 5 goals to 4, Ely putting the winning goal through the Reds' posts in the fourth period.

The Whites made earnest efforts to catch their opponents in the last two frames, but lacked one goal of tying the count. Strong and Bolton started in the first period as if they were going to make a runaway of the game, but their flurry soon subsided, and Cram and Hunt each registered a goal in both the second and third periods. Ely scored once in the fourth, and in the fifth Holt gave the Reds another. Bolton scored single-handed in the sixth, shortly after the opening bell, but for the remainder of the period there was no scoring, although the ball was in the proximity of the Whites' goal most of the time.

Evers Hurt, Out for Several Days.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—Second Baseman Johnny Evers of the Boston National League Club probably will be out of the game for several days. In the seventh inning of Monday's game he was spiked by Cruise, as the latter slid into second base. He played Tuesday, but today the wound was inflamed, and the club trainer advised a lay-off.

BUNDY LOSES FIRST TENNIS TEST MATCH

Prentice Defeats Californian Doubles Champion 2 Sets to 1 in Seabright Tournament.

Competition in the Davis Cup test tennis matches on the turf courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club yesterday did not furnish the high standard of play looked for by the International Selection Committee. This was due to the heavy courts, which prevented the players from appearing at their best, but in spite of this handicap several interesting matches were witnessed by a good gallery. The second round of the singles was completed and four matches in the doubles decided.

Thomas E. Bundy of California and joint holder of the doubles national championship with Maurice E. McLoughlin, made his first appearance in the East this season. While Bundy has never been considered a strong singles player, he has invariably put up a good contest when opposed by ranking players. He failed to impress the spectators and went down to a three-set defeat before Bernon S. Prentice by the score of 6—0, 2—6, 6—3. Bundy was not in form, due to the fact that he had just reached the East after nearly a week on the train, and under these conditions he did not display any real form.

Prentice, who has not been seen in much first-class tennis recently, put up a strong game. He appeared to be able to pass Bundy almost at will, and took the latter's service with little apparent effort. He was quick to realize that Bundy was in poor physical condition and forced the Californian all over the court. Prentice played a good driving game and brought off a number of well-judged placement shots. He blanked Bundy in the opening set and found little difficulty in breaking through his opponent's service. Prentice eased up in the second set and Bundy showed improved form, winning, 6—2. The pace told on the Californian, and in the third set he was unable to make any headway against the aggressive attack of Prentice.

The failure of the newly formed combination, R. Norris Williams and William M. Johnston, the Californian, to get into action was a disappointment, as the pairing was made with a view to developing a Davis Cup doubles. Williams and Johnston were scheduled to play William A. Larned and Robert D. Wrenn, but the latter pair defaulted. The winners will play A. S. Dabney and N. W. Niles in the second round today, when the members of the International Committee expect to be able to form an estimate of the strength of the combination. Niles and Dabney, who reached the second round through a victory over C. M. Bull, Jr., and H. A. Plummer, form a strong team, as they have been playing together for some time. The summaries:

Achelis Cup, Men's Singles.—Second Round—George Peabody Gardner defeated Robert Le Roy, 6—1, 6—2; A. S. Dabney defeated N. W. Niles, 10—12, 6—1, 6—2; William J. Clothier defeated Lyle E. Mahan, 6—4, 3—6, 10—8; R. Lindley Murray defeated Wallace F. Johnson, 6—2, 6—3; R. Norris Williams defeated Frederick C. Inman, 6—3, 6—4.

Men's Doubles.—First Round—William J. Clothier and George P. Gardner defeated Bernon S. Prentice and George L. Wrenn, Jr., 6—4, 8—6; George M. Church and Dean Mathey defeated Walter Merrill Hall and Lyle E. Mahan, 6—3, 6—4; A. S. Dabney and N. W. Niles defeated Charles M. Bull, Jr., and H. A. Plummer, 6—2, 6—3; R. Norris Williams and William F. Johnston defeated William A. Larned and Robert D. Wrenn by default.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1914.

HUERTA'S ENDING.

President Huerta has resigned. His resignation is accepted by the Deputies, and Francisco Carbajal rules as Provisional President in Mexico City. The revolutionary leader, Villa, assumes that, with the doffing of the Presidency, Huerta will again put on the General and will take the field. But the Mexican revolution has been won—not in the riven republic, but at Niagara Falls, at Washington.

Woodrow Wilson is the restorer of peace in Mexico, not by invoking the horrors of war, but by virtue of reason among nations. Whether the fallen dictator now leaves the country or remains to die fighting or a captive is of little moment in Mexican history. President Carbajal is a man of peace, who would offer little resistance to the forces of Carranza. Powers are now in being in Mexico, which, we believe, will effectually prevent a long military occupation of the capital.

DIRECTORS RESPONSIBLE.

The responsibility of the Directors for the mismanagement of public utility corporations — especially the New Haven Railway—resembles that of the shareholders in that it has a dual aspect. The shareholders and the Directors are responsible both toward the public and toward the property. This is indisputable in the cases of Directors who also are shareholders, and the law often requires such ownership in order to fix in one person the responsibility of both the official and the owner.

No Director can hide behind the responsibility of the shareholder, like the wife behind the husband. Crime is personal, and the community is a unit for the punishment of crime. No owner can authorize the commission of crime, and no official can suggest that owners are responsible for crimes committed by him, with or without the owners' authorization. For example, in the New Haven case there are allegations of bribery. The allegation having been made on official authority, it should be followed through, and should be pressed, especially by those placed under suspicion. They cannot be regarded as criminals until the crime is proved, and that may suffice to keep them out of prison even if guilty when proof is impossible. But it will not satisfy honorable men, ambitious for the regard of their fellow-citizens as well as to preserve their freedom. They should demand that the assailants of their integrity should make their words good, and not rest satisfied with the refusal of somebody else to prosecute.

Public officials have dual responsibility as well as Directors. In their capacity as citizens with knowledge of crime it is the duty of the accusers to see that the accusation does not fail for lack of attention of the Grand Jury, in whatever jurisdiction they can proceed. Until the allegations are proved or disproved the accused rest under suspicion. The accusers bear the burden of being possibly false witnesses against their neighbors. There is no tenderness for crime in declaring that the reign of terror through the making of accusations never carried through should end. Official privilege may prevent the punishment of Senators or Commissioners who fling their charges into the air, and forget them, but public opinion should hold them to their responsibility to justify their words.

Directors' responsibility toward the property is a private matter. Commercial failure is the rule, and fortunately not a crime. On the contrary, success is perilously near a crime through the temptation to achieve it in devious ways. This is the manner in which so many delicate questions arose in the New Haven case. Its directorate was a combination of all the talents. Associated with the most masterful banker in our history was a railway executive of first rank. They had as associates, and in their employ, lawyers inferior to none. This combination of talents had for solution a railway problem of the most difficult and complex sort, making the development of a transcontinental road seem comparatively simple. The New England States are not developing communities. In some respects they are retrograde, and in all respects they are more nearly finished than any part of this young country. Any growth in such territory must be fought for. Competition without control under such conditions is like an operation near the sources of life itself. The alternative before the New Haven was slow death, of which there are many cases in experience, or control of all possible sources of strength.

The failure which has resulted was not due to lack of effort, but to excess of effort. Too much was attempted, and death removed the master mind. Such a loss is irreparable. In every successful enterprise there is a brain, which must be single. Counsel is good, but individual conception is necessary, and when the brain is out there's an end, sooner or later. The question is regarding the Directors' responsibility for the failure. It is neither more nor less in quality than the responsibility of other failures in enterprise.

Owners who wish to increase the responsibility of Directors should take measures to that end. They might be required to have a large financial interest, or they might be paid, as officials are paid, perhaps in proportion to the results they reach. In that case there would be a different feeling toward all the side issues —especially toward those involving "honest graft," which now are more or less winked at.

NIAGARA'S LEVEL.

Secretary of War Garrison does well in recommending to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs that the power companies at Niagara be limited, as in the present regulations, to withdrawing but 15,600 cubic feet of water per second from the great cataract on the American side. He does ill, we think, in urging that the restrictions upon importing electric power from the Canadian side be removed.

Water seeks its level, it knows no national boundaries. The American falls would be depleted, their grandeur and scenic beauty would be impaired, if more of Niagara's waters were sucked away on Canada's side. The companies care little on which bank of the river their plants are built, provided they may sell their electricity in the United States.

PASSING OF CATTLE KINGS.

The cattle kings of the West are abdicating, their horned subjects are going the way of the bison. That is why the price of beef is high, and why it is getting higher.

The reasons given by Dr. Townsend of the Federal Animal Bureau are identical with those avouched by the heads of the Beef Trust. Edward Tilden of the Union Stock Yards in Chicago has told The Times that, with the recent notable increases in population, the area of the cattle ranges has contracted; civilization has made new demands, also, upon the supply of cereals that once went to manufacture beef and mutton, and the cost of the meats has increased with more rigid sanitary regulations, with the general insistence upon choicer cuts. The doctors have urged that less meat be eaten; Morris & Co. admit that less is eaten as the price goes up. Swift & Co. have shown that the average weight of cattle per head has decreased in successive years, that is, the young animals have been slaughtered before they could breed.

As the old cattle ranges covering half a State have shrunk to small ranches or irrigated farms, American exports of beef were first cut off, then meats were brought in from the Argentine and Australia. The Beef Trust does the business in those countries, as here. But whatever the price, the people suffer no great hardship, as they can rely largely on the cheaper fish and grain supplies.

RISKING PURITY OF WATER.

The current number of Health News, the official organ of the State Department of Health, contains testimony in support of the establishment of sources of pollution upon the watersheds of this State. The witnesses are eminently respectable, but not particularly experts in this matter of pollution. The manner of their testimony is adapted to lead toward the conclusion that the preventing impurity is possible under modern scientific conditions. Nobody doubts it. If safeguards are "adequate," if inspection is regular and severe as necessary, if space and funds are ample and are used, and if many other conditions are observed, "hospitals, asylums, reformatories, prisons" can be established and maintained upon watersheds, without danger to those using the water.

But how many will like to read such testimony taken and published under the oversight of the State Commissioner of Health, with power to regulate the city water supply? How many will think that the establishment of the undisputed things said above makes a case for taking the risk of failure of any of the requirements which are the condition of the testimony? Since all the State is available for such uses, why should such institutions be placed on the watersheds, simply because it is not certain that they will pollute them?

It is better to keep water pure than make it pure. It is better to make the pollution of drinking water impossible than to take a risk about it. It is better that the Department of Health should exclude sources of pollution than that it should seek power to condemn a nuisance through pollution, and take over the operation of means of purification, which the testimony assumes to be perfect.

SHIRTWAISTS.

The question whether or not a man may go into mixed company or attend to formal business on hot Summer days suitably dressed will be settled when a sufficiently large number of men make up their minds to dress as they please so long as they dress decently and compel the old women of both sexes to hold their peace. There is a convention which requires a man to wear a coat, or else to lay himself open to the charge of being no gentleman. But the convention deserves no respect. There is no reason why men should not wear shirtwaists wherever women may go thus attired. The point hardly needs argument. Why must a man put on a coat where a woman is not compelled to wear a jacket or a cloak?

This was all decided years ago. Talk about rational Summer attire for men is old-fashioned. The men have done nothing to right their own wrongs in this regard, but have gone on wearing their coats, which even when made of the lightest fabrics are often uncomfortable, especially when placed in contrast with the diaphanous shirtwaist of the ruling sex.

EXPLOSIONS IN SEWERS.

We do not know what public reason could have been urged by Prof. Charles Thaddeus Terry to persuade the Board of Aldermen to rescind its ordinance requiring that owners of garages keep their oil waste from entering the sewers. The repealing bill is opposed by the Bureau of Fire Prevention, by the National Highways Protective Society, and by owners of real estate who object to the periodic blowing up of manholes by gases from the oil, which endangers the lives of passersby. The public, also, has an active interest in the question whether Mayor Mitchel will sign the rescinding ordinance.

How can Prof. Terry justify his course in favoring such a measure? The violation of the law resulted in the explosion at a score of manholes on East Forty-second Street at the very time the Aldermen were considering the Terry bill. The remedy is not to repeal the law.

INVALIDS.

The battle for existence is not to the strong, as shown by the case of the woman of Trent, Penn., a lifelong invalid, who died last week aged 101. President Victor C. Vaughan of the American Medical Association multiplied instances of great mortality among strong, busy men and women suddenly attacked by disease. They are not prepared for its trials, they put forth their strength in sickness, and they are vanquished. Those who are threatened before they are stricken live long.

They may even attain vigorous and lasting health. The case of Theodore Roosevelt, who was a sickly child, is in point. Horace Fletcher, a prey to a complication of diseases, awoke to his danger when rejected for life insurance at 49, and by taking thought grew younger, until Director Anderson of the Yale gymnasium pronounced him more strong and enduring than his own young athletes. John D. Rockefeller, who seemed a hopeless dyspeptic many years ago, has just rounded out his seventy-fifth year in good physical condition.

The mystery of sickness is the mystery also of discerning health. Even the most desperate cases have rallied—note that of the woman who a year or so ago pleaded that the doctors put her to a painless death because she was doomed to lie, without moving hand or foot, a lifelong burden to herself and her family. Press dispatches proclaimed the other day that she had recovered and was no longer an invalid. Life itself is a reaction against external forces that threaten it, and a conversion of those forces, or part of them, into weapons of defense. In such emergencies pluck, grit, and coolheadedness count for much, and when they have extricated their displayer make his life still more useful to those about him.

EVE IS MENTIONED.

When it was learned that the fragments of the Nippur tablets translated by Prof. Langdon, containing a Babylonian account a thousand years older than that of the Flood and Fall of Man in Holy Writ, failed to mention Eve and the serpent, the advocates of woman's rights looked triumphant. While Adam—or Noah, as the more ancient story tells—ate the apple that brought our woe, no woman confused his counsels. The later tale may have been inspired, but it was a base inspiration.

Now Dr. Langdon produces in London photographs of two other fragments which, he alleges, join the originals and warrant the inference that it is "possible that a woman was concerned in the Temptation and in "eating the forbidden fruit as well as "a man." Almost certainly the serpent was there.

Being a rigorous scientist, Dr. Langdon speaks conservatively, cautiously. The inscription is not yet all deciphered. We firmly believe in the Scriptural narrative, and that Eve was guilty. Not for a moment will we doubt that the elder testimony bears out the sacred document in its revealing details. We tremble only lest some militant suffragist should forestall the rebutting revelation by assailing Dr. Langdon and his records with a bomb. The precious fragments are in keeping of the authorities of the University of Pennsylvania, and stored in their archives. They, too, should be warned.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Refusal of Waiver a Confession. There is nothing new in the "waiver of immunity" as a legal device for securing evidence from witnesses suspected of complicity in some punishable form of wrongdoing. The demand for it, however, is much commoner in these days of many investigations than it used to be, and the frequency with which these waivers are now demanded, or, at least, talked about, has interested many in an expedient to which they had previously given little attention.

It is obvious that refusal to waive immunity from prosecution carries, for the popular mind, the same element of confession as does the refusal by a witness to testify on the ground that to do it would incriminate or degrade him. And so firmly fixed is the belief of most of us that a man not only should not, but cannot, be made to testify against himself in court that there is general repugnance to putting men in the position of saying they cannot speak because speech would be or tend toward self-conviction. Yet this repugnance exists only as regards court proceedings.

In the ordinary affairs of life, the first thing said to anybody under suspicion is, "What have you to say for yourself?" and when the answer is "Nothing!" guilt is instantly and constantly assumed. The person suspected is in effect required to prove his or her innocence, and failure in this task is enough to sever personal relations of almost every kind. In other words, it is taken for granted that the innocent are eager to have the truth and the facts come fully out, and that only guilt profits by the concealment of either.

Yet this is not always the case, and it is the existence of the exceptional cases that determines the course of our law. Procedure in most of the so-called Latin countries is wholly different, for there accusation establishes a presumption of guilt, and the burden of proof is on the defense rather than on the prosecution. By a curious double inconsistency, we ask the man accused of murder whether he is guilty or not guilty, but a plea of guilty is not accepted—in court. It is, everywhere else.

Possible Only in Russia. Of all the countries called, or even claiming to be, civilized, Russia is probably the only one in which a man like the monk Rasputin could attract serious attention and exert a powerful influence in governmental circles, and so on national policies. To be sure, there is at least one United States Senator who publicly proclaims himself a devoted follower of Mrs. Eddy, and we have had Judges who did not conceal their pathetic faith in the trickery of materializing mediums. Never, however, has the originator of a fanatical cult, or even the leader of one, attained high position among us, and the occasional votary of such a person who has done so has usually in one way or another illustrated the fact that the minds of human beings are made in compartments—can be weak or outright mad on some subjects and strong and sane on the rest.

Of course, much of Russian opinion as to Rasputin is exactly what opinion of him would be here or in western Europe, for Russia has men of distinction in every branch of science and a highly educated class of considerable size. His triumphs and his powers in the higher social circles must be based on the single fact that he has been able to win faith or excite fear in the imperial family. That would make ridicule or denunciation of him highly impolitic, if not dangerous, for either would be criticism of those who would view, and could punish, it as both treasonable and impious.

Of a type common all over the world, Rasputin would cut but a small figure in a country with a rule and a ruler different from Russia's. There, he has not even been obliged to earn reverence by living an ascetic life or by inventing a philosophy which with the ignorant would pass for new. He is simply the last, or the latest, of a long line of royal favorites, with an appeal skillfully or accidentally adapted, just as were those of his predecessors, to the personal peculiarities of his irresponsible protectors.

Criticism Humbly Accepted. To prove of what little consequence it thought a story about Mr. Astor, his aspirations and their disappointment, that was cabled to The Times, our amiable neighbor, The Evening Post, obligingly devoted more of its editorial space than we had given to the telling of the tale. That, we have noticed, is a form of generosity often shown by papers unfortunate enough to miss a more or less interesting piece of news, and the nature of the comment made in such cases on the reporting and editing done by the paper that does get it almost invariably recalls the remarks of a lawyer who has lost a suit, and discusses with his cronies at night in his club the abilities of the Judge and the opposing counsel.

The Post, we gathered, didn't approve of that Astor story, or of the way it was handled. Circumstances over which The Post evedently has no control will prevent its disapproval from coming directly to the notice of many readers, but The Times, too, can be obliging, and it gladly discloses what would otherwise have been a secret confined within a pathetically narrow circle.

We did not regard the Astor story as of momentous importance, but such a narrative does have a certain claim to attention as a "human document," more or less veracious, after its kind. Some of the qualities seen in it by The Post are invisible to us. Knowledge of its origin, for instance, prevented us from ascribing it to American ingenuity or from finding in it clear evidences of adaptation to American tastes. In several other directions our critic went rather amusingly astray, but we note these facts in sorrow, not in anger. Scolding is not for us—it is for papers that cannot do much else.

A Star for the Canal Zone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I understand it, there are forty-eight stars in our United States flag. Would it not be a good idea to add another next year to commemorate the Panama Canal Zone?

DENIES VANDERBILT BOOST.

C. Franklin Carr Says His Interest in Negro Regiment Was Impersonal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to an article that appeared in your paper recently concerning my attitude toward the negro regiment of infantry, I wish to say that I have never been ousted or deposed from this regiment. The men who took the action were mostly men who had not been connected with the formation or drilling of the same, but constitute what was called an officers' school. It was from these men that Mr. Fillmore appointed a board of administration of five, all stanch supporters of Mr. Fillmore. The men of the rank and file have practically deserted him.

As to my part in the regiment, I was simply interested as a promoter and had no intention of accepting a commission. For this reason I declined the opportunity to take an examination, while Mr. Fillmore has many times said that he would be Colonel or there would be no regiment. Consequently we have no Colonel and we have no regiment. An examining board was appointed by the Adjutant General and after it had examined all of the candidates for officership in the regiment, Mr. Fillmore included, the board reported unfavorably.

I have never made any overtures to Mr. Vanderbilt or any one else, or attempted to influence him or anybody in behalf of the regiment. In the very start the idea of forming a regiment was wrong. Gov. Sulzer suggested that the regiment be formed one company at a time, and Mr. Fillmore's unwillingness to do so has done more to impede the progress of formation than anything else.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

It Will be Submitted to a Representative Convention in August.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times of yesterday says:

> Platforms were formerly made by delegates in the naming of whom the people had at least some share. Enrolled voters elected delegates to State conventions, and these delegates appointed a Resolutions Committee, which drew up the platform. If their work was unsatisfactory it could be amended by the convention as a whole. This year the Republican platform is to be made by a committee of twenty-five, to be appointed by Senator Root. The rank and file not only did not place Senator Root in this position, but never had a chance to do so. It has nothing to say about the membership in the committee he is to appoint, and has no way of deciding whether it approves or disapproves the platform which his appointees will draw up.

An unofficial convention of the Republican Party is to be held at Saratoga Springs, Tuesday, Aug. 18, 1914, pursuant to the call of the Republican Committee, issued after a conference of Republicans held at the Waldorf, May 28. At that conference the following resolution was adopted:

> Resolved, That Senator Root be requested to appoint a committee of twenty-five to draft a platform which shall set forth the attitude of the party on the matter of constitutional amendments, which platform shall be submitted to the State convention.

The unofficial convention will consist of the same number of delegates as in 1913 on the basis of representation that has prevailed since 1885, and at this representative gathering chosen in accordance with the rules of the party the Republican platform will be adopted.

As to "Profitless Healing."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial in your issue of July 13 entitled, "Healing Made Profitless," you assume that Christian Science is the practice of mental suggestion. Permit me to state that mental suggestion is the control of one human mind by another, while Christian Science is the overcoming of false human beliefs with Truth. A person may believe that two and two are five, but when the principle of mathematics is understood the student learns that two and two equal four; thus, the false belief is wiped out.

Mankind believe that there are two fundamental causes, good and evil, and that one is as real as the other. The natural deduction is, therefore, that sickness and sin are as real as health and goodness, and that mortals are the mere sport of circumstance. Jesus, however, came teaching the one fundamental cause, and that one good. Now, good could never be the author of its opposite, evil; therefore, sin, disease and death could have but a suppositional existence.

It was the clear realization of this fact which enabled Jesus instantaneously to heal these conditions. This process is what Jesus referred to when he said, "Ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free."

The principle of Christian Science is the same today as it was in the first century, but Christian Scientists have not yet arrived at the point where they can demonstrate it with the same exactness as did the Founder of Christianity.

THE BUSINESS PROSPECT.

Comment on The Times's Survey of What is Ahead.

From The Portland Eastern Argus.

"Bright Outlook for Business All Over United States," is The Boston Herald's headline over a dispatch giving the results of a nation-wide inquiry by The New York Times, as to the business conditions and the prospects immediately ahead. And the summary of these results makes good, easy reading for everybody but the calamity howlers. The business men of the country foresee a great expansion of trade due to the record-breaking crops. Meantime, except in spots, they report no falling off in the business of this year from that of 1913, and in some cases they report an improvement. The railroads are expecting a big increase over last year's business, and the hoped-for increase in Eastern freight rates will, if granted, give added impulse to business betterment. The steel industry is emerging from depressed conditions due mainly to the lack of railroad buying, and the conservative Iron Age reports that the corner has been turned at last. The automobile business is booming. Some manufacturers have already sold their output for the coming season. Others are rushing up new factory buildings. Cotton mills have been somewhat busier this year than last and the sugar industry shows considerable improvement. The hardware business got more or less into the doldrums a full year ago and is just beginning to work out of them, so that prospects are favorable. These are some of the salient facts upon which this consensus of optimistic opinion is based, and there is no getting away from them. They spell prosperity in capital letters.

From The Utica Observer.

The New York Times of Monday accomplished a distinct service for the whole country. In a review covering more than two pages of that paper, is surveyed the business and industrial field, drawing information from all sections of the country, and printing the facts as they appeared, without glossing over or without suppression. There does not appear to be depression, generally speaking, in any one industry, unless it is in the shoe business. But throughout the whole range of reports there is expressed a hopeful note and a belief that the tide has changed, even with those lines in which there has been dullness, and a better tone is expected. Confidence is the dominant note. Bankers, merchants, manufacturers, wholesalers, heads of railroads, and men who have their fingers on the pulse of business and industry generally are optimistic. Indeed, they do not well see how the country can experience a long period of dullness.

Those who read the reports will be encouraged, and will be ready to say that while there are spots in which conditions are not as good as might be hoped, there are strong indications that these will amend, and that there is ground for believing that a steady, healthful growth may be experienced all over the country. This will be far better than a sudden boom, from which the bottom might drop in a year, and which gives merely a spurt to prosperity and then sets everybody back in the dumps.

AN ELEPHANT PARABLE.

Kipling's Tale Contains a Lesson of Patience for Gunda.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All this stir about Gunda recalls the legend of the fettered elephant, as told by Kipling, or rather by the Lama, in Kipling's wonderful story, "Kim." It cannot fail to interest your readers, so I quote it herewith, it being surprisingly apropos of Gunda's situation:

> Long and long ago, when Devadatta was King of Benares—let all listen to the Jtaka—an elephant was captured for a time by the King's hunters, and ere he broke free, ringed with a grievous leg-iron. This he strove to remove with hate and frenzy in his heart, and hurrying up and down the forest, besought his brother elephants to wrench it asunder. One by one they tried with their strong trunks and failed. At the last they gave it as their opinion that the ring was not to be broken by any bestial power. And in a thicket, new-born, wet with the moisture of birth, lay a day-old elephant calf of the herd whose mother had died. The fettered elephant, forgetting his own agony, said: "If I do not help this suckling it will perish under our feet." So he stood above the young thing, making his legs buttresses against the uneasily moving herd and he begged milk of a virtuous cow, and the calf throve, and the ringed elephant was the calf's guide and defense. Now the days of an elephant—let all listen to the Jtaka—are thirty-five years to his full strength, and through thirty-five rains the ringed elephant befriended the younger, and all the while the fetter ate into the flesh.
> Then one day the young elephant saw the half-buried coil, and turning to the elder said: "What is this?" "It is even my sorrow," said he who had befriended him. Then that other put out his trunk and in the twinkling of an eye-lash abolished the ring, saying: "The appointed time has come." So the virtuous elephant who had waited temperately and done kind acts was relieved, at the appointed time, by the very calf whom he had turned aside to cherish—let all listen to the Jtaka—for the elephant was Ananda, and the calf that broke the ring was none other than the Lord himself . . ."

Who is the present incarnation of Ananda who will announce the appointed time for Gunda?

MORE DEMOCRATS HERE.

Of the Total State Enrollment This City Has a Majority.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Hoyt, The Times correspondent who writes to correct (or rather to dispute) the statement which appeared in your editorial columns that there are more Democrats in New York City than there are up-State, falls into the error of many other persons who have discussed this matter. There are not. There are more Democrats in New York City. The Times editorial was quite correct and based on known and recognized facts, as Times editorials almost invariably are There are at this time official count:

Enrolled Democrats, N. Y. City	349,590
Enrolled Democrats, up State	282,518
Majority	67,072

The reason why there were more votes cast for the Democratic candidate for President and Governor outside than in New York City in 1912 is this: More than 50,000 Democrats in New York City voted for Col. Roosevelt for President and more than 50,000 Democrats in New York City voted for Oscar S. Straus for Governor. The number of up-State Democrats who voted for these candidates was very much smaller.

It has passed almost into the realm of political axiom that New York, outside of New York City, is as strongly Republican as Vermont, and New York City, in State and National elections, is as strongly Democratic as Kentucky or Virginia.

ROWBOAT ACCIDENTS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The capsizing of a boat and the consequent drowning of two youths in the lake in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, last Sunday, while hundreds looked on unable to render assistance, serve once more to emphasize very forcibly the lamentable fact that scores of human beings annually meet their death in this deplorable manner. The gravity of the situation is intensified when one realizes that these casualties could readily be reduced to a minimum merely by the exercise of the proverbial ounce of prevention, to consist in this instance of legislation analogous to and modeled upon that at present in force in the case of ocean liners and elsewhere.

Why should not the readers of The Times use their influence toward securing the enactment of an ordinance providing that every rowboat and canoe on our city lakes be equipped with life-saving apparatus sufficient to accommodate each rower or other person seated therein? Is it not evident that through such an arrangement many a life now needlessly lost (owing often to inability to swim) might be saved, and that the city meanwhile would be doing no more than its duty by its inhabitants?

Praises News Stand Reform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The thanks of the community are due Commissioner Bell for his efforts to limit the news stands to the lame, the halt, and the blind, and those others whose needy circumstances, if unrelieved, would make them charges upon charity. Until a comparatively few years back only such men and women were to be seen thus earning a livelihood, and had an able-bodied man sought thus to escape from real work, he would have exposed himself to the contempt of all beholders.

The Commissioner will doubtless find opposed to him in this worthy reform a tremendous influence, exerted through political and other channels; while those genuinely needy persons whom he would help will not be able to render any aid whatsoever. All the more reason that the community should applaud and sustain him.

A NEW ENGLAND TOY FACTORY.

I know a factory far from town's turmoil
And grime of traffic and the noise of wheels,
Where through the windows, while the workers toil,
The leafy sunshine steals.

Green trees are all about them as they work,
Not smoke and dust as round the city's mills;
And in the verdant valley sweet airs lurk,
Blown from the far blue hills.

And here they work serenely, and devise
New patterns for the gayly colored toys,
Trumpets and drums of every hue and size,
For happy girls and boys.

And when at noon the welcome whistle blows,
Homeward to dinner going through the wood,
They linger where the bramble and the rose
Blossom along the road;

While birds sing in the brushwood and the trees;
And where the drooping branches sway and dream,
Flutter the butterflies and drone the bees

So live these toilers useful lives and bright,
Amid the loveliness of rural ways;
And, while they labor, sweetness have and light,
And fullness of their days.

RECORD GRAIN RECEIPTS.

1,153 Cars of Wheat Reach Chicago in a Day—Plants Reopen.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A golden stream of wheat approximating 1,153 carloads poured into Chicago today, breaking all records for a single day's receipts. The 1,153 carloads represent about 1,250,000 bushels, for which it is estimated $1,000,000 will be paid out to farmers of the West.

Twenty railroads brought this grain from the Southwest. The roads are taxed to the limit in their efforts to clear the tracks and release the cars, as heavy demands are being made upon them for the transportation of the rest of the 900,000,000-bushel bumper crop, much of which will be handled in Chicago. Similar record shipments in other crops were also made. Today's total haul in corn footed up to 218 carloads, while 253 cars of oats rolled in.

Chicago bankers and grain dealers became optimists today as they analyzed the remarkable figures of the present crop movement.

Ernest A. Hamill, President of the Corn Exchange National Bank, in commenting upon the big wheat freightage, said:

"The gigantic shipment into Chicago today undeniably spells prosperity and augurs well for an improvement in business tone. From the standpoint of the railroads, large scale hauling of this kind is bound to put conditions in general in a more favorable light."

James E. Quan, Chairman of the Illinois Public Utilities Commission, said the phenomenal grain movement would go far toward encouraging a more optimistic outlook upon business.

E. J. Costello, Supervising Inspector, said:

"This record wheat shipment will mean a business boom. There seems to be such a demand for wheat that grain houses are ordering their cars sent direct to elevators for inspection, and shipping them right out in cargoes for foreign trade. Now that the wheat has started to move, the condition of our railways will improve rapidly."

There is a decidedly better demand for money from manufacturing and jobbing interests. Discount rates now quoted on commercial paper are firmly fixed at a minimum of 4½ per cent.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 15.—Following the return to work of 6,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric, Machine, Air Brake and Switch and Signal industries, after a strike of five weeks, it was announced today that the switch and signal and air brake plants would be put on double time next week.

Orders have been piling up on all railroad supply manufacturers in this territory since the opening of July. Orders from the Pennsylvania Railroad for equipment and supplies for the electrification of the Philadelphia terminals filed with electric and foundry companies in this district exceed $2,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 15.—The sentiment of the opening sessions of the National Electrical Contractors Association, which began here today, was optimistic as to the present condition and the future outlook for business. More than 1,000 members were present. Several addresses were made, all expressing confidence in the situation, and asserting that the electrical business was good. Fred N. Smith, President of the Michigan Division of the Association, said:

"Business conditions are good, at least normal; at present every one in our business expects to see them become still better. Our business is a good barometer of trade, for people don't buy electrical appliances in times of business depression."

SEA-SLED TRIALS GIVE HOPE

Porte and Curtiss Think Way Has Been Found to Lift the America.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., July 15.—The sealed bottom on the America worked so well in trials this morning and afternoon that Lieut. Porte and Glenn H. Curtiss are confident they have found the way to lift the craft into the air with its load.

After the second trial the America was brought to shore, where it will remain for four or five days while the false bottom is rebuilt and made waterproof. Lieut. Porte left Hammondsport tonight to spend several days in New York. He will return next week to try out the America again. If that trial is successful the airboat will be taken to the Curtiss workshop and a week or ten days will be spent in reconstructing the hull in order to convert the airboat into a sled.

The date of shipping the America to Newfoundland was again postponed today. Mr. Curtiss announced that the airboat could not be rebuilt and put in readiness to go to Newfoundland before Aug. 1.

With its sealed bottom the America began to plane today at a speed of twenty miles an hour. It has never planed before at a speed of less than twenty-five miles and most of the hydroplaning devices have not enabled it to plane at less than thirty-five miles an hour.

No attempt was made to fly for fear the V-shaped bottom would be split when the America struck the water again. As it was, four boards were ripped out when air airboat skipped a few feet along the surface in planing. It did not carry a load of more than 1,200 pounds on either of its trips. When the sealed structure is rebuilt it will form a watertight compartment under the hull and it is expected to enable the America to plane at even a lower rate of speed than twenty miles an hour.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT ARRIVES

Commodore Gerry, Also on the Imperator, Benefited by Sea Trip.

Kermit Roosevelt and his bride, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, his sister, and Ambassador Willard, father of Mrs. Roosevelt, arrived yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Imperator. Nicholas Longworth and Phillip Roosevelt, Kermit's cousin, met the party at the pier.

The bridegroom said that the voyage had been free from storms, but that there was a good deal of fog. He and Mrs. Roosevelt expect to leave New York on July 29 for Curityba, Brazil, where he is in charge of a contract for a public market. Ambassador Willard said that he would spend six weeks in this country and would then return to his post in Madrid.

Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry was a passenger also. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gerry and his two daughters, and he seemed to be in very good health. In deference to the weather, the Commodore wore a straw hat instead of the sealskin cap which has been a feature of his costume on ocean voyages for many years. He was accompanied by a physician and two tubes of oxygen were carried on the ship for his use in case of an emergency, but they were not needed.

A. G. SEDGWICK BADLY HURT

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., July 15.—Arthur G. Sedgwick of 8 East Tenth Street, New York, was badly hurt last night while returning from Linwood, the country place of Miss Helen C. Butler, to the Nunnery, his country place. Mr. Sedgwick was in a coupé which was struck by the automobile of J. Woodward Haven, which was going in the same direction.

The coupé overturned and Mr. Sedgwick received several deep scalp wounds from glass and bruises on the arms and body. His driver, Thomas Carey, was also badly hurt. The horse broke away from the carriage after dragging it for some distance.

Mr. Sedgwick was carried to his country place, where Dr. Thomas S. Southworth was called to dress his wounds. He was said to be comfortable to-night.

BLAMES HARRIMAN FOR TERMINAL CRASH

Joseph Ramsey, Jr., Tells How the Wabash-Pittsburgh Collapse Came About.

CONSPIRACY, SAYS HOXIE

Receiver Said to Have Urged Cancellation of Contracts, Thus Vitiating Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Charges made in Representative Townsend's resolution calling for an investigation of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Company, to the effect that the securities of that organization had been "scuttled" by rival railroad interests, were substantiated in the testimony of Joseph Ramsey, Jr., President of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad Company, who was a witness today before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The committee is endeavoring to determine whether the Interstate Commerce Commission should be directed by Congress to investigate the financial history of this consolidation.

The only other witness before the committee at the hearing was George L. Hoxie, an engineer of New York City, who was a heavy loser on the slump in the bonds of the corporation, in which he was an investor. He said that the history of the alleged wrecking of the road indicated "all the worst evils of high finance." It was a conspiracy, he said, on the part of rival interests to obtain a valuable property at an extremely low price.

The Townsend resolution was introduced in the House a week ago. Mr. Townsend, a member from New Jersey, said at that time that high finance in Wall Street had never furnished such an example of utter disregard of the interests of the weaker and smaller stockholders as was shown in the Wabash-Pittsburgh transaction.

Chairman Adamson had requested Mr. Ramsey to appear and give the committee an insight into the history of the terminal company's finances. Mr. Ramsey was President of the concern in the early periods of its existence and one of the original members of the syndicate in which Andrew Carnegie, George Gould, and Myron T. Herrick each had an interest of $5,000,000.

On the witness stand Mr. Ramsey expressed the opinion that the Harriman interests were responsible for letting the bottom out of the first mortgage bonds. These bonds were sold for 97 in 1905. When efforts were made to pin him down to a direct answer to questions on Mr. Harriman's connection with the matter he was extremely cautious.

He explained that the receiver for the Wheeling & Lake Erie went into court and obtained a cancellation of contracts between the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Company. These contracts, Mr. Ramsey said, were the things that made the bonds valuable.

"What interest did Mr. Harriman show in the cancellation of the contracts?" asked Representative Townsend.

"He was told that if these traffic contracts should be canceled the price of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Securities would be depressed."

"And then," insisted Mr. Townsend, "a receiver dominated by Harriman went into court and asked for a cancellation of the contracts, and as a consequence the bonds dropped in price."

"Well," said Mr. Ramsey, hesitatingly, "they were left with their heels in the air."

Mr. Ramsey explained that the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Company was a road sixty miles long, with an entrance to Pittsburgh, the great value of the corporation being in its strategic position and in its traffic contracts with the Carnegie Steel Works, as well as in its divisional rate agreements and contracts with the Wabash and the Wheeling & Lake Erie. He said at the time the $30,000,000 of first mortgage bonds were sold in 1905 the investors got dollar for dollar in value, and the operations of the road were profitable. After that, he said, George Gould, E. T. Jeffery, and some others suggested an issue of three-year notes, in which the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash-Pittsburgh were involved. Because he opposed this issue of three-year notes, Mr. Ramsey said, he lost the Presidency of the Wheeling & Lake Erie. He was reinstated later.

"I said that the three-year notes might not be met, and the roads would go into the hands of a receiver," said the railroad man. "Some one at the meeting said: 'Perhaps a receivership would not be a bad thing.'"

Mr. Ramsey's memory proved faulty when he was asked to name the man who made this remark. He said, however, that the notes were issued and sold, and the roads afterward went into the hands of a receiver. This resulted in a vitiation of the valuable contracts.

NEW INVASION OF FIFTH AV.

Apartments to be Built Next Henry Phipps's Home.

A twelve-story apartment house, for which plans were filed in the Building Bureau yesterday, will be erected in Fifth Avenue adjoining the marble residence of Henry Phipps with its attractive formal garden on the northeast corner of Eighty-seventh Street. The apartment structure will occupy a plot now vacant, in the middle of the block, fronting fifty feet, just north of the Phipps residence. It will be the second high-class building of its kind erected in the choice residential section of the avenue, the first having been the twelve-story house on the northeast corner of Eighty-first Street, six blocks below, erected two years ago.

The new house has been designed by C. P. H. Gilbert, who recently filed plans for the new home of Otto H. Kahn on the northeast corner of Ninety-first Street and Fifth Avenue, opposite the Carnegie homes.

The building is being erected by a newly formed company known as the 1,067 Fifth Avenue Company, of which Bainbridge F. Clark is President. Among the Directors are Mrs. Sadie Trask Sturges and Elizabeth Grant. The property formed a part of the late Benjamin I. H. Trask's estate. Many years ago, when the Carnegie dwelling attracted attention to the residential possibilities of the upper part of the avenue, Mr. Trask speculated heavily in vacant property in the vicinity, but most of it has remained vacant.

NORDICA'S ASHES HERE

Her Husband Brings Them from London in a Silver Urn.

George W. Young returned yesterday on the Hamburg-America liner Imperator with the ashes of his wife, who was Lilian Nordica, the operatic prima donna. She died in Batavia, Java, of pneumonia after the wreck of the steamer Tasmanian, on which she was traveling from Australia, and her body was taken to London and cremated.

The ashes were contained in a silver urn 18 inches long and 10 inches deep, which was enclosed in a leather case tied with white ribbons and sealed by the United States Consul in London.

MARTIN VOGEL WEDS MRS. A. LEWISOHN

HONEYMOON TRIP IN AUTO

LONDON, July 15.—The marriage of Martin Vogel, Assistant United States Treasurer in New York, and Mrs. Albert Lewisohn of New York took place today in the Registry Office of the Covent Garden district.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given at the residence of Sir Charles Henry and Lady Henry, the bride's sister, in Carlton Gardens. Among those present were Ambassador Walter Hines Page and Mrs. Page, Baron Reading, the Lord Chief Justice of England; David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Mr. and Mrs. John S. Henry, the Misses Lewisohn, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn, ex-Justice David Leventritt, and a few other personal friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Vogel left for the Continent later in the day on their honeymoon trip. They intend to return to the United States about the middle of August.

The engagement of Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States in New York, and Mrs. Albert Lewisohn, was announced in THE TIMES on June 19, in a dispatch from London, where Mr. Vogel was staying at the time.

Mrs. Lewisohn is the widow of Albert Lewisohn, who died in March, 1911. She was Miss Lilly Lewisohn, daughter of the late Leonard Lewisohn, the copper magnate, her first husband being a distant blood relation. She is a sister of Frederick and Walter Lewisohn of this city and of Lady Henry, wife of Sir Charles Henry of London.

Her engagement to Mr. Vogel was the culmination of a childhood romance, they having been neighbors and playmates in New York.

Mr. Vogel is the son of Heyman Vogel, senior member of the firm of Vogel Brothers, clothiers, and is a graduate of Columbia University and the New York Law School. He is a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York, the New York County Lawyers' Association, the New York State Bar Association, and of the Criterion and Press Clubs. When President Wilson appointed him head of the Sub-Treasury he was 35 years old, and the youngest man that had ever been an Assistant Treasurer of the United States.

NAVAL OFFICER TAKES BRIDE

Dr. R. C. Ransdell Weds Miss Layman—Attendants in Uniform.

The wedding of Dr. Robert Cathcart Ransdell, U. S. N., a son of Col. Daniel M. R. Ransdell, for many years Sergeant-at-Arms in the United States Senate, and Miss Dorothy Abbott Layman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Layman of Indianapolis, Ind., was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Forty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue. The church was decorated with palms and white lilies on the altar, and the officiating clergyman was the Rev. Edward E. Matthews, of the church. The bridegroom and his attendants were in full naval dress, with glittering swords, and at the conclusion of the ceremony Dr. Ransdell and his bride passed under the crossed swords of the ushers in making their exit.

Miss Layman, who was escorted to the chancel by her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a white chiffon wedding gown, without a train, having a white taffeta peplum. It was cut low at the neck and finished with tulle, and she also wore a French cap of lace edged with orange blossoms, from which a tulle veil fell to the hem of her frock. She carried lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Elizabeth Hughes of Indianapolis. She wore a pale green taffeta and chiffon frock topped by a picture hat to match, and carried a huge arm bouquet of blue corn flowers and yellow rosebuds, the navy colors, tied with flowing ribbons.

Dr. Ransdell's best man was his brother, Paymaster Hervey Ransdell, and the ushers were Lieut. John J. London, U. S. N.; Lieut. Forde A. Todd, U. S. N.; Lieut. Elmer Langworthy, U. S. N., and Dr. Richard Werner, U. S. N., stationed at Newport. The bridegroom and the three ushers, who are Lieutenants, are all attached to the President's yacht, the Mayflower.

Dr. Ransdell and his bride will tour the Berkshires and the White Mountains in their motor, and after Aug. 15 will live at the Wyoming, in Washington, D. C.

There was no reception, but a breakfast was served at the Ritz-Carlton.

Admiral Sumner's Daughter Weds.

Claire Sumner, daughter of Rear Admiral George Watson Sumner, U. S. N., retired, was married yesterday afternoon at her parents' home on West Main Street, Patchogue, to Samuel Hagerman of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert Hall Marion of Leonia, N. J., a classmate of the bridegroom at Temple College, Philadelphia. The bride's father gave her away. The honeymoon will be spent in upper New York State and at Lake Hopatcong, N. J. The couple will live at Blackwood, N. J. Mr. Hagerman, who is a lawyer, is the son of Cornelius G. Hagerman.

MILLER—NOLAND.

The Rev. A. Douglas Miller and Mrs. Miller of 56 Ridgewood Avenue, Glen Ridge, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Bleecker Miller, to William Churchill Noland of Richmond, Va.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

According to a cable received in New York yesterday from William Faversham, who is in Lucerne, Switzerland, Mrs. Faversham (Julia Opp) has entirely recovered from her illness, which was at first pronounced tuberculosis. They will sail for New York on the Olympic on July 27, and immediately upon their arrival will begin rehearsals of "The Hawk," a play adapted from the Parisian success, "L'Epervier." Both Mr. and Mrs. Faversham will be in the cast.

A. H. Woods will make his first New York production of the season on Thursday, Aug. 6, when he will present Douglas Fairbanks in "He Comes Up Smiling," a dramatization of Charles Sherman's novel of the same name. This will be the first dramatic production to be made at the Republic since Mr. Woods took over the lease of that theatre. "He Comes Up Smiling" is a comedy by Byron Ongley and Emil Nyitray, the authors of "The Typhoon."

F. Ziegfeld, Jr., has arranged to establish dance pavilions for a week in all of the important cities visited by the "Follies" the coming season. For the "road" Danse des Follies, the ballroom of the principal hotel in each city will be used.

Rehearsals are now under way at the Eltinge Theatre of "The High Cost of Loving," a new three-act comedy in which Lew Fields will star. John Emerson is staging the play, which opens out of town early in August and comes into New York City soon after.

FIRE AT DUNCAN VILLA.

A Good Deal of Damage Done at the Dancing School Near Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 15.—Fire started this afternoon at Isadora Duncan's villa at Bellevue, where she conducts a dancing school.

The fire was less serious than was at first reported, but much damage was done. The blaze is believed to have been caused by a short circuit. It was noticed by Drs. Rossant and Jauje, who were the sole occupants of the villa at the moment, and who saved themselves by leaping out of the salon window and then immediately gave an alarm.

Firemen from Meudon were soon on the scene, but, finding the fire spreading rapidly, telephoned to Paris for assistance. In a short time a number of fire engines arrived, and the fire was speedily mastered.

A number of valuable musical manuscripts were destroyed. Miss Duncan was in Paris at the time. She returned in the evening to find the villa still smoking.

GABY DESLYS'S ESCAPE.

She and Others Fall Into the Seine, but Are Rescued Unhurt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 15.—Gaby Deslys, M. Pilser, her dancing partner; Max Linder, a Paris Cinema star, and four others were nearly drowned yesterday when a landing stage at Varenne-St. Hilaire, where M. Linder has a villa, collapsed as they were about to enter a boat.

Linder had invited the party for the 14th of July. They were crossing to watch the fireworks on the opposite bank of the Seine, when the accident occurred. All were quickly rescued unhurt.

Has Heard of No Coolness Between William Waldorf and His Son.

Charles A. Peabody, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, a close friend and for many years legal representative here of William Waldorf Astor, was asked yesterday if there actually had been any estrangement between Mr. Astor and his son, Waldorf, as the result of a witticism of the younger Mr. Astor's wife, and expressed his conviction that there was no truth in the report. A break between the father and son for the reason explained in a special cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES on Tuesday was regarded as next to impossible by Mr. Peabody.

It was suggested to Mr. Peabody, however, that a misunderstanding might have arisen between Mr. Astor and his son recently, within an interval following the last communication of Mr. Astor with Mr. Peabody.

"No, I have heard from Mr. Astor within the week," said Mr. Peabody, adding, "I hear from him every week."

Asked if Mr. Astor mentioned his family or business affairs, Mr. Peabody said that he was advised always of the latter.

"Still, I know absolutely that the story is untrue. It could not have happened," said Mr. Peabody.

Mr. Peabody said he had not been advised of the proposed sale of The Pall Mall Gazette and The Observer by Mr. Astor.

ART STUDENTS WED IN PARIS

Miss Lucy Stelle Brown Married to William J. L'Engle, Jr.

The marriage of Miss Lucy Stelle Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Brown of this city, and William J. L'Engle, Jr., took place yesterday in Paris. The ceremony was performed in St. Luke's Chapel.

Miss Brown has been in Paris for some time and has been studying art. Her parents, who went abroad to attend the wedding, live at 247 Lexington Avenue, and have a country home at Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Mr. L'Engle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. L'Engle of New Orleans, La., and his sister is Mrs. Adrian Iselin, 2d, of this city, a daughter-in-law of C. Oliver Iselin. He was graduated from Yale, class of '06, and was a student at the Art Students' League before going to Paris to continue his studies in art.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Groesbeck Fowler, of 116 East Fifty-eighth Street, have gone to Merrick, L. I., to spend the Summer there.

Mr. and Mrs. William Baylis and Miss Adelaide Baylis of 11 East Sixty-sixth Street, have closed their town house and gone to Strathspey, their country place at Bedford, N. Y.

The wedding of Miss Edith Roelker of New York and Charles P. Curtis, Jr., of Boston will take place today in St. Luke's Church, East Greenwich, R. I., and the reception will be held at Greene Farms, the old Roelker estate, where her brother, W. G. Roelker, makes his home. Miss Roelker's sister, Miss Eleanor Roelker, was married on June 24 to Harrison Tweed of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Cameron will give a fancy dress dance this evening at the Moorings, their Southampton, L. I., place.

Prof. James Furman Kemp, Mrs. Kemp, and their children have opened Camp Kimo at Hulett's Landing, N. Y., for the season.

FORMER MRS. COREY HAS MARRIED AGAIN

Obtained Divorce from Former President of United States Steel Corporation in 1906.

ON HONEYMOON IN EUROPE

Her New Husband in Business in This City, Where They Are Expected to Reside.

Mrs. Laura Cook Corey, first wife of William Ellis Corey, former President of the United States Steel Corporation, married Lenn A. Duckworth of this city last Friday at Darien, Conn. They sailed the following day for Europe to spend their honeymoon.

Mrs. Laura Cook Corey was a Miss Cook, and was one of the prettiest girls in Braddock Valley, Penn., when in 1888 she met and was married to W. E. Corey. At the time of his marriage Corey was working on his uncle's coal tipple. Shortly after this he was promoted, and finally Carnegie selected him as one of the group of men to develop the Steel Corporation.

In 1906 it was first publicly known that Mr. and Mrs. Corey were estranged. Mrs. Corey obtained her divorce in Nevada during July, 1906, and Corey married Mabelle Gilman in May, 1907. After her divorce Mrs. Corey retired to Swissvale, near Pittsburgh, where she lived when not traveling. She left Swissvale about three weeks ago, and it was announced at that time that she was going abroad.

Lenn A. Duckworth comes originally from Mt. Vernon, Ind., although he has lived in this city for thirty years. For the last twenty-five years he has been connected with the Estey Company, dealers in pianos and organs, with a retail store, of which he was the manager, at 23 West Forty-second Street.

Mr. A. Dalrymple, Secretary of the company, said last night he knew that Mr. Duckworth was to marry Mrs. Corey.

"Of course, no mention was made of it," he said, "mainly because it was their own business. We knew of it as soon as it happened and the announcements were delayed until they had sailed because they wanted to surprise their friends and did not care to have any notice in the newspapers. That is one reason why they were married in Connecticut. Mr. Duckworth is a widower and as I remember is between 45 and 50 years old. He is still manager of our retail department and I presume will not resign. We expect to have him with us in the Fall.

"I understood that Mr. and Mrs. Duckworth would spend the balance of the Summer abroad. They did not say whether they would live in New York on their return, but I presume they will.

"With the exception of about two years Mr. Duckworth has been with the Estey Company for twenty-five years. I understand that he met Mrs. Corey here in New York and whenever he stopped in Pittsburgh on business he used to go and see her."

MISS LUCIA HULL A BRIDE.

Married to H. T. Lindeberg—Her Sister, Mrs. R. P. Hobson, Attendant

The marriage of Harrie T. Lindeberg of 12 West Forty-fourth Street and Miss Lucia E. Hull, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Huntington Hull of New York and Tuxedo Park, took place quietly at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Forty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue. The Rev. Edward E. Matthews, assistant to the Rev. Dr. Shipman, performed the ceremony. The chancel and the first four pews in the church were cut off from the rest of the edifice with tall box trees and palms. Pots of white hydrangeas banked the chancel and vases of white rosebuds were placed on the altar.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a taupe traveling gown with touches of white, and a white and black hat, and carried lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Richmond Pearson Hobson of Washington as matron of honor. She wore a white crepe de chine gown, topped by a white hat.

Mr. Lindeberg's best man was Seth E. Thomas. There were less than a dozen guests at the ceremony, and there was no reception. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hull, Jr., Mrs. Seth C. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Dows, Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson and Henry Barbey.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindeberg will spend their honeymoon touring by motor, and on their return will for the present live at 21 East Eighty-second Street.

Mr. Lindeberg came here from Sweden several years ago, and after being with McKim, Mead & White for some time, left them to open his own office as an architect. He is a member of The Players and the Riding Club.

Miss Edna Coney Weds Wm. Hance

The wedding of Miss Edna Louisa Coney, daughter of Edward A. Coney of Newark, N. J., to William Hance of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Holloway Hance of Hackettstown, N. J., was solemnized last week at the home of the bride, 205 Clifton Avenue, Newark, N. J., by the Rev. Dr. T. I. Coultas, former pastor of the Halsey Street and Roseville Methodist Episcopal Churches of Newark. The ceremony was followed by an informal reception and wedding supper. The bride was attended by Miss Elfride Siegel as maid of honor, and the best man was Burtis M. James. The bride wore a gown of white meteor and chantilly lace, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. Her father gave her in marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Hance will leave on an extended wedding trip throughout the West, and will live at 436 Fort Washington Avenue, this city, upon their return.

Pittsburgh Court Awards Income Held Up by Trustees of Estate.

PITTSBURGH, July 15.—Through a decision handed down by Judge Over in the Orphans' Court today, Harry K. Thaw is to receive the income from his father's estate which has been withheld from him by the trustees since he was sent to Matteawan. By the decision Thaw will get $160,773. Judge Over said Thaw was legally entitled to the money, despite the fact that alienists had said it would be unwise to put large sums of money at his disposal.

The fight for the income began last January, when Thaw filed a petition asking for $30,000 to defray legal expenses.

MUSIC NOTES.

Park Commissioner Ward has issued a schedule of concerts for the parks of Manhattan and Richmond during July, August, and September. Exclusive of programmes given before July 4, the list shows a total of 238 concerts for the boroughs. Of these, 37 are concerts in the Central Park mall by Franko's band, and 35 by Arthur Bergh's orchestra in the same place.

Hans Merx, the lieder singer, will leave for London next week. He is scheduled for several recitals in England and Germany, and will spend some time at his home on the Rhine.

Max Hirsch, formerly of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera Companies, has been engaged by Max Rabinoff as manager for the company with which Anna Pavlowa, the Russian dancer, will make her American tour next season.

The first of the series of concerts at Stony Brook will be given tonight in the Stony Brook Auditorium. The Russian Balalaika Orchestra, under M. Kiriloff, will appear, and Thomas Chalmers, baritone, of the Century Opera Company, will sing.

COHAN & HARRIS'S PLAYS.

Output Includes "The Miracle Man," Adapted by George M. Cohan.

Cohan & Harris, who will extend their activities this season as operators of New York theatres by placing attractions in the Candler Theatre, which was opened as a moving picture house, announced last night their plans for the coming theatrical year. George M. Cohan himself will again figure as an author as well as producer for he has made into a play "The Miracle Man" from the book of the same name by Frank L. Packard. "The Miracle Man" is to be produced in Hartford, Sept. 14, and after a week there comes to the Astor Theatre. So far, only five engagements for this cast have been made. These are Gail Cane, George Nash, Thomas Findlay, William Boyd and Mary Murphy.

William Collier will make his debut as a Cohan & Harris star in September, when he will be seen in "Love Among the Lions," a musical comedy version by John Golden and Frank Craven of F. Anstey's story of that name.

"It Pays to Advertise," a comedy by Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett, will inaugurate the Candler Theatre as a "legitimate" playhouse in September. The players assigned to this cast are Grant Mitchell, Will Deming, John Cope, Ruth Shepley, Louise Drew, Sydney Seaward, Vivian Rogers, George Schaeffer and Robert Harvey.

The formal presentation of "Wanted, $22,000," a comedy drama by A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton, will take place at the Court Square Theatre, Springfield, Mass., on Sept. 28. Ernest Glendenning, Desmond Kelly, Isabel Garrison, Hazel Lowry, Ethel May Davis, Richard Sterling, George Wright, and Harold Grau will create the several rôles in this play which New York is to see during October.

The premiere of "The House of Glass," a comedy drama by Max Marcin, is scheduled for the latter part of September. The principal people so far engaged for its cast include Mary Ryan, Ben Johnson, and Thomas Emory.

Raymond Hitchcock will begin his second season in Channing Pollock, Rennold Wolf, and Charles J. Gebest's musical comedy, "The Beauty Shop," at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, on Monday, Aug. 10. The comedian's company will again include Marion Sunshine, Anna Orr, Agnes Gildea, Joseph Herbert, Jr., George E. Mack, Edward Metcalfe, and George Romain, the single newcomer being Earl Benham, who will replace Lawrence Wheat in the rôle of Daniel Webster Briggs.

"Nearly Married," Edgar Selwyn's farce, seen last season at the Gaiety Theatre, will commence its road tour in September. Bruce McRae is the featured member of the company.

Three companies presenting George M. Cohan's farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," will begin their tours in August and the first fortnight in September.

In June Cohan & Harris will present at their Astor Theatre the first of George M. Cohan's series of musical and dramatic satires, to be known as "Cohan's Current Revue," in which he will travesty the successful plays of the season that has gone before, interspersed with caricatures of social, political, and other events of interest.

LEONARD OPDYCKE NAMED.

Identity of Man of Mystery in Voorhis Charges Is Revealed.

Leonard E. Opdycke, it was asserted yesterday by James A. Taylor of the Bureau of Municipal Research, was the man who has been referred to as "the mysterious millionaire" who caused the bureau's investigation into the official actions of John R. Voorhis, State Superintendent of Elections, as a result of which charges were filed against him for neglect and incompetency. Investigation of these charges proceeded yesterday before Special Commissioner McMahon in the Bar Association Building.

It has been contended by John T. Dooling and Leslie J. Tompkins, counsel for Mr. Voorhis, that the charges are based on malice and intrigue rather than on civic duty. They have asserted that the mysterious individual, who was identified yesterday for the first time as Mr. Opdycke, had had doubts of the usefulness of the Honest Ballot Association, to which he had been asked to contribute, and so had asked the aid of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

Mr. Taylor, the chief witness for the prosecution, testified yesterday, however, that he could show that the investigation began with himself, because he had tried to ascertain whether there was need of civic election organizations when the State had paid officials at work.

W. Cleveland Runyon, the prosecuting attorney, will call Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin today in an effort to show how inefficient Supt. Voorhis was in getting evidence against men afterward convicted by the District Attorney of election frauds. The seventh charge of the complaint asserts that he did practically nothing toward procuring the convictions, indictments and arrests on this charge in 1913.

Mr. Runyon tried to call Talcott Williams of the School of Journalism, the President of the association, to prove its bona fides, but Commissioner McMahon ruled that as the association was not on trial such evidence was irrelevant.

George W. Perkins, William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Y. M. C. A.; William M. Chadbourne, and William Jay Schieffelin, President of the Citizens' Union, were prepared yesterday to testify, but were not called. The hearing will continue this morning.

LIFEBOAT TO CROSS OCEAN.

Sivard Will Take His Bride on Test of New Craft.

Einar Sivard, naval architect and Superintendent of the Welin Marine Equipment Company, will leave New York on July 25 in a Lundim power lifeboat for a voyage across the Atlantic to England, with a crew of five all told, incuding his bride.

The craft, which was launched yesterday from the yards of the company, at Long Island City, cannot be capsized, it is said. It is 36 feet long and 12 feet on the beam, and is made of galvanized steel with a watertight deck about six inches above the load waterline. The space between this deck and the bottom is subdivided into watertight compartments, several of which may be flooded without endangering the boat. A steel house with watertight portlights, doors, and ventilators incloses all but a small part of the boat fore and aft, where short decks are provided for the helmsman and the lookout.

The boat is equipped with a 32 horsepower, four-cylinder standard engine and gasoline tanks that will enable it to stay at sea for many days. It has also a Marconi wireless apparatus, with a range of from fifty to one hundred miles. Mr. Sivard will go to Boston, Halifax, St. John's, N. F., and then across to Ireland and on to London. The trip is expected to take from fifteen to seventeen days.

CAN'T SEE HER CHILDREN.

Mrs. Green Lost Divorce Suit and Then Remarried.

Mrs. Hortense M. Green, wife of Dr. H. C. Green, a dentist of 228 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, who was divorced eight years ago by William F. Powers, has failed to get the privilege of seeing her two children, now in the custody of their father, Mr. Powers. In a decision handed down yesterday Justice Garretson refuses to modify the decree of divorce and allow Mrs. Green to take the two children with her to the country, and says:

"The defendant, by evading the effect of a prohibition of this final judgment against remarrying during the lifetime of the plaintiff, by contracting a new matrimonial alliance in an adjoining State, is not in a judicial position to invoke favorable judicial action."

The two children are Florence, 15 years old, and Stewart, 13 years old. In her application Mrs. Green gave mother love as the paramount reason why she wanted to see the children. She said they were about to be taken abroad by their father and placed in a school in France to complete their education. She approved of this step and also of the excellent treatment accorded the children by their father, but as a mother she said she wanted to see them again before they left this country.

GOT DILLON'S VIEWS ON ULSTER CONFLICT

Humphrey O'Sullivan of Boston Thinks There Will Be No War.

BISHOP KELLY NOT AFRAID

Returned Tourist Obtained Opinions of Both Sides After a Tour of Ireland.

Humphrey O'Sullivan of Boston, just back from a visit to London and a trip to Ireland was in town yesterday to tell leaders in Irish matters in New York just what has been happening in and about Ulster and the rest of Erin. In London Mr. O'Sullivan conferred with Messrs. Devlin, Dillon, and Redmond, and in Ireland he talked with Dr. Kelly, the Bishop of Ross. Incidentally Mr. O'Sullivan while in London gave £100 to Mr. Redmond to help equip the Irish volunteers of Ulster, and when he got to Cork he handed over to The Cork Examiner a similar sum to be applied to the needs of the volunteers of Cork.

Thereupon anonymous letters began to come in upon the returned son of Erin—for Mr. O'Sullivan is proud of the fact that when he landed here forty years ago last month to lay with a compositor's stick the foundations of a fortune that finally came out of rubber, he had just come from the Green Isle. The writers said it was a shame that Mr. O'Sullivan should be giving money to arm men when there were so many poor in County Cork. Mr. O'Sullivan hunted up his friend, Bishop Kelly, again and gave him a third £100 to be used for the benefit of those claimants to his bounty.

"I should say the situation in Ireland was very satisfactory at present," said Mr. O'Sullivan yesterday at the Vanderbilt. "At the luncheon I had with Messrs. Devlin, Dillon, and Redmond in London, I asked them their view of the situation. They said it would culminate in August. I don't know what form the culmination will take, or just why it should come at the time they said. But that is the time when the amending act to the Home Rule bill will be passed. None of those gentlemen was willing to pass upon the merits of that act.

"Personally, I do not believe there will be any conflict. When they asked me my estimation of the situation, I said: 'There will be nothing to it. The amending bill will be passed, and there will be no conflict.'

"'But,' they said, 'suppose the bill is put on the statute books, who will enforce it?'

"'The English Government,' I replied.

"'But suppose the English Government will not?' they persisted.

"'In that event,' I told them, 'there is such a thing as public opinion, national and international. All you have got to do is to hold the English Government up in the searchlight of public opinion, and keep it thus pilloried until it does enforce its laws.'

"'That's exactly my view of the situation,' said Mr. Dillon. What the Most Rev. Dr. Kelly, Bishop of Ross, told me represents the conclusion of the Bishops of Ulster. In the first place, Dr. Kelly told me that the volunteer movement had been the greatest blessing that ever happened to Ireland in many a day, inasmuch as the youth of the country were losing their patriotism. He had formed that opinion after experience in delivering lectures on Home Rule. After speaking in Rome he stopped in Paris and delivered the same lecture at the college there. He repeatedly referred to O'Connell, and his time, as a means of feeling out his audience, and all such references fell flat. Therefore, he concluded that Irish students were not keen on national matters. The volunteer movement has changed the whole spirit of the country over night. And, I tell you, they can thank Carson for that.

"Ireland, as I saw it, is now a huge military camp, only, except in Ulster, they haven't any arms. In Ulster every man and boy has a revolver. But the Bishops say they are not afraid, and that they can protect themselves. Personally, I deplore a situation that sets Irishmen against one another, and I believe it will be only a little time before the antagonism dies out."

"Did you see any evidence that anybody was preparing for the benefits of home rule, or any awakening of enterprise?" Mr. O'Sullivan was asked.

"I cannot say I did. As a matter of fact, only 11 per cent. of Ireland is under cultivation. Sixty-seven per cent. of it is pasture land. The effect of the foot and mouth disease on the cattle has been a drag upon the counties in which it exists, but the people of the towns and cities have no tears to shed for the troubles of the farmers, because the farmers have been making easy money by raising cattle while the poor of the towns have had to pay high prices for their food, especially vegetables. The farmers have been too lazy to plow the land, and vegetables have had to be imported.

"I am going back to Ireland in August to make an inspection of the volunteer camps."

CONFERENCES ON ULSTER

Situation Seems Unchanged—Cabinet to Meet Today.

LONDON, July 15.—Conferences of the respective party leaders were held today for a discussion of the Ulster situation, in which there is apparently no change.

One conference was attended by Sir Edward Carson, Andrew Bonar Law, the Marquis of Lansdowne, and Arthur J. Balfour.

The Cabinet will have a meeting tomorrow to decide finally upon the Government's attitude toward the Amending bill to the Home Rule bill.

SEWER COMMISSION WINS.

Federal Court Refuses to Tie Up Its Funds with Injunction.

Judge Hand refused yesterday in the Federal District Court to tie up the $85,222 now in the hands of the Bronx Valley Sewer Commision. The American Pipe and Construction Company is suing the commission, as well as the County of Westchester and certain individual officials, to recover certain claims it alleges it has against them.

It ought to procure an injunction prohibiting the defendants, pending trial of its action, from advertising or concluding any contracts for the purchase of a site for a sewage disposal plant, or from paying out, except to the plaintiff on account of its claims, any money, or from incurring any liability which could be charged against the proceeds of the Bronx Valley Sewer bonds.

In the affidavits filed by the defendants against the issue of the injunction it was alleged that the object of the motion was to prevent the expenditure of any of the $85,222 now in the hands of the Sewer Commission.

U. S. CUTTER HITS ICE FLOE.

The Seneca, Not Seriously Damaged, Continues on Patrol.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 15.—The United States revenue cutter Seneca returned here tonight, reporting that she had encountered heavy ice floes and had been in slight collision with a growler while cruising on ice patrol duty. She went toward Greenland as far as Latitude 53 North.

The cutter was not seriously damaged and is now proceeding to the Grand Banks.

W. L. WELLINGTON DEAD.

Amoskeag Agent Was Widely Known in Cotton Goods Trade.

Walter L. Wellington, agent of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company since 1907, and widely known in the cotton goods trade, died yesterday morning at his home in the Hotel Seymour from heart disease, aged 65 years. He was at his desk as usual on Tuesday, but went home early owing to feeling badly. He went to business as usual yesterday and suffered a heart attack on the train. Shortly after being taken home, he died. In 1907, when the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company decided to sell its own output, Mr. Wellington was made agent for the company, which owns the largest mill in the world.

He was associated at various times with White Payson & Co., MacLea, Austin & Wellington, Austin, Bates & Wellington, W. L. Wellington & Co., and C. L. Bausher & Co.

Mr. Wellington was a trustee of the Broadway Savings Institution and was connected with the Manhattan Real Estate Association, the Merchants Real Estate Company and the New York Real Estate Association. He was a member of the Merchants and the Union League Clubs.

R. H. HANDLEY DIES.

Thrown from Fractious Polo Pony He Was Trying to Subdue.

HAUPPAUGE, L. I., July 15.—Richard H. Handley, 65 years old, died at his country place here yesterday as the result of injuries received on Monday night, when he was thrown from a favorite polo pony, which had grown fractious and which he was endeavoring to subdue.

Mr. Handley was an expert horseman. He was not active in business at the time of his death, but had investments in many interests. His home here is considered one of the finest in this section of Long Island. He leaves a widow, a son and three daughters.

Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at his late residence. The Rev. E. A. Abbey of the Presbyterian Church of Smithtown of which Mr. Handley was a member, will conduct the services.

Col. William Winslow Bennett.

Col. William Winslow Bennett, an inventor, writer, and veteran of the civil war, died yesterday at his home, 161 West 108th Street, in his eighty-sixth year. He was born in this city, and was the son of Sumner Winslow Bennett, a pioneer piano manufacturer. He succeeded his father in the business, and at the outbreak of the civil war organized a volunteer cavalry regiment, of which he was Lieutenant Colonel. President Lincoln employed Col. Bennett in confidential capacities during the latter years of the war. After the war he resumed his piano business, and was financed by Cornelius Vanderbilt in putting on the market the first automatic piano and organ players. He was a student of political economy and wrote books on land taxation. Col. Bennett was a member of the Edwin D. Morgan Post, No. 307, G. A. R.

Prof. Alanson Harvey Green.

Prof. Alanson Harvey Green, 73 years old, for many years a professor in the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, died on Tuesday at his home, at 369 Thirteenth Street, Brooklyn. He was born in Stephenstown, N. Y., and was graduated from the State Normal School in Albany, in 1862. After graduation he taught school for four years, in Dutchess County and at Locust Valley, L. I., and was then called to the Polytechnic Institute, where he was professor of mathematics for thirty-eight years. He retired in 1898. Mr. Green is survived by his widow, son and two daughters.

Obituary Notes.

CAPT. SAMUEL HUGHES, 54 years old, Port Captain for the Commissioners of Navigation of Philadelphia, died on Tuesday at St. Joseph's Hospital in that city. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to this country when a young man. During the Cuban revolution against Spain he was a filibuster, and ran many cargoes of arms to the Cubans on the steamer Laurada from Baltimore.

STEPHEN GALE TILLINGHAST, 91 years old, known all over this country as a spiritualist, is dead of old age at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. W. Clapp, at Norwich, Conn. He was a hotel keper in Plainfield, Conn., many years ago, and prominent in Sunday-school work. After this he managed a hotel in Saratoga Springs, leaving it to become a Baptist minister. Then he deserted the ministry to become a spiritualist. Mr. Tillinghast was a member of the Sons of the Revolution.

CHARLES COBB, 78 years old of 234 Central Park West, dropped dead on Tuesday while playing croquet at his Summer home on Naukeag Farm, near Ashburnham, Mass. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Irving Smith of Nassau, Texas, and four sons, Charles, Joseph, Arthur, and Bruce Cobb, the last being a Medical Examiner of this city.

HORACE NELSON STEVENS, 79 years old, one of the first telegraphers of the Central Pacific Railroad, and one of the last survivors of the men who built that road, died on Tuesday at San Francisco. When in charge of the Niagara Falls telegraph office, in 1860, he sent the story of the Prince of Wales's journey to a New York newspaper, which was considered for many years to be a famous "beat."

LINCOLN ELLSWORTH RECTOR, 49 years old, and long the head of the shipping department of Charles Schoolhouse & Sons, importers, died from Bright's disease on Tuesday at his home, 205 Twelfth Street, Brooklyn. He was for many years the superintendent of the Sunday school of the John Knox United Presbyterian Church and a member of Greenwood Lodge, F. and A. M. His widow and son survive him.

JOHN MINSON WYBURN, a retired merchant tailor, is dead at his home, 467 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Wyburn was born in England eighty-eight years ago and had lived in Brooklyn for more than sixty-five years. He left a son and three daughters.

CAPT. JOSEPH NORCOM, who enlisted in the Washington Artillery of New Orleans during the civil war and was wounded at the battle of Bull Run, died on Tuesday at his home, 103 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born on his father's plantation in Plymouth, N. C., eighty-two years ago, and was a retired stock broker. He was a member of the Confederate Veterans' Association of New York and a past regent of Commonwealth Council, R. A. He is survived by his widow, a son, Dr. C. M. Norcom, and a daughter, Mrs. Alexander H. Fraser.

MISS EDNA PALMER MYERS, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William A. Myers, died yesterday morning at her residence, 619 Macon Street, Brooklyn, from endothelioma, a rare malady. Miss Myers had been ill many months and had practically wasted away. Only three other cases of the kind have been reported at the health office. Miss Myers was 21 years of age and for some time was a kindergarten teacher.

THOMAS FRANCIS DUNNE, who died at his home in Hollis, L. I., on Monday, was a Customs Inspector in this city for twenty-one years and a member of the Queens County General Democratic Committee. He also belonged to the B. P. O. Elks, No. 1, and the Cathedral Club. His widow and two children survive.

COUNT IN JAIL FOR TAXI BILL

Frenchman Refuses to Pay $9.10 After Dining Chauffeur.

The West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station had a prisoner late last night who wore evening clothes, carried a monocle, and talked only French. The complainant had no trouble making himself understood, however. He was a taxicab driver, Archibald Rogers of 2,143 Amsterdam Avenue. He told about driving the prisoner, who made himself known as Comte Rene de Nannez of the Orienta Apartments, 302 West Seventy-ninth Street, for nearly three hours, and then presenting a bill for $9.10, which the Count refused to pay.

"He took me into a French restaurant in Twenty-sixth Street," said Rogers, "and made me eat with him. Then when we got back he said the food I had was enough pay."

It was not until Police Capt. Bonnoil came along that the Count could make himself understood. He said he had no occupation and lived on the income of his estates in France. When searched enough money was found to more than pay Rogers. The Count was locked up, charged with intoxication and refusing to pay for the taxicab.

HELD FOR AUTO KILLING.

Broker Curtis to Answer in Higher Court for Manslaughter.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 15.—John D. Curtis, a New York broker who on the night of May 17 last ran his automobile into Cecil D. Clark of Littleton, N. H., as Clark stood on the Post Road in front of his car repairing it, was held to-day by Judge Tierney in the Borough Court in $7,500 bail on a charge of manslaughter. Coroner Phelan a few days ago rendered a verdict holding Curtis responsible for Clark's death. Mr. Curtis put in no defense today. His companion on the auto trip, Robert Mitchell of New York, his New York manager, has been lying at the point of death since the accident.

Mr. Curtis said that Mr. Mitchell could not remember anything which occurred. He is relying on Mr. Mitchell's return of memory to help him in his defense in the Superior Courpt.

Constable Jones testified today that the Curtis car swerved thirty feet before it hit the Clark car, and that its speed was thirty miles an hour.

THREATEN WESTERN ROADS.

Unions Demand More Concessions—Refuse Strike Vote Details.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Unless the General Managers' committee which has been considering wages and working conditions with engineers and firemen of Western railroads makes some new concessions tomorrow it will be notified immediately of the time when a strike will be called.

That information was sent to the General Managers tonight by the enginemen's committee in response to a request for information regarding the strike vote taken recently on all the Western roads.

When the conference was broken off yesterday the General Managers, contending that the vote was not a vote to strike, but was a vote of confidence in the Brotherhood leaders, asked that an official statement and the ballot on which the vote was taken be sent to them. They also asked that the vote by roads be made public.

After the enginemen's committee had considered the communication the request was refused, and the following added to the refusal:

> We are further instructed to advise you that if your committee has nothing further to offer them than that contained in your letter of this date, negotiations will be immediately discontinued and you will be notified of the time on which the men will leave the service, in accordance with their wish as expressed in their referendum strike ballot.

It is believed that the strike will be called by the end of the week unless further concessions are granted.

DUTY OF MERCHANTS AND ALSO CITIZENS

Features of an Address by Lincoln Cromwell Before Knit Goods Jobbers.

SOME STRIKING PARALLELS

Business Men, He Says, Should See the Trade Commission is Kept Along the Right Lines.

A notable address by Lincoln Cromwell of William Iselin & Co., was the feature of the semi-annual meeting yesterday of the Jobbers's Association of Knit Goods Buyers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Cromwell prefaced his remarks by saying it was a pleasure to address merchants who have as good reason as the members of the association to be satisfied with the first half of the present year. "Most of us," he declared, "are ahead of last year's sales for these six months, and the stocks of Summer underwear are as small as they ever can be." The speaker pointed out that there is another million of Americans here every year. Enough, he said, to keep four big underwear mills busy, although a number have gone out of business within the last year. There is actually less machinery devoted to Summer underwear than a year ago. He deduced from this that both the mill end and the buyer will receive a full supply of orders, and that the Summer wear business will continue on a strong basis.

"I wish I could say as much for the business in heavy weights," said Mr. Cromwell. "It is an old joke that a business flat on its back must be looking up, so while hopeful of livelier times, we might as well confess that Fall business has shown very little life. When we look for the cause we find large stocks in the hands of dealers, due chiefly to the extraordinarily mild weather last year up to the end of December, to the failure of the corn crop in some sections and only to a very slight extent to the political conditions which have depressed American industry generally during the last twelve months. It has been my experience that the sale of underwear is nearly all a matter of weather. Underwear wears out nearly as fast in panics as in booms. Give us frost in September and a snappy October, and Winter underwear will be ordered expressed in solid cases, though Wall Street should stand on its head and Congress sit for another year. It is reasonable to expect better treatment from the weather this Autumn than last, and so it is reasonable to expect a demand for underwear far in excess of the curtailed supply.

"A year ago, we of the underwear business, were a good deal scared by the tariff changes. The country had been assured that the protected industries were fleecing the people, especially in clothing. Administrative organs announced that the new tariff would make sweeping reductions in retail prices by cutting cotton goods duties in half and putting wool on the free list. Voters were congratulated that the day of New Freedom was at hand and an editor since appointed to office wrote that, in wiping out the robber tariff, the country had been freed from an economic crime, comparable only to negro slavery before the war. It was natural that many underwear people should fear the changes. * * *

"But the underwear tariff was cut nearly in half, and yet, wonder of wonders, nothing has happened—as the little boy said who forgot to say his prayers. The French fifty cent balbriggan has arrived but is not wanted. The very dealers who were counted on to sell it largely have instead sold more than ever of American balbriggans and we are now going about next season's ordering with only the kindest thoughts of the French and Germans.

"Now, for all this, as the advertisement says, 'There is a reason.' The trust microbe never reached underwear mills—there has never been a combination of any kind to maintain prices; on the contrary, there has been a combination competition for business. All the follies of the industry have been on the side of selling goods too cheap—at least the mills and the jobbers have done this and are doing so today when there is no effort to raise prices though cotton is two cents higher and wool ten cents a pound higher than a year ago. The knitting mill products of this country exceed $200,000,000 in yearly value. They have been built up to this huge figure by good manufacturing and square merchandising, with a sign out always that no promoters need apply."

Mr. Cromwell went on to say that there have been peculiar conditions to make the underwear competition uncommonly hard. One of these is the fixed-price plan which may be extremely popular with the retailer, but is not viewed in that light by the manufacturer. He pointed out that fully three-quarters of the underwear sold in this country retails at $1 per suit, most of the rest at 50 cents a suit, and comparatively little at higher prices.

"When the tariff was cut in half on his (the manufacturer's) product," Mr. Cromwell continued, "his previous troubles proved to be a blessing in disguise, for under the retailers' fixed prices he has made himself too strong for any foreign competition and his business, like the house in the Bible, stood through the storm and fell not, for it was founded on the rocks of hard competition and fair trading. Our fixed retail prices have served this one good purpose."

In speaking of the future, Mr. Cromwell gave this characterization:

"We shall continue to trade from hand to mouth until the railroads are prosperous again and able to set men to work building them cars and locomotives, making them rails and roadbeds, and then to set their own discharged thousands at work carying a normal tonnage. Business will continue slow until the public has recovered a faith in the railroads dreadfully shaken by the New Haven scandal, and until Legislatures stop introducing 2,000 bills a year to harass the roads, hurting their credit and their buying power, to say nothing of the pockets of their stockholders. Business will continue slow while politicians keep loading it with new conditions of uncertainty.

"It has taken twenty-four years for the courts to tell business men the meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law, drawn by one of the ablest lawyers ever in the United States Senate, and yet here is President Wilson, who is neither a lawyer nor a business man, with his new trust legislation, so vague as yet that nobody in or out of Congress knows what it means in its exemptions of labor and farmers and its suppression of unfair trading. Mr. Wilson tells us that this new programme is going to set all doubt at rest and give us a plain chart for a course to prosperity. So it will, if labor unions make no use of their special privileges and do not test them by strikes and boycotts to put up wages. So it will if farmers do not combine successfully to put up cotton and corn. So it will if manufacturers can afford to sit still while wages and materials are advanced by these combinations and merchants can make no common cause lawfully to put up prices. This new Trade Commission is empowered to examine our books, to get at every detail of our business, and to restrain us from any ways which it decides are unfair. That is a very new power in this country to confer on men as yet unknown, of unknown standards, sympathies, and prejudices. It may free us from some injustice, but when the law is already sufficient to dissolve the Thread Trust and to enjoin its fifteen kinds of unfair trading, and to unearth the New Haven scandal and dissolve the Tobacco Trust, it puzzles me to know what more law is needed.

"This Trade Commission starts in good intentions and high moral purpose. So did the Spanish Inquisition. So has most government meddling with business customs. But let politicians and theorists control it with their fads and demagogy and the independence which built up our wonderful commerce will end in a blight. It is slow poison to a business man to get into politics, but it is hara-kiri for politics to get into a man's business. This commission will in the end be controlled by public opinion—the one force which controls Legislatures, Congress, ex-Presidents, and Presidents.

"We business men cannot ignore our duty to see that this Trade Commission is kept along lines which are helpful to honest merchants rather than to theorists and politicians. We have our hands on the pulse of trade through our salesmen and customers, and can wield an influence through them for the public good. It is more to us than bread and butter that prosperity should prevail through methods which will be sanctioned by a trade commission and a higher tribunal. It is our duty as merchants working for a steady prosperity and it is our duty as citizens keen for the country's welfare to see that this National Wholesale Dry Goods Association is active with other organizations in keeping fads and class feeling and local prejudice forever out of this Federal Trade Commission with its inquisitorial powers. Then the 'New Freedom' may be better than the old which made thirteen little colonies into our great Republic."

The meeting appointed a committee of three to investigate the matter of fixed prices on hosiery and to make suggestions for changes. This committee consists of William Cheek of the Smith, McCord, Townsend Dry Goods Company, Kansas City, Charles Jobes of the Rice, Stix Dry Goods Company, St. Louis and Fred D. Crawford of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Chicago.

After a report from a special committee, the following standard scale of sweater sizes was adopted:

MEN'S SWEATER COATS.

Size.	Width.	Length.	Sleeve.
36	16½	27	20
38	17½	28	21
40	18½	28	21
42	19½	28	21
44	20½	29	22
46	21½	29	22

BOYS' SWEATER COATS.

Size.	Width.	Length.	Sleeve.
34	16	24	19

The practice of certain manufacturers of selling both to the jobber and retailer was taken up, and the opinion was expressed that this was double dealing. No way, however, of stopping it was suggested.

THREAD USERS PROTECTED.

Trust Monopoly Ended by Recent Dissolution Decree.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Department of Justice, believing that the scope and effect of the dissolution decree in the Thread Trust case, entered June 2 in the United States District Court for New Jersey, are not generally understood, has given out a statement concerning the case which says:

"Broadly speaking, the decree insures to the public open and free competition in the manufacture and sale of threads; guarantees to the purchaser of thread that he can obtain whatever brand of thread he may desire without subjecting himself to retaliation at the hands of a rich and powerful combination; enables the ultimate consumer—the housewife—to purchase thread at a fair competitive price, and not a price dictated by the trust; places jobbers and dealers in a position to make a fair profit, and restores to all who so desire the right to engage in the thread industry without oppression.

"The so-called Thread Trust was composed of such concerns as the American Thread Company, the Thread Agency, the Spool Cotton Company, J. & P. Coats, Ltd., the Clark Thread Company, the Clark Mile-End Spool Cotton Company, George A. Clark & Brother, J. & P. Coats (Rhode Island), Inc., James Chadwick & Brother, Ltd., English Sewing Cotton Company, Ltd., and Jonas Brook & Brothers, Ltd.

"The situation in the United States, prior to the filing of the Government's petition on March 3, 1913, to dissolve the Thread Trust, was that to all intents and purposes the American Thread Company and J. & P. Coats, Ltd., were one and the same. Between them they controlled approximately 90 per cent. of the domestic thread trade, and not less than 30 per cent. or 35 per cent. of the trade in manufacturers' threads.

"One of the strongest weapons wielded by the combination to retain to itself the monopoly it had created was a so-called bonus selling plan. By this plan a bonus of a designated per cent., varying according to grade and quantity, was credited to all dealers who in any six months' period, from Jan. 1 to June 30, or July 1 to Dec. 31, purchased 500 dozens. This bonus was granted to both retailers and jobbers.

"Previous to 1908, both the American Thread Company and the Coats companies fixed minimum resale prices on their goods for both jobbers and retailers and exacted from them ironclad written contracts, providing that such prices would be maintained and for severe penalties should their provisions be broken, and they refused to deal further with customers who failed to observe the resale price. Even after the year 1908, when written contracts, providing for resale prices, were abandoned, there have been many instances of refusals to sell because the purchaser had cut prices.

"The commonest course pursued by the American Thread Company and the Coats companies to prevent competition in the sale of manufacturers' thread was concentrated price cutting in competitive sections and the maintenance of full list prices in non-competitive sections. Frequently special salesmen approached the independent customers and offered secret rebates, payable at the end of the season, in order to induce them to cease buying independent goods."

SPRING HOSIERY TRADE.

Prices Are on a Cost Basis, but Business is Improving.

Jobbers report that the hosiery situation, so far as Spring trade is concerned, shows a distinct improvement over the outlook at the beginning of the selling season. A representative of one of the largest commission houses, agent for several of the biggest mills, said Saturday that he had already placed 65 per cent. of his Spring business, and expected to place the balance very shortly. The complaint is general in the trade that prices being made for Spring goods are on a cost basis so far as the manufacturer is concerned. It was intimated yesterday, however, by well-informed persons that this condition of affairs cannot go on much longer. Indications are that, after the Spring orders are booked, the mills will be under the necessity of advancing the prices.

As a rule, the retailer expects to do a brisk business in hosiery lines around the first of July, the usual start of the vacation period, when the going-away element is supposed to lay in a new stock of wearing necessities for the outing. This factor in the trade has not been as pronounced this year as formerly, with the result that retailers have been slow in liquidating their accounts with the jobbers. The Fall trade has proved negligible. This is attributed largely to the late arrival of Winter, which in many sections of the country did not set in until the latter part of January. The result has been that retailers in many instances are reported as being unusually well stocked up with goods suitable for Fall business.

Notwithstanding rather adverse conditions existing at the present time, the disposition generally seems to be to look on the brighter side of things in the belief that bottom has been reached in market conditions, and that from now on business will take an upward trend.

DRINKING CUPS PLACED.

Decided They Are Not "Articles of Personal Adornment."

After consulting an impressive array of tariff and judicial authorities, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Malburn has reached the conclusion that so far as the Tariff Act of 1913 is concerned, folding metal drinking cups are not "articles of personal adornment." This rather weighty decision followed a voluminous correspondence between the department in Washington, and Collector Malone and Appraiser Sague of this port.

It seems that at some of the other ports, Customs officials have been returning the cups for duty at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem under that part of Paragraph 356, providing for "articles designed to be worn on apparel or carried on or about or attached to the person." This classification was justified by some of the officials on the ground that cups of this kind are ordinarily carried in bags or satchels by children, travelers, and excursionists.

Appraiser Sague, whose opinion was asked by the department as a final resort, reported that the cups, when valued above 20 cents per dozen pieces, should be relegated to the more commonplace classification of "manufactures of metal" with duty at only 20 per cent. ad valorem. The Appraiser's view is adopted by the department and will now prevail generally in classifying the articles.

American Paper Co. Bankrupt.

The American Paper Company, which operates a large plant at Bogota, a suburb of Hackensack, has been adjudged bankrupt by the United States District Court. The assets are estimated at $734,000 and the liabilities at $680,000. Elmer Z. Halstead of Paterson, who was receiver in the Chancery Court receivership proceedings, was continued in the same capacity in the present action.

Gray Goods Sales Large.

The feature of yesterday's trading in the gray goods market was the large sales of 38½-inch 64-56s at 4⅝ cents as well as 38½-inch 64-60s at 4⅞ cents. Printers and a Western jobber were the principal purchasers of these goods. The clothing converting trade which for a long time has been out of the market is now operating and sales for this branch of the trade are increasing daily. In the white goods end, piques and sheer goods continue very active.

No Hurry to Fix Prices.

Considerable hesitancy is being shown by selling agents in the matter of announcing their prices on Spring ginghams. The various lines have been displayed for several days but certain agents, who last week said they would name their prices on Monday, failed to do so although good orders are being booked subject to the forthcoming price lists. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the factors to get an idea what the advance orders are to be and how strong the demand is before setting values on the goods. Interest in the new lines continued to be strong yesterday.

An Opinion on Serges.

A factor in the men's wear primary market expressed the opinion yesterday that this season would not see the activity in serges that marked the last lightweight period. His reason for this, he explained, was that the months of May and June this year saw comparatively cold weather and serge suits manufactured for stock purposes did not move in the desired fashion. This will mean, he said, that a surplus will be carried over. With the vogue for Palm Beach suits also gaining steadily, the sale of serges, he said, will probably show a slight falling off over last year.

The Claflin Sale.

The Claflin store began yesterday to resume more of a normal appearance, although large groups of purchasers were seen in the different departments. It is now known that the sale will be extended considerably beyond the fortnight originally planned, as this extension of time will permit of many buyers coming to town who, in the natural course of their business, would be here later. The longer period for sales will also assist in making the liquidation more complete with a corresponding realization of more cash. Now that the scope of the sale is ascertained many believe that the general effect on the trade will be little different from that experienced in former years by the Claflin July sale.

Why Buyers Are Taking Time.

According to some commission merchants in the downtown dry goods district, buyers from out-of-town are showing an unusally strong tendency this season to take their time in placing orders. This is shown in some cases where buyers have usually placed their orders promptly. This time, however, the average buyer appears to be desirous of making a very thorough canvass of the market as a whole before making a definite decision as to orders. Buyers say that their hesitation is not due to dissatisfaction with the particular firms with whom they have done business in the past but merely for the reason that so many offerings are being made they feel they must in justice to their houses make a detailed survey of everything to be found here.

Cheese Up, Duties Likewise.

The customs authorities here have begun a campaign for higher values for dutiable purposes on Italian cheese. Reports recently received from abroad by the Treasury officials are said to have convinced them that, as the prices for certain lines of cheese in Italy have gone up, shippers should be compelled to invoice their goods on the higher basis. Some shippers have already done so and thus avoided the advances made by the local officials to make correct foreign market values. In some instances the Collector has added materially to the entered prices, with the result that the importers in this city have not only been obliged to pay additional duties, but stand as well for the penalties accruing under the tariff law. While the American handlers of the cheese have in some cases called for reappraisements by the Board of General Appraisers, they have not for the most part succeeded in lowering the values placed on the goods by the customs men.

MORE WORSTED PRICES.

Two Additional Corporations Make Advances on Serges.

The United States Worsted Company will open today its Spring line of plain serges, the figures on which herewith given show advances of from 5 to 7 1-2 cents per yard. Seven new numbers are added to the list. The numbers and prices follow:

Number.	Weight, Ounces.	This Year, Price.	Last Year.

The Coronet Worsted Company, which has also opened its serges, announces these prices: 4192, blue, $1.15, last year, $1.10; 4190, blue, $1.30, last year, $1.25; 4, blue, $1.42½, last year, $1.37½.

Americans Bid High for Wool.

LONDON, July 15.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 13,519 bales, principally cross-breds. The demand was brisk and prices were firm, Americans paying 10 per cent. advance for fine greasy. Merinos were in short supply and in sellers' favor. Shabby slipes were irregular. Following are the sales: New South Wales 200 bales; scoured 1s 8d@11d, greasy 6d @1s 3½d; Queensland 300 bales, greasy 10d@1s 4d; Victoria 1,200 bales; scoured 1s 5d@2s 1½d, greasy 8½d@1s 5½d; South Australia 200 bales; greasy 7d@11d; West Australia 200 bales, greasy 8d@15½d; Tasmania 200 bales; greasy, 9d@1s 5d; New Zealand 10,000 bales; scoured 1s 1½d@2s 4d, greasy 7½d@1s 4½d; Cape of Good Hope and Natal 300 bales, scoured 1s 1½d@2s 1½d, greasy 8d@1s 1½d.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

H. & H. SAFCHICK.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Harry and Hyman Safchick, who comprise the firm of H. & H. Safchick, fur manufacturers, at 8 East Twelfth Street, by Max Zurenitz, a creditor, for $1,000, on a note to the order of Jacob Stein & Sons. It was alleged that they are insolvent and made preferential payments of $2,500. Their trouble is attributed to indorsing notes for Jacob Stein & Sons to the amount of $7,500. The firm was formed in 1908, and both partners had previously been in other firms since 1896.

The CRAWFORD-PLUMMER COMPANY, which made an assignment at Springfield, Mass., and was put into bankruptcy, had financial headquarters in this city at 38 to 44 West Twenty-fifth Street, and stores in Springfield and Boston, Mass., and Hartford and New Haven. It was incorporated on Oct. 28, 1909, with a capital stock of $250,000, and succeeded the George F. Quigley Company, which had been put into bankruptcy here on Dec. 16, 1908, and subsequently made a settlement at 40 cents on the dollar. The liabilities of the Crawford-Plummer Company are $80,000. Inability to obtain additional working capital and several seasons of bad business are ascribed as the causes of the trouble.

WOLK & KISS.—Judge Hand has appointed John L. Lyttle receiver for Wolk & Kiss, manufacturers of human hair goods at 144 Goerck Street; bond, $2,500. It is alleged stock worth $6,000 has been disposed of not in the regular course of business.

The SCOTTISH RAINCOAT COMPANY.—Abram Bennett, Harry Bennett, and Adolph Slomowitz, manufacturers of raincoats as the Scottish Raincoat Company at 39 East Twentieth Street, have made an assignment to Clifford G. Ludvigh. They began business on Feb. 1, 1911.

BARNET JAFFE, manufacturer of waists and dresses at 38 West Eighteenth Street, has made an assignment to Henry B. Singer. He has been in business twenty-two years. Mr. Singer said that the liabilities are $14,000 and assets $10,000 to $12,000, and the assignment was due to indorsing for a firm which failed a few days ago.

JOSEPH D. BAUCUS, a lawyer of 49 Wall Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $84,761 and nominal assets of $339,994, consisting of claims for legal services, $49,850; cash, $17; office furniture, $25; notes, $3,302, and shares of stock, $286,800, par value. Among the stocks are 2,360 shares of the Springfield, Wilmington & Cincinnati Railway Company, $236,000, and 422 shares National Mosaic and Marble Company, $42,200. Of the liabilities $6,750 are secured, $48,346 are unsecured, and $28,500 accommodation paper. He indorsed $20,000 notes of the Springfield, Wilmington & Cincinnati Railway Company, which were held by the Carnegie Trust Company ($10,000) and the Windsor Trust Company, ($10,000.)

TOBACCO NOT TURKISH.

Country Where Much of It Grows Now Greek or Bulgarian.

The former Turkish cigarette tobacco fields in European Turkey have been divided up between Greece and Bulgaria, according to Vice Consul General Heizer of Constantinople. Tobacco was the principal item in the exports to the United States from Turkey during 1913 and amounted to $10,707,887, a gain of $696,935 over the preceding year. Naturally, under the new political and geographical divisions of the tobacco fields strictly Turkish exports in this line will be materially reduced, while a corresponding gain will take place in the tobacco exports from the three countries to which Turkish territory was ceded by the treaty of London.

The highest-priced tobacco is from Cavalla and Xanthi. While Cavalla has fallen to Greece, Xanthi has passed under the control of the Bulgarians. For the present the Bulgarian authorities have made no important changes in the laws concerning the control and exportation of tobacco, but it is said that a Bulgarian tobacco monopoly may be established before long.

Austria was the largest purchaser of Turkish tobacco during the year ended March 13, 1912, taking 38,748,578 pounds. The United States was the next largest buyer, taking 20,479,409 pounds. Both of these countries buy heavily of the high-priced Cavalla tobacco, and, in fact, Cavalla furnished 33 per cent. of the total amount of tobacco exported from Turkey during the year ended March 13, 1912. In the future this large item will figure in Greek and Bulgarian exports, the Bulgarian output being shipped from Port Lagos. The exports of leaf tobacco to Russia were 1,343,795 pounds, to the Netherlands, 622,424 pounds, and to France, 450,048 pounds.

GREEDY RECEIVERS WARNED BY BENCH

Justices Rebuke Lawyers Who Annoy Them with Letters Seeking Appointments.

CENSURE FOR LOUIS ROSS

"Inexcusably Transcended Powers to Enhance Compensation," Says Giegerich—Others Condemned.

So aggravating and unprofessional have been the methods of some attorneys and others in soliciting appointment as receivers, commissioners, and referees, that the Justices have seen fit to issue a statement in reproof. In the editorial columns of The Law Journal they have announced that these solicitations, flooding the mail of Justices holding certain parts of the court, amount to a positive nuisance, and they rebuke certain lawyers whose "commercial" proclivities lead them to ignore the proprieties of professional life.

Justice Greenbaum in several recent cases has censured receivers for flagrant misconduct. Justice Giegerich also has condemned the practices of those receivers who make the misfortunes and difficulties of others an opportunity for their own gain by questionable administration of the property intrusted to their care.

In the accounting rendered by Louis Ross, receiver of property under foreclosure in a suit brought by Blanche Kronenthal against Louis Rosenthal and others, Justice Giegerich found much to condemn. In the report made to the court by a referee, William A. Purrington, it was shown that for three months Ross was receiver for a tenement house at 216 Cherry Street later sold for $31,000 to satisfy a mortgage of $30,000.

The referee reported that in that time Ross spent $1,681.83 for repairs and improvements to the property. He received only half of that amount by rents collected. The point of special interest in these expenditures was explained by the referee in these words:

"Of this outlay, great under the circumstances—$881.25, or $40.30 more than said rentals—is covered by bills for painting, plastering and decorating, rendered by Moses A. Wiener, a cousin of the receiver's wife, who had done all such work for Mr. Ross as a receiver for eight years past, for it seems that Mr. Ross is not a novice, having had many receiverships. He was, therefore, presumably familiar with the duties of the office, as well as with its privileges. In fact he told plaintiff's attorney that he had been receiver on many occasions and knew his duty."

When seen at his office yesterday, Ross defended his actions by professing inexperience. He said that this was the first receivership he ever had had. He admitted that he had had two or three others since then. In the recent case of Minna C. Goddard against the Marvel Baking Company, Justice Greenbaum reduced the commissions which Ross asked for by one-third.

In his opinion on the Kronenthal case Justice Giegerich censured Ross in these terms:

"A careful examination of the record convinces me that the referee is right in his view that the receiver inexcusably transcended his powers in order to enhance his compensation and benefit his cousin by marriage, a painter, who did most of the work."

Justice Giegerich denied compensation and counsel fee to Ross. He was more severe on another receiver in the case of Thomas vs. Somers, stating that the receiver kept no record of moneys received and disbursed, and, among other improprieties, "caused extraordinary repairs to be made without an order from the court, and charged extravagant prices which there was reason to suspect he, in fact, never paid. He also failed to account for the rents collected for one month. The case is a striking exemplification of the abuse of the court's confidence placed upon persons who utilize positions of trust for their own dishonest gain."

NIAGARA BILL REPORTED.

Safeguards Scenic Beauty of Falls in Diversion of Water for Power.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Favorable action on a bill to regulate and control the diversion of water for power purposes from Niagara Falls was recommended to the House today by the Foreign Affairs Committee.

The measure would continue the provision of the existing Burton law, limiting the daily diversion of water falls to 15,600 cubic feet per second and authorize the Secretary of War to issue permits. It specifies, however, that in the event of the failure of the State to regulate the concerns holding permits the Secretary of War must make and enforce regulations.

The bill would also place importation from Canada of electric power generated by the diversion of water from the Niagara River above the falls on the Canadian side under the regulation and control of the Secretary of War, with a view to preventing desecration of the scenic beauties of the falls.

The committee had had before it a report by Brig. Gen. Kingman, Chief of Engineers of the Army, advising against permitting a daily diversion at a given rate, citing the Canadian treaty provision covering a daily diversion of 20,000 cubic feet per second, and suggesting that the limit be kept at 15,600 cubic feet per second.

He explained that in view of the enormous American commerce on Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie, Congress had provided St. Mary's Falls canal, "which handles more commerce than the Suez and more probably than the Panama Canal will handle in a generation"; that the Canadians had a parallel canal there, and that "it seems probable that American interests soon will require a ship canal from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario on American soil."

FIGHT FOR CAPT. GIBBONS.

"Plucking" Board Must Explain Why He Was Retired.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Members of the House Naval Affairs Committee expect tomorrow to gain information as to the reasons of the naval "plucking" board for retiring Capt. John Henry Gibson, who is apparently in fine physical trim. Admiral Knight, a member of the board, will appear before the committee to testify in connection with a bill introduced by Representative Beakes of Michigan, calling for the reinstatement of Capt. Gibbons.

The greatest surprise was expressed in naval circles when Capt. Gibbons was "plucked." He was in command of the battleship Utah at the time, and was at Vera Cruz. For several years Capt. Gibbons was Superintendent at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Maxwell Children Held for Parents.

Minnie M. Maxwell, 9 years old, and her sister Myrtle, 7, the Cleveland children who were found on Tuesday in a rooming house at 258 West Forty-sixth Street, under the care of Marguerite Russell, an actress, were arraigned yesterday in the Children's Court before Justice Ryan and held until tomorrow for examination. Meantime it is expected the children's parents will arrive here from Cleveland. The police received a telegram from them yesterday, saying they would be here tomorrow. When arraigned in court both children looked happy and well cared for.

CURE FOR HARD ARTERIES.

Dr. Pick, Who Sailed Away from Patients, Tells How It Is Done.

Dr. Julius Pick, an authority on diseases of the heart and arteries, of Charlottenburg, Germany, said yesterday at the Waldorf that he had run away from his patients. He is the author of a method of treating arterio-sclerosis, which he says he has successfully practiced for more than five years.

"I have never been in this country before," Dr. Pick said, "and when my patients began to crowd me I just broke away from them and took the next steamer, which happened to be the Imperator. I shall be here only until Sunday, when I am going to Boston for a day or two before returning home on the Cleveland.

"It is true that many Americans have come to see me, and I have a good many friends here, but I shall not have time to depart from the itinerary I have mentioned to you. This is simply a trip for pleasure and rest.

"Arterior-sclerosis no longer holds any terrors," said Dr. Pick. "This 'premature old age' is easily treated. The method I have followed with success—and I have cured thousands—is to have the patient inhale air containing emanations of radium, and to drink water containing similar emanations. I prepare this air by passing oxygen over a preparatium of radium. By inhalation the radium emanation enters the lungs and thence the arterial system, whence it finally reaches the blood in the veins. Through the means of the drinking water the radium emanation gets into the stomach and the intestines, being thence absorbed by the venous system. That is the main feature of the treatment.

"While arterio-sclerosis is the disease of the day in most countries, I believe it is more prevalent in the United States than elsewhere, because of the speed with which everything is done over here, and the consequent neglect of certain precautions. There is little reason to apprehend hardening of the arteries prematurely if one practices moderation in everything. I would give this rule: 'Be moderate in eating and drinking, rest after daily work to prevent injuring the nervous system, and be careful of gout, whether inherited or acquired. Do not forget to breathe accurately, for proper breathing is as essential to health as proper feeding.

"It takes only from four to six weeks to cure arterio-sclerosis. A patient taking the treatment does not have to go to bed. He can work every day, and he can smoke and drink in moderation."

SON DEAD, SUES DOCTOR.

Papers were served yesterday on Dr. W. H. Roe, a physician of Patchogue, L. I., in a suit for $10,000 brought by George Ross of this city for the death of his 7-year-old son Lionel. The complaint alleges that after the boy had suffered a wound on June 23, 1913, in his left hand from a pistol in which there were blank cartridges, the physician treated him and pronounced him cured on July 3. On July 4, says the complaint, it was found necessary to remove the boy to St. John's Hospital in Brooklyn, where he died two days later of lockjaw. It is alleged that the physicians at the hospital found wadding in the wound.

Harry A. Davidow, the lawyer who represents Mr. Ross, says the boy's uncle, Charles H. Ross, is preparing to bring a suit for $20,000 damages as administrator of the estate on the same charge.

HUNTING FOR FIVE WIVES

Police Have Two of the Seven They Think Chapin Has Married.

Just how many wives George R. Chapin of 427 West Thirtieth Street has is a subject for police investigation. He was arrested yesterday on a bench warrant charging him with bigamy, and he will be arraigned today before Judge Swann, in General Sessions. It was a remark made by his mother when the policeman put him under arrest that leads the police to believe that Chapin has, or has had, at least seven wives.

"What, another? This makes seven," is the remark the police credit to the prisoner's mother when told of the charge against her son.

Mrs. Ella Agnes Chapin of 201 East 101st Street, who was, before her marriage to Chapin, Miss Ella Agnes Manion of 358 West Forty-ninth Street, is the complainant against Chapin. She says she was married to him on April 28, 1906, in the Church of the Holy Apostles, Ninth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, by the Right Rev. Bishop Paddock. Chapin told her, she said, that he had been married before, but his wife was dead.

After a few months they separated. She next heard from Chapin, she said, when, about June 27, she saw a notice in a newspaper that he had been married to a Miss Carrie Burns of 427 West Forty-first Street. Chapin had selected the same church for his marriage to Miss Burns, but it was the Rev. Henry Denlinger who married them. Convinced that her husband had married another wife, she told Assistant District Attorney Van Rensselaer, who got a warrant for Chapin. It is said he was living with his last bride when the warrant was served. The police believed that Chapin had only two wives, but the remark of his mother has set the detectives to work.

Chapin is a carpenter, 49 years old.

BANKER GETS NEW TRIAL.

Conviction of Damron Is Upset by Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, July 15.—The Court of Appeals has granted a new trial to William C. Damron, an attorney, formerly President of the Home Bank of Brooklyn, who was convicted of larceny in the first degree. Damron was under sentence of imprisonment for one year.

As President of the bank Damron received no salary, but he collected fees for his services as attorney for the institution and deposited them in a special account. When the bank was closed by the State Superintendent of Banks Damron explained that he had used his account to stop a run on the institution.

Five years later he was indicted. At the outset of the trial Damron objected to the special panel of jurors. The challenge was not upheld despite the failure of the District Attorney to except to it. This, the Appellate Division held, constituted reversible error, and the Court of Appeals upheld the lower court and ordered a new trial.

SEEKS TO ENJOIN TANGO.

Girl Workers Just Can't Keep Still When the Bands Play.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, July 15.—When the calliopes on the excursion steamboats play tango music the 200 girls employed at the Mississippi Pearl Button Company refuse to work. This is the basis for an injunction action filed by Moir Brothers this morning to forbid calliope music on river steamboats during working hours. The plaintiffs also seek damages in the sum of $500 for loss of the services of young woman employes.

Madonna Ran Into Electric Storm.

Capt. Pierre Labatut of the Fabre line steamship Madonna, which arrived yesterday from Marseilles with a large number of passengers, reported passing through an electric storm which lasted two days. It carried away the wireless apparatus and seriously affected the ship's electrical plant. The Captain said that it was the worst of its kind he had ever experienced.

Robert Connors Saves Another Life.

Robert Connors, an employe of the Dock Department, who holds a medal for life-saving, dived into the East River yesterday and rescued 9-year-old Henry George of 422 East Seventieth Street, from drowning. The boy was bathing off the foot of Sixty-eighth Street when he was caught by the current and carried out into the river. He had sunk twice when Connors got to him and brought his ashore.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The warm wave over the central valleys and plains States increased in intensity during Thursday, with temperatures of 100 degrees and over in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and South Dakota, the highest reading reported being 110 degrees at Concordia, Kan., which equals the highest ever recorded at that station.

Temperatures continue near the seasonal average in the East and Southeast, while the weather has become cooler in the Far Northwest. There were scattered showers and thunderstorms within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the Northwest, and rainfalls were heavy in certain districts.

Showery weather will continue Thursday and, probably Friday in the East Gulb, South Atlantic and Middle Atlantic States, Tennessee, West Virginia, and widely scattered showers are also probable in the north plains States, the upper Mississippi Valley, and upper lake region. In other parts of the country the weather will be fair Thursday and Friday.

Temperatures will be lower in the north Rocky Mountain region and the plains States and Friday in the middle plains States, the upper Mississippi Valley, and the upper lake region. Temperature changes elsewhere will be unimportant.

Winds along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts Thursday and Friday will be moderate south and southwest, South Atlantic Coast, moderate south.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy, with probable local thundershowers Thursday and Friday.

Western New York—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday, continued warm; fresh south winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

WOOL MARKET FIRM.

Sales Reported for the Week Reach 4,500,000 Pounds.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 15.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The wool market still continues firm and with an unusual volume of business for this period of the year. Sales during the week have been 4,500,000 pounds. The bulk of the trading is confined to the new territories which are now coming forward in good volume. An unusual feature of the market is the fact that a considerable quantity of the new clip, which thus far has passed into the hands of manufacturers, has been required to complete orders on heavy weights for the present season, and comparatively few mills have as yet anticipated their light weight requirements to any considerable extent.

"The goods market and the prices named on staples and semi-staples which have been largely shown the present week is of paramount interest to manufacturers in general.

"The cotton goods market is in a rather conservative mood with sales small, but prices well maintained. The fancy goods business has shown no great change during the week, though there are strong indications that an improvement will take place in the near future.

"The worsted and woolen yarn markets are not quotably changed, though an improvement can be seen and the future looks much brighter. Prices are very firm, spinners and dealers both obtaining their asking prices.

"The cotton yarn market does not show the improvement that was hoped for by spinners and dealers; in fact, in some sections it is reported orders have fallen off to a certain extent."

STEEL CAR COMPANY BUSY.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Brisk Rally After Decline—Factors Which Promise Better Trade Not Affected.

There was a good deal that was reassuring in the action of the stock market yesterday, in the face of facts and rumors which might well have caused demoralization if the Stock Exchange had been in an overextended position. The contrary of that, however, has been true for a good while past and the weakness which appeared in a number of issues affected by special influences yesterday so far from extending in any large degree to the list as a whole found no important reflection in most of the stocks which usually lead in points of activity. In these the net losses were confined to fractions. Some sold off sharply while the market was under greatest attack, but rallied briskly before the end of the session.

The financial community was called upon to encounter a variety of rumors which unsettled sentiment; specifically had to bear the brunt of heavy selling of several of the Eastern railroad stocks on rumors that the coming rate decision would be a disappointment and more particularly had to meet a severe decline in New Haven. Liquidation in this stock was prompted at least in part by the fact that a meeting of the road's Directors is to be held today to consider finally whether the company will meet the conditions laid down by the Department of Justice, or stand suit under the Sherman law. It seemed to many that conclusions were being rather loosely drawn in this New Haven situation, this point of view being emphasized in respect to a drop of six points between sales in the New Haven's convertible 6 per cent. bonds which on the purchase of a few more bonds recovered three points of this loss.

The selling of New York Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio was associated with the rumors regarding the rate decision, while in the case of the last named stock the fact that the Union Pacific is now free to distribute its Baltimore & Ohio holdings was an additional cause for the decline on the theory that this distribution will largely increase the market supply of Baltimore & Ohio. Union Pacific on the other hand profited by that same situation to the extent of showing a net gain of ⅝. The appointment of committees to represent Missouri Pacific security holders, a stockholders' committee being announced yesterday in addition to the committees formed the previous day, was regarded as a forerunner of a readjustment of the Missouri Pacific and its allied properties. Though welcomed in a sense this news drew further attention to the difficulties which some railroad properties have been encountering. The news regarding the manner in which the Claflin notes were put out was also widely discussed as one of the things contributing to the depressed state of sentiment. There was talk, too, of Congressional investigations into the affairs of the New York Central and Missouri Pacific, and other rumors which more clearly than these suggested great activity among those who were seeking to make a profit out of the unsettled state of the market.

All of these facts considered, the view may very reasonably be taken that the smallness of the losses in many of the usually most active stocks indicated a strong underlying position in the market as a whole. We have been passing through a period, not of expansion, but of liquidation and this has been true not of the stock market alone, but of trade as well. The fundamental situation is all the stronger for this nothwithstanding the fact that some problems inherited from the past are now being clearly brought to the surface. The improvement in general business which is being counted upon and which already is being manifested to some extent, has been founded upon the excellence of the agricultural outlook and upon certain other fundamental factors which are in no wise affected by the difficulties through which some parts of the security markets are now passing. That must be borne in mind if the financial situation as a whole is to be seen in its true perspective.

Against Shoestring Promotion.

These are poor days for the flotation of new enterprises that are not conceived on conservative lines. In boom times a plausible argument and a small amount of cash have often been deemed all that was needed to bring out a new company, and many concerns so launched ultimately succeeded. The banks give small encouragement today to such promotions.

A man with plans for a new business enterprise in which he hoped to interest banking capital was talking yesterday of his $600,000 company. The banker who was checking up his plans thought that $300,000 was ample, but applauded the suggestion that the concern start with twice that sum, since with so much capital its prospects seemed better. The promoter quickly disillusioned him by saying that it was proposed to put in but $60,000 of real cash.

"With such a start you are almost certain to fail," said the banker. "We will not help you get under way on those lines."

"Buttoning Up" Rock Island.

Renewed weakness in the Rock Island securities has broken out and has brought with it stories that the tentative readjustment plan has been blocked. Yesterday it was rumored that the interests back of the reorganization had about decided on a receivership as the easiest way out. A banker who has been largely instrumental in working out the plan now under consideration emphatically denied yesterday that the bondholders' and stockholders' committees had become discouraged. "We are buttoning up the new clothes day by day," he said. "I don't know that we will succeed, but we are not giving up, and there has not developed any opposition that we consider serious. The underwriting syndicate has been formed, but the terms are not settled, and the formal plan has not been submitted to the Illinois Commission for that reason."

Bonds Down.

The Rock Island Company's shares are so near the bottom that there is no money in selling them short. Yesterday the common stock sold at $1 a share, and the preferred at $2.25. The debenture 5s went off to 72 and the collateral 4s to 24⅝. Judging by the market activity, few of the collaterals remain in the hands of those who held them for their investment return until it was proposed to reorganize the companies. There are outstanding $71,353,000 of this issue, and from Jan. 1 last to yesterday sales on the New York Stock Exchange totaled $33,196,000.

Drawing a Parallel.

After the traders had ceased pounding New Haven yesterday an elderly broker approached another on the edge of the crowd. "Do you recall," he asked, "how we went short of Lake Shore around fifty one day back in the 80s?" The last recorded sale of Lake Shore on the Exchange, which occurred many weeks ago, was 480. The brokers might have been moved by their recollections to philosophize about Lake Shore then and New Haven now had not a fresh outburst of selling drawn their attention to more practical matters.

Figuring on Steel Earnings.

The market statisticians who sometimes draw surprisingly accurate estimates of pending statements of earnings by corporations have figured that the Steel Corporation will show for the June quarter a little more than $20,000,000 of net income. To come to this conclusion it was necessary for the calculators to give the final month a substantially better revenue than May and a still higher return than April. If the estimate approaches within $500,000 of the actual total to be announced in the last week of July it will still be less than half of the earnings in the corresponding quarter of last year when they were $41,219,000. In the preceding quarter this year the net amounted to $17,994,000.

Whole Market Affected By Decline.

Stocks which had lately displayed a stable character in the face of great weakness of particular issues could not stand up under such selling as occurred in New Haven and some others yesterday. There were times when it looked as though the entire market was in a fair way to slump heavily, and only brisk short covering toward the close prevented many sharp net declines. As it was losses of one and two points were common. New York Central sold down to the lowest figure since 1885. Its low point was 83⅝, as compared with a high quotation for the day of 88¼. In final trading a recovery to 85¼ was made. The session's turnover of 25,000 shares of Central was unusual for the stock and reflected the haste with which large blocks were put out at certain periods of the day. Canadian Pacific was another to move downward in an unexpected manner, touching at 183⅞ the lowest price in five years.

The Roads and the Mails.

The railroads are not satisfied with an amendment made to the Moon bill in the House which has to do with the carriers' pay for handling the mail. The alteration apparently restores $3,000,000 that the bill originally ordered to be held back from the roads, according to the examination made of it by Ralph Peters of the Long Island Railroad. Mr. Peters in a statement yesterday urged that, as the roads believe they are underpaid to the extent of $15,000,000 a year for transporting the mail, there should be no haste in new legislation. The Committee on Railway Mail Pay would like to have the findings of a Congressional committee, now investigating the problem made public before any law is enacted.

Frank E. Andruss has been elected assistant cashier of the Merchants' Exchange National Bank. Mr. Andruss was formerly with the banking firm of Kountze Brothers.

Among other features of interest to investors, the July Handbook of Securities to be issued by The Commercial and Financial Chronicle on July 14 will contain a yearly range of prices of stocks and bonds on the local Stock Exchange for the last six and a half years and of securities on the Philadelphia and Boston Exchanges for three and a half years.

H. S. Freeman, formerly with Herrick & Bennett, has joined the firm of George Reith & Co. as manager of the bond department.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Prices Decline After a Good Opening—Trading Quiet in Paris.

LONDON, July 15.—Money and discount rates were easy today.

The stock market started cheerfully, but later declined under further Continental and local liquidation. Consols lost three-sixteenths. Trading was quiet and the closing tone was easy.

Trading was active in the American section. The verdict in the Union Pacific case helped that stock, but weakened Baltimore & Ohio, as it is feared that the distribution of the Union Pacific holdings will increase the market supplies of the Baltimore & Ohio. Prices opened a fraction higher, but later most of the list reacted and fell below parity. The closing was irregular.

PARIS, July 15.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today.

BERLIN, July 15.—Prices opened higher but closed weak on the Boerse today.

COUNT BANKERS' VOTES.

Federal Reserve Machinery Works Smoothly in First Election.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The returns of Classes A and B for the twelve Federal Reserve Banks were canvassed today by the Organization Committee of the new Federal Reserve system. Each Director announced in his certificate his first choice for Director and also his second and third choices. These choices were confined to nominations made by the member banks, a list of such nominees having been sent to the electors. The electors are required by the law to certify first, second, and third choices within fifteen days from the time of receiving the lists.

The result of the election was gratifying to the members of the committee. The machinery of the new banking law from every indication seemed to have worked without complications and without producing friction anywhere. In the great majority of the returns there was a clear result with a majority for candidates for Director that were most numerously selected by the member banks when they sent in their nominations. In several cases the nominees did not have a majority of votes, and in these it will be necessary to hold another election. Even the possibilities of the preferential vote with second and third choice did not avail to bring about a selection. This was something of a surprise to the committee, but apparently it did not indicate any serious controversy or any condition that could not be easily taken care of in the future.

STEEL SENTIMENT MIXED.

Buying Some Better, but Low Prices Discourage the Industry.

The market for steel products is reported "spotty" this week. Prices are still unsatisfactory. The Iron Age says:

> In finished steel, which it is not unusual to find out of line with the merchant pig iron trade, varying degrees of encouragement are noted. There is no expectation of more than slow progress, nor are there signs of the near resumption of free contract buying. The mills are following the same policy as in January in limiting low priced sales. At the same time buyers will not make contracts at more than today's prices and are not in fear of paying more later.
>
> The immediate effect of the reduction in freight rates on southern pig iron to northern points has been the holding up of shipments of such iron by a good many foundries. In the month that elapses before the new rates are effective users plan to take in no more iron than they will need for bare operation.
>
> In some districts, as in Northern Ohio, the price of local iron has long been so much below the level for southern grades, that the 35-cent freight reduction on the latter does not restore the equilibrium. But Southern Ohio furnaces, already hard hit, will feel Alabama and Tennessee competition more keenly, and Chicago district furnaces will find southern sellers much more troublesome in their immediate territory.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> The mild improvement in the volume of steel bookings which began in June, has continued undiminished during the first half of July and has brought some encouragement to those companies that have felt it most. It is apparent, however, that not all companies have shared in it equally and that sentiment in the industry is considerably mixed. There is universal dissatisfaction with the low prices that manufacturers are obliged to accept. The Steel Corporation appears to be doing better than some of the independents, as in both new business and production, its record this month is ahead of June.

CRUDE OIL PRICE HIGHER EACH YEAR

Cockran Urges Examination of William Rockefeller Before Gas Suit Trial.

FROM 3.17 TO 5.125 CENTS

Decision Reserved on Motion in Read Stockholders Suit Against Brooklyn Union Gas Company.

Supreme Court Justice Blackmar in Brooklyn yesterday reserved decision on a motion to vacate an order for the examination of William Rockefeller, James H. Jourdan, David G. Leggett and other defendants before trial in the suit for an accounting as to $7,000,000 in profits, alleged to be concealed, brought by Thomas Read and other stockholders of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company against the Directors of that corporation.

"The Standard Oil bogy was dragged in," said William Dykman in his argument for the defendants yesterday, "and they charged that the defendants, except Rockefeller, were subservient tools of Rockefeller and that they hand over to the Standard Oil interests all the profits which the stockholders do not get. The only truthful allegation they have made is that the price of gas oil has increased and they assume, without the slightest proof, that James H. Jourdan and David G. Leggett of the gas company, who have no interest in the Standard Oil Company, are paying the latter concern a higher price than any one else pays for the same thing. These Don Quixotes of finance allege that our surplus is $14,000,000 and not $7,000,000. If our surplus is $14,000,000 or $7,000,000 we should be glad to know it."

Mr. Dykman contended that an examination of the Directors before trial was not necessary. The plaintiffs, including Mr. Read, he said, had sent public accountants to the company and these were given full access to the books and records, after the charge had been made that profits were being withheld from the stockholders. Mr. Dykman declared that the plaintiffs were only seeking a "melon cutting" in the way of an increase in dividends.

W. Bourke Cockran, for the plaintiffs, admitted that there was truth in this.

"They charge us with wishing to cut a melon," said he, "but they will cut the melon and take it all, being more practiced than we are. Nobody expects any thing from these Directors except good faith. It is true they are allowed by law to use their discretion in the distribution of profits, but they control the property of which we are the equitable owners and they must exercise their discretion soley and absolutely for our benefit.

"We, as equitable owners, have a right to know what they do with every penny of the money they take in. They speak of us as being financial Don Quixotes. I can talk of them as being financial Captain Kidds. They say that we have had access to their books, but bookkeeping as practiced in these big corporation offices is a fine art. The experts we employed knew absolutely nothing, nor do we know, as to whether the entries are bona fide or whether they merely covered up the assets concerning which we seek information."

Mr. Cockran said that the Standard Oil interests in the gas company were dealing unfairly with the stockholders. The company, he said, bought yearly 16,000,000 gallons of crude oil from the Standard Company. In 1912, Mr. Cockran said, the price paid was three and seventeen one-hundredths cents per gallon; in 1913 four and one-half cents, and this year five and one-eighth cents. Mr. Cockran charged that this increase in the price was not fair, and that it was met because of the Standard Oil influence in the company. The complaint of Standard Oil control, Mr. Cockran said, was true despite the denial of the defendants.

In denying that profits had been concealed and that the affairs of the company were directed from the office of the Standard Oil Company in Manhattan, Mr. Dykman said that William Rockefeller owned only 100 shares of the stock. Regular monthly reports, he said, were made by the company to the Public Service Commission, and there had been no attempt at concealment. Mr. Dykman argued that the plaintiffs showed ignorance of many facts and that they should be reprimanded by the court unless they justified their charges.

"The fact is," said Mr. Dykman, "that these stockholders want the court to decide how much the assets exceed the liabilities and declare big dividends or 'melons.' That is exactly the point."

J. D. BAUCUS BANKRUPT.

Wall Street Lawyer Owes $84,761 Against Nominal Assets of $339,994

Joseph D. Baucus, a lawyer of 49 Wall Street and a member of the Princeton Club, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday showing liabilities of $84,761 and nominal assets of $339,994, consisting of $49,850 claims for legal service, $17 cash, $25 office furniture, notes, $3,302, and shares of stock of $286,800 par value.

Mr. Baucus, who was at one time a partner of Senator Brackett, has spent many years in London as the representative of American interests. Among his assets are $236,000 stock of the Springfield, Wilmington & Cincinnati Railway Company and $42,200 stock of the National Mosaic and Marble Company.

Of his liabilities, $7,750 are secured, $48,346 are unsecured, and $28,500 are for accommodation paper. He had, moreover, indorsed $20,000 notes of the Springfield, Wilmington & Cincinnati Railway Company, of which the Carnegie Trust Company held $10,000 and the Windsor Trust Company the remainder. Against the railway company Mr. Baucus has a claim of $18,000 for legal services and a similar claim against W. Friese Greene for $12,500.

Among the creditors are the Citizens National Bank of Saratoga Springs, $4,488; the First National Bank of Saratoga Springs, $4,500; the National Bank of Schuylerville, $2,365; the People's National Bank of Hudson Falls, $600; Henry W. Wack, secured by 500 shares of the Warwick Trading Company, $6,750; Mrs. Esther D. Baucus of Schuylerville, $7,500; Mrs. Mary Baucus of Saratoga, $2,000; John Sherman, as administrator of Greenwich, N. Y., $8,000, and estate of Laura Mott, Saratoga, $4,000.

E. T. STOTESBURY IS HOME.

Morgan Partner Hasn't Thought About New Haven Report.

E. T. Stotesbury, the financier and patron of grand opera, arrived yesterday on the Imperator from a two months' trip through Europe. His partner, J. P. Morgan met him at the pier. He said he received a summary of the Interstate Commerce Comission report on the New Haven by wireless at sea, but he declined to give any opinion on the subject. He said he had not thought about it.

Mr. Stotesbury said he motored on the Continent, and did not pay much attention to business. He left Paris before the French loan was negotiated, and had not been to Germany, but from what he heard business conditions there were not good, he said. Mr. Stotesbury said that he would bring over the Russian imperial ballet next season.

Otto Kahn, another passenger on the Imperator, said the London and European markets were awaiting the result of the Ulster trouble, and the American markets were waiting for the rate decision.

Capt. Thomas Kier said the Imperator had encountered fog almost every day since leaving Hamburg, and had to reduce speed for six hours after leaving Nantucket. She made the trip of 3,154 miles in 5 days 18 hours and 30 minutes at an average speed of 22.8 knots. The passengers in all classes totaled 3,629.

MO. PAC. MYSTERY AS DEEP AS EVER

ONE FOR STOCKHOLDERS

And Another is to be Formed for Holders of $25,000,000 in Notes Recently Extended.

The Missouri Pacific situation was not clarified to any extent yesterday, officials of that company declining to make any formal statement on the action of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in forming two protective committees for the bonds. The shares dropped from 12 to 10⅝, but recovered to 11½ and suffered a net loss of only ⅜. The market was favorably surprised at the strength of the stock in the light of the latest developments.

Another committee entered the field yesterday to look after the interests of stockholders. Like the earlier committees, the members stated that they had no intention of asking for a deposit of the shares at this time. The committee is composed of James N. Wallace, Chairman; J. Horace Harding, Frederick Strauss, Albert H. Wiggin, and Robert Winsor. Joline, Larkin & Rathbone are counsel.

A member of one of the bondholders' committees made this explanation of the situation:

"Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have a vital interest in the bonds, because they brought them out, and they have been in receipt of numerous inquiries since the decline. It was thought best to let the holders of these securities know that responsible bankers were looking after them.

"It is a new departure to form protective committees for a property in no immediate crisis, but it was decided that by getting into the field now much valuable time might be saved. The Gould Directors themselves have admitted that a readjustment of the Missouri Pacific financial structure is imperative.

"It was supposed that the Board of Directors, in accordance with the statements made at the time of the extension of the $25,000,000 of notes, would at once start work on the readjustment. It seems that nothing has been done along these lines, and with the President and several Directors abroad, it is plain that nothing will be done by them until Fall. A readjustment should be undertaken more quickly, to be completed before the maturity of the notes. The committees were not formed after any conferences with Mr. Gould or his associates."

It is expected that a more thorough examination of the Missouri Pacific than was possible when John F. Stevens made a hurried inspection of the road for Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will be arranged.

Directors of the Missouri Pacific said that there was no possibility of a receivership prior to the maturity on June 1 next of the extended notes. The company has practically no floating debt and has funds for interest charges, it was stated.

"We recognize the conditions described in the Kuhn-Loeb letter of May 8," said a Director. "There will have to be a readjustment of the funded debt. Our credit has been taken away, and while I do not see what protective committees can do now, they will facilitate matters when our board takes up the matter of reducing fixed charges."

Speyer & Co. would make no statement regarding the extended notes, for the holders of which another protective committee is expected. The Directors of the Denver & Rio Grande will meet on the first Thursday in August to decide whether or not that company shall pay the half year's interest on the Western Pacific's bonds, guaranteed by the Denver.

Columbus R., P. & L. Co. Financing.

Stockholders of the Columbus Railway, Power & Light Company will hold a meeting at Columbus, Ohio, on July 29 to vote on proposed new financing. It is planned by the Directors to issue $3,145,000 prior preference stock to retire a similar amount of first consolidated mortgage 4 per cent. bonds of the Columbus Railway Company, the stock to be limited to 4 per cent. dividends. Also the shareholders will be asked to authorize the issue of $450,000 of 6 per cent. preferred stock to retire the same amount of first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds of the Columbus Electric Company. The parent concern's capital stock outstanding will be increased from $11,550,000 to $15,145,000 for the purpose.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

New Haven's heavy decline, together with the large price losses recorded by several other stocks, notably New York Central and Canadian Pacific, tended to unsettle the whole market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. New Haven was the early feature of the day. On the 9:30 o'clock opening call it changed hands for a small amount as high at 55 1-2. Subsequently it sold as low as 49 7-8. In the afternoon the special weakness in New York Central made it the feature. Covering of short contracts on a large scale and some buying of the "bargain hunting" sort brought about a rally from the lowest in the closing dealings. There were transactions in American Sugar Refining and National Lead, the only sales of these stocks in Wall Street all day.

U P.'S EXTRA DIVIDEND.

Directors Will Meet Today to Order Its Distribution.

With the Equitable suit finally settled by the decision handed down by the State Court of Appeals on Tuesday, the Union Pacific Railroad will proceed with the plan for distributing to holders of its common stock an extra dividend of 37 per cent. in Baltimore & Ohio stock and cash. A member of the board says that the payment probably will be authorized at a meeting to be held this morning. The dividend may be made payable July 20.

The Directors voted on Jan. 8, 1914, to distribute out of accumulated surplus to each share of common stock 12 per cent. in B. & O. preferred, 22 per cent. in B. & O. common and $3 in cash. This calls for the distribution of $50,016,000 B. & O. common, and $26,674,000 preferred. The stockholders already have received warrants exchangeable for the dividend.

In expectation of a large increase in the floating supply of Baltimore & Ohio stock the preferred shares of that company fell yesterday to 77⅜, a loss of 3⅜, and the common to 87⅛, a loss of 2⅛.

COMMODITY PRICES DOWN.

Dun's Index Number $119.708 Against $121.096 on June 1.

Next to the lowest point of the year was touched on July 1 by Dun's Index Number of commodity prices, the total on that date being $119.708, as against a minimum of $118.280 established on May 1. At the beginning of June the compilation showed $121.096, but there was a rise of about 3 per cent. in comparison with July 1, 1913, when the same wholesale quotations averaged only $116.319.

The low position recorded at that time was due mainly to the relative cheapness of dairy and garden products; on July 1, 1912, however, the Index was $120.147, or slightly above the level recorded at the same period of the present year. Except on two occasions, namely, March and June, an uninterrupted decline has occurred in values of the leading commodities since January 1.

PROPOSALS.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED at the Office of the Lighthouse Inspector, Tompkinsville, N. Y., until 3 o'clock P. M., July 22, 1914, and then opened, for furnishing and delivering to tidewater, New York Harbor, two Type L Acetylene Buoys. Blank proposals and particulars may be obtained by addressing the Lighthouse Inspector, Tompkinsville, N. Y.

Conservatism

Conditions of uncertainty in the business world or any prospect of a return to better business conditions are equally strong reasons for purchasing high-grade long term bonds at low prices such as are prevailing at present.

Our Bond Department, assisted by an expert statistical organization, is prepared to submit lists of investment suggestions adapted to any special requirements.

Default having been made in the payment of the interest due July 1, 1914, on each of the series of bonds above named, the undersigned, at the request of holders of a large amount of both series of said bonds, have agreed to act as a Committee for the protection of the interests of all said bondholders who shall become parties to an agreement now in process of preparation.

Holders of said bonds are requested to deposit the same with the EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, at its office, No. 37 Wall Street, New York City, the Depositary to be named in said agreement. All bonds so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the coupon maturing July 1, 1914, and all subsequent coupons. Certificates of deposit will be issued for the bonds deposited.

In the judgment of the Committee the interests of the said bondholders demand immediate concerted action for their protection, and it, therefore, requests that said bonds be deposited immediately.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained (as soon as the same is completed) from the Depositary or the Secretary of the Committee.

SEES SKYSCRAPER PERIL.

Building Owners Urged to Put Ban on High Structures.

DULUTH, Minn., July 15.—Franklin N. Wentworth of Boston in an address today before the National Association of Building Owners and Managers said that the modern skyscraper was a menace to life. He urged that the building of such structures cease. Mr. Wentworth is Secretary of the National Fire Protection Association.

"It is said that the up and down traffic on the elevators of New York City is almost as great as the horizontal traffic," Mr. Wentworth asserted. "New York City has been very fortunate. No disaster more horrifying could be imaginable than that which would occur if New York City should have an earthquake—just enough of a shock to break water and gas mains and to snap electric leads—the loss of life would be appalling. Imagine the panic if such a disaster should come during the rush hours when 100,000 persons would be in the subways or when panic-stricken occupants of great buildings were attempting to make their way down to the ground.

"The skyscrapers have made the subway a necessity. A great conflagration, such as is possible in New York, would bring the same disastrous results as an earthquake and choke the subways. New York is beginning to realize the menace and steps are being taken to limit the height of buildings.

FOR A GREATER JERSEY CITY

Bion J. Arnold Engaged to Aid in Public Improvement Plans.

Bion J. Arnold of Chicago was retained yesterday by the Executive Finance Committee of the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce as consulting engineer for the projected improvements in the city's commercial and industrial facilities. The principal work will be to develop port facilities, including the construction of docks and planning a connecting railroad to unite all the railroads and connect them with the docks and factory sites in the flats. Other work is planned by the chamber, but the question of improving the docks and connecting them with the railroads is the main question.

Mr. Arnold is at present working on a central terminal in Chicago, and is on his way to Europe. While in Europe Mr. Arnold will confer with F. Van Z. Lane, who is now abroad with another party studying municipal conditions, and who will act as resident engineer in charge of the work which the chamber is projecting.

The Chamber of Commerce now has more than 600 members, in spite of the fact that the dues have been heavily increased of late. It has absorbed the active element of the Property Interests Association, and hopes to co-operate with State, Federal, and other bodies to make Jersey City one of the great ports of the country.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Northern District of New York.—In the matter of PIERCE, BUTLER & PIERCE MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 5460.

NOTICE OF SALE.

Pursuant to an order duly entered in the above entitled proceeding on the 29th day of June, 1914, notice is hereby given that James P. Hill, Trustee herein, will sell at public auction at the office of said bankrupt, Pierce, Butler & Pierce Manufacturing Company, No. 282 James St., Syracuse, New York, on Thursday, July 23d, 1914, beginning at ten o'clock in the A. M., all the right, title, and interest of said Trustee in, of, and to the property and assets of said bankrupt, as specified in Exhibit 1 hereto attached, in the following manner, to wit:

(a) The Trustee shall first offer for sale the plants of the bankrupt, situate in the County of Onondaga, New York, consisting of the three pieces of real estate described in Parcel A of Exhibit 1 hereto attached, together with all the factories and other buildings and improvements thereon erected, and all the engines, dynamos, boilers, main shaftings, and other fixtures contained in any thereof, and shall ascertain the highest bid for the same.

(b) The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such combinations or lots as he shall deem to be best, the boiler patterns and fallow boards, the radiator patterns and fallow boards, and the boiler flasks and radiator flasks, contained in the plants of the bankrupt aforesaid, and more particularly set forth in Parcel B of Exhibit 1 hereto, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of such separate articles, or combinations, or lots of articles, so offered. The Trustee having ascertained the highest bid, if any, for each of such articles or combinations or lots of articles when so offered separately, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer all of said articles set forth in Parcel B of Exhibit 1 as a whole in one lot, and shall ascertain the highest bid for all such articles when offered as a whole. If the highest bid for all such articles when offered as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bids made for such articles or combinations or lots of articles when offered separately, then all bids for each of such separate articles or combinations or lots of articles shall be rejected, but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when such articles or combinations or lots of articles are offered separately shall be higher than the bid for all of said articles when offered as a whole, then the bid for said articles when offered as a whole shall be rejected.

(c) The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such combinations or lots as he may deem advisable, all the machinery, boilers, tools, implements, and equipment contained in the plants of the bankrupt aforesaid, and not theretofore offered for sale, also all delivery wagons and stable equipment, and also all office furniture, fixtures, and equipment in the plants of the bankrupt aforesaid and in its offices in Syracuse, including those in the boarding house lunch room and in the offices at 282 James Street, all as more particularly set forth in Parcel C of Exhibit 1 hereto attached, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of such separate articles or combinations or lots of articles so offered. The Trustee having ascertained the highest bid, if any, for each of such articles or combinations or lots of articles when so offered separately or in combinations or lots as aforesaid, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer all of said articles as set forth in Parcel C as a whole in any lot, and shall ascertain the highest bid for such articles when so offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for such articles so offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate of the highest bids made for such articles when offered separately or in combinations or lots, then the bids for such articles when offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be rejected; but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when such articles are offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for such articles when offered together as a whole, then the bid for said articles when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(d) The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such combinations or lots as he may deem advisable the raw material and finished and partly finished merchandise of the bankrupt, consisting of radiators and boiler castings in various processes, all completed radiators and boilers, all shop material and stores, and all other merchandise contained in the aforesaid plants and the Syracuse and Cleveland, Ohio, offices as set forth more in detail in Parcel D of Exhibit 1, and shall then offer for sale, separately or in such combinations or lots as he shall deem advisable, the merchandise in the New York warehouse and branch and in the Boston and Philadelphia branches consisting of boilers, radiators, trims, office supplies, and other merchandise as more particularly set forth in Parcels E, F, and G of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of such articles or combinations or lots of articles when so offered separately or in combinations or lots. The Trustee, having ascertained the highest bid, if any, for each of such articles or combinations or lots of articles when so offered separately or in combinations or lots, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer as a whole in one lot all of said articles set forth in Parcels D, E, F, and G, and shall ascertain the highest bid for all such articles when so offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for all of such articles when so offered as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bids offered for said articles when offered separately or in combinations or lots, then the bids for such articles when offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be rejected, but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when such articles are offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for said articles when offered together as a whole, then the bid for said articles when so offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(e) The Trustee shall then offer for sale in such lots or combinations as he shall deem most expedient the shares of stock and bonds owned by the bankrupt, specified in Parcel H of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any for each of such lots or combinations of stock and bonds so offered. The Trustee, having ascertained the highest bid, if any, for each of such so separately offered lots or combinations of stock and bonds, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer as a whole in one lot all of said shares of stock and bonds, and ascertain the highest bid for such shares of stock and bonds when so offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for said shares of stock and bonds when so offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bids for such stock and bonds when offered in lots or combinations as aforesaid, then the bids for each of such separate lots or combinations shall be rejected; but if the total amount of such highest bids when such stock and bonds are offered in separate combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for all of such stock and bonds when offered together as a whole, then the bid for said shares of stock and bonds when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(f) The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such combinations or lots as may to him seem advisable, the bills receivable and accounts receivable of the bankrupt, listed or referred to in Parcel I of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of such bills receivable and accounts receivable, or of such combinations or lots thereof, when offered separately or in combinations or lots as aforesaid. The Trustee, having ascertained the highest bid, if, any, for each of such bills receivable and accounts receivable, or combinations or lots thereof, when so offered separately or in lots or combinations, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer as a whole in one lot all of such bills receivable and accounts receivable, and ascertain the highest bid therefor when so offered as a whole. If the highest bid for all of such bills receivable and accounts receivable when offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the bids made for said bills receivable and accounts receivable when offered separately or in combinations or lots, then the bids for such separately offered bills receivable and accounts receivable or combinations or lots thereof shall be rejected; but if the total amount of such highest bids for said bills receivable and accounts receivable when offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for all said bills receivable and accounts receivable when offered together as a whole, then the bid for such bills receivable and accounts receivable when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(g) The Trustee shall then offer for sale the real estate and New York warehouse of the bankrupt described in Parcel J of said Exhibit 1, together with all the buildings and improvements erected upon said real estate and all the fixtures in said warehouse and buildings contained, and shall ascertain the highest bid for the same.

(h) The Trustee shall then offer for sale separately the three pieces of real estate in Onondaga County, New York, respectively described in Parcels K, L, and M of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of said three Parcels K, L, and M when offered separately, and then shall offer as a whole in one lot the combined Parcels K, L and M and ascertain the highest bid for said three properties when so offered as a whole. If the highest bid for said three properties when so offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bid for said three properties when offered separately, then the bids for each of such properties when offered separately shall be rejected; but if the aggregate amount of the said highest bids when said properties are offered separately is higher than the bids for said three properties when offered together as a whole, then the bid for said three properties when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(i) The Trustee shall then offer for sale separately all the right, title and interest of the bankrupt in and to certain real estate and certain leaseholds, respectively described in Parcels N, O, P, Q, R, S, T and U of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for such interest in each of the said Parcels N, O, P, Q, R, S, T and U when so separately offered. The Trustee, having ascertained the highest bid, if any, for such interest in each of said Parcels when so offered separately, and having determined the aggregate amount of all said highest bids, shall then offer as a whole in one lot the right, title and interest of the bankrupt in the combined Parcels N, O, P, Q, R, S, T and U and ascertain the highest bid for such interest in said properties when so offered as a whole. If the highest bid for such interest in said properties when so offered as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bid for such interest in all of said properties when offered separately, then the bids for such interest in each of such separate properties shall be rejected; but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when such interest in said properties are offered separately shall be higher than the bid for such interest in said properties when offered together as a whole, then the bid for such interest in said properties when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(j) The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such lots or combinations as may seem to him advisable, the office furniture and fixtures of the bankrupt in New York City, Boston, Philadelphia, and Cleveland, described in Parcel V of said Exhibit 1, and shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of said separately offered articles or combinations or lots of articles. The Trustee, having ascertained the highest bids, if any, for each of said articles or combinations or lots of articles when so offered separately or in combinations or lots as aforesaid, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer as a whole in one lot all of such articles set forth in Parcel V of Exhibit 1, and ascertain the highest bid for such articles when offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for such articles when offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bid for such articles when offered separately or in combinations or lots, then the bids for such articles when offered separately or in combinations and lots shall be rejected; but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when said articles are offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for such articles when offered together as a whole, then the bid for such articles when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

The Trustee shall then offer for sale, separately or in such lots or combinations as may seem to him desirable, all patents and applications therefor, all patent rights, patent licenses and rights thereunder, all copyrights, trade marks, trade brands, and trade designations, more particularly described in Parcel W of said Exhibit 1; also the good-will of the bankrupt in its broadest and most comprehensive sense; also the books of account, files, and all other papers and documents of the bankrupt relating to its credit department showing among other things a list of its customers, its correspondence and dealings with its customers, and all information regarding their financial standing and their trade and financial requirements and preferences; also, to the fullest extent in which a trustee in bankruptcy may, by sale under and by decree of court or otherwise, sell, assign, transfer, set over, and confirm the same unto a purchaser thereof at such sale and to his personal representatives, successors, and assigns, (1) the franchises of the bankrupt, (not including, however, its franchise to be a corporation,) (2) the right, benefit, and privilege to use, employ, and turn to profit the name of Pierce, Butler & Pierce Manufacturing Company as a trade or trading name or otherwise howsoever; and (3) any and all other interests, estates, claims, and demands of every kind and character whatsoever not hereinbefore enumerated, and which are susceptible of being sold by a trustee in bankruptcy. The Trustee shall ascertain the highest bid, if any, for each of said assets and rights so offered separately or in lots or combinations as aforesaid, and having ascertained such highest bids, and having determined the aggregate amount of all such highest bids, shall then offer all of said assets and rights as a whole in one lot, and shall ascertain the highest bid for such assets and rights when so offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for all of said assets and rights when offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bids for the said assets and rights when so offered separately or in combinations or lots, then the bids for the said assets and rights when so offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be rejected; but if the aggregate amount of such highest bids when such assets and rights are offered separately or in combinations or lots shall be higher than the bid for the said assets and rights when offered together as a whole then the bid for said assets and rights when offered together as a whole shall be rejected.

(l) The Trustee having ascertained and determined the aggregate amount of the highest bids for all the properties, assets, and rights of the bankrupt when so offered for sale as above, shall then offer for sale together as a whole, and in one lot, all of the properties, assets, and rights of the bankrupt theretofore offered for sale, and shall ascertain the highest bid for all said properties, assets, and rights when so offered together as a whole. If the highest bid for all of said properties, assets, and rights when offered together as a whole shall be higher than the aggregate amount of the highest bids for said properties, assets, and rights as theretofore offered, then the bids for all of said properties, assets, and rights as theretofore offered shall be rejected, and the bid for all of such properties, assets, and rights when offered together as a whole shall be accepted. If, however, the highest bids offered for all of said properties, assets, and rights when offered together as a whole shall be less than the aggregate amount of the highest bids therefor when theretofore offered, then the highest bid for all of said properties, assets, and rights when offered together as a whole shall be rejected, and the highest bids therefor as theretofore offered under the separate subdivisions of this order shall be accepted.

3. That the said Trustee shall require, as a condition precedent to the right of any proposed bidder to make a bid for any of said properties, assets, and rights, that said proposed bidder shall deliver to the Trustee, either in cash or in a certified check upon a National Bank payable to the order of the Trustee, an amount equal to not less than ten per cent. of the aggregate amount of any bid or bids made by any such proposed bidder and not rejected, or shall deliver to the Trustee claims against the bankrupt duly proved and allowed herein, in the name of or assigned to said proposed bidder, in amounts equal to not less than fifteen per cent. of the aggregate amount of any bid or bids made by any such proposed bidder and not rejected. That the balance of the purchase money shall be paid, in cash or in claims of creditors against the bankrupt duly proved and allowed herein, in the manner hereinafter directed, within ten days after the approval and confirmation of such sale by the Court. That such approval and confirmation shall be necessary for the validity of any such sale or sales, and shall be granted or withheld after a hearing, to be held at ten o'clock A. M., on July 24, 1914, at Watertown, N. Y.

4. That any purchaser or purchasers of the whole or any part of the properties, assets and rights of the bankrupt sold by virtue of this order and decree, shall be entitled in settlement or payment for the properties, assets, and rights purchased, to use and apply, towards the payment of the purchase price of the properties, assets and rights so purchased, any claims of creditors of the bankrupt duly filed and allowed in these proceedings owned by or assigned to such purchaser, by presenting to the Trustee such evidence of said claims as the Trustee may require. For the above purposes such claims shall be estimated as having a value equal to the sum payable out of the net proceeds of such sale and out of the other assets of the bankrupt estate to the holder of such claims as his ratable share of such net proceeds and other assets, after allowing for the proportion of the total payment required to be made in cash for the costs and expenses of the sale and of the bankruptcy proceedings, or otherwise, and if such share of the net proceeds and other assets shall be less than the amount then due upon such claim, such purchaser may make such settlement by receipting upon each proof of claim the amount to be credited thereon, and such claim shall be deemed to have been paid only to the extent of the amount so credited. Any purchaser or purchasers so using and applying towards the payment of the purchase price of any property so purchased by him the estimated dividends or amounts payable on account of claims of general creditors of the bankrupt duly filed and allowed, and owned by or assigned to the said purchaser, shall give to the Trustee a satisfactory undertaking to repay to the Trustee upon his request such portion of the purchase money as has been so paid by the application of the estimated dividends, as may be necessary, if the sum received by the Trustee, together with the other assets of the bankrupt estate, be thereafter found and determined by the court to be insufficient to pay on all claims proved and allowed (unsecured and not entitled to priority or preference, and on any balance proved and allowed on secured claims after due realization on the security thereof) dividends credited as aforesaid, so that there may be paid or finally credited, by the Trustee on all claims proved and allowed (unsecured and not entitled to priority or preference, and on any balance proved and allowed on secured claims after due realization on the security thereof) dividends of like and equal aggregate amounts respectively. In estimating the amount which the claims proved and allowed will be ultimately entitled to receive out of the proceeds of said sale and out of the other assets of the bankrupt estate, proper allowance shall be made by the Trustee for the payment in full of all claims entitled to payment prior to claims of general creditors and of all the expenses of every kind and character whatsoever incurred under and by virtue of the bankruptcy proceedings.

5. That should the total aggregate amount of the price or prices realized at said sale for all the properties, assets, and rights of the bankrupt exceed the total amount payable out of the assets of the bankrupt estate for all charges and expenses relating thereto and the total amount with interest of the claims of all creditors duly proved and allowed, then and in that event any purchaser or purchasers of the whole or any part of the properties, assets, and rights of the bankrupt so sold shall be entitled, in settlement or payment for the properties, assets and rights purchased, to use and apply towards the payment of the excess of the purchase price or prices over and above the expenses and charges in the bankruptcy proceedings and all claims of creditors as aforesaid, shares of the preferred capital stock of the bankrupt by presenting to the Trustee certificates of such preferred stock issued or duly assigned to such purchaser. For the above purposes such preferred stock, which is entitled to distribution from the assets of the bankrupt before anything is distributed on the common stock, shall be estimated as having a value equal to the sum payable out of such excess in the purchase price to the preferred stock so presented to the Trustee, and such purchaser may make such settlement by receipting upon the shares of preferred stock so presented by him the amount thus to be credited thereon. Any purchaser or purchasers so using and applying toward the payment of such excess in the purchase price the estimated amounts payable on account of preferred stock owned by or assigned to said purchaser, shall give to the Trustee a satisfactory undertaking to repay to the Trustee upon his request such portion of the purchase money as has been so paid by the application of the estimated amounts payable as aforesaid upon such preferred stock as may be necessary to enable the payment by the Trustee upon the other shares of preferred stock an amount equal to that to be credited upon the preferred stock presented by such purchaser.

JAMES P. HILL, Trustee.

Dated June 30, 1914.

EXHIBIT I.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Fifth Avenue Apartment Planned Adjoining Phipps Residence—West Eighty-sixth Street Plot in $1,500,000 Transaction—Park Avenue Corner Sold—Post Office Deal on Suffolk Street.

Genuine activity characterized the realty market yesterday, the east and west sides of the city being about equally divided in the prominence of the deals. On the west side the transaction of first importance was the sale of the big plot lately accumulated by Franklin Pettit, in Eighty-sixth Street, between Riverside Drive and West End Avenue, to a new corporation for the erection of two twelve-story apartment houses.

On the east side, in addition to the sale of the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street for an apartment house operation, the event of chief interest was the announcement that a company has been formed to take over the old Trask property at 1,066 and 1,067 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the Henry Phipps residence on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street for the purpose of erecting a twelve-story apartment house. The new company was represented in the transaction by Wilder, Ewen & Patterson as attorneys.

$1,500,000 West Side Transaction.

The Eighty-sixth Street west side deal, in addition to being one of the largest of the recent big transactions in that part of the city, is also interesting in revealing the activity of builders in erecting high-class apartment structures. The property includes the seven private residences, from 310 to 322 West Eighty-sixth Street, fronting 144 feet on the south side between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive. By acquiring a few days ago the house at 316 from Stuard Hirschman, Franklin Pettit, President of the Realty Company of America, rounded out the plat which he had been striving to obtain for two years.

This large plot has now been sold by Mr. Pettit to a new corporation formed by the architects, Mulliken & Moller, and they have designed for the company two high-class twelve-story houses, each of which will cover a plot fronting 72 feet by 102.2 They will cost about $450,000 each and with the land the entire deal will represent an investment of close to $1,500,000.

Park Av. Corner in $200,000 Sale

As a site for a ten-story apartment house the southwest corner of Eighty-seventh Street and Park Avenue was purchased yesterday by Edgar A. Levy, who has erected several similar structures on the avenue.

This property just purchased consists of a plot fronting 50.8 feet at 1054 and 1,056 Park Avenue and 100.6 feet on Eighty-seventh Street, including 66 East Eighty-seventh Street, which has a depth of 100.8.

The plot is now covered with three old-fashioned five-story flat houses, and was purchased by Mr. Levy from Alma Rosenberg and others. About $200,000 was involved in the sale, which was negotiated by Lem S. Altmayer.

The site adjoins the fifty foot plot 1050 and 1052 Park Avenue purchased by Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum on Tuesday.

West Side Apartments Traded.

Several west side apartment houses figured in sales and trades yesterday. The Brentwood, a six-story structure at 507 and 509 West 147th Street on a plot 50 by 100, was sold by the Riverview Construction Company to the Noillacs Realty Company for investment. The buyer gave in part payment the plot 100.10 by 117 by 114 on Pinehurst Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of 181st Street. The Riverview Construction Company will erect two high-class apartment buildings on the plot. McDowell and Mahon negotiated the trade.

In the West Harlem section Arnold, Byrne & Baumann sold for the Janem Realty Company to the Henry Morgenthau Company, 2157 and 2161 Seventh Avenue, southwest corner of 128th Street two five-story flats, on plot 50 by 75; also 110 and 112 West 129th Street, two five-story flats, on plot 53.9 by 99.11; also 168 West 130th Street, a three story dwelling, 20 by 100.

The properties were given in part payment to the Henry Morgenthau Company for the apartment house at the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 143d Street, reported sold recently.

J. N. Francolini Buys Dwelling.

Joseph N. Francolini, President of the Italian Savings Bank, has purchased for occupancy from Mrs. Josephine Guild, 160 West Eighty-eighth Street, a three-story private dwelling, on a lot 18 by 100.8 feet. The F. R. Wood-W. H. Dolson Company negotiated the sale.

East Side Deal for New Post Office.

An interesting east side deal, which involves the lease of a new building to be erected by the United States Government for a Post Office, has been closed by the Charles F. Noyes Company. The plot sold was at 45 to 51 Suffolk Street, now covered by a two-story theatre, on plot 75 by 100 feet, between Grand and Broome Streets. It was sold for the El Nido Holding Company (represented by Gettner, Simon & Ashe,) to Alfred M. Rau. The Noyes Company has leased, for Mr. Rau, to the Government, the Station B Post Office.

The lease is for a long term of years at $15,000 per annum plus maintenance. The ground was held by the sellers at $110,000. The combined transaction represents a total of about $300,000. Liebman & Tanzer, attorneys, represented Mr. Rau. This lease is the second made through the Noyes Company recently for Post Office buildings, the other being the lease to the Government of the ground floor of the Bradstreet Building, Lafayette and Howard Streets.

Tenement Property Sale.

The five-story tenement, 519 First Avenue, on a lot 25 by 75, was sold yesterday for a third time within a month. Lowenfeld & Prager resold it to Valentine Herold, who owns the adjoining property which is similar, and the abutting five-story apartment, 349 East Thirtieth Street. The sellers acquired the parcel a few weeks ago from the Keilbert Construction Company, in exchange for a plot on Findlay Avenue, near 169th Street. The Keilbert Company previously took it, together with the flat, 111 East 118th Street, in part payment from John Sullivan for an apartment house on Home Street, near Southern Boulevard.

Wilson M. Powell sold to Nicholas Nasby, 20 East 118th Street, a five-story flat, on lot 25 by 100, near Second Avenue.

Recent Buyers.

Louis Berni is the buyer of 252 West Fourteenth Street, recently sold for Robert G. Langdon by the Duross Company.

Edward Keller is the purchaser of No. 80 Jane Street, recently sold by Duross Company for Ephriam Bass.

Architects Get Mortgage From Germany.

The Society of Beaux Arts took title yesterday to Jacob H. Schiff's stable at 126 East Seventy-fifth Street, a plot 39.6 by 102.2, the title being transferred by Theresa Schiff. The consideration was nominal, but the new owners have obtained a mortgage of $49,500, taken by Max M. Warburg of Hamburg, Germany. It is to run five years at 5 per cent. The stable will be altered into an atelier for architectural students.

Brooklyn

Samuel Galitzka has sold for The John E. Sullivan Company, to a client for investment the four-story double brick apartment house, No. 442 Fifty-first Street, on a plot 30 by 100 feet.

Good Price for L. I. City Plot.

William D. Bloodgood & Co. have sold at Long Island City a plot 150 by 100 on the west side of Twelfth Avenue, 125 feet south of Jamaica Avenue, for Charles J. Doran to the T. & M. Realty Company. The City of New York became the possessor of another parcel of real estate yesterday through the purchase of Henry Bruere as City Chamberlain, of the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 156th Street, a five-story apartment house on a lot 25 by 99.9. The sale was conducted by the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company as auctioneers under the direction of Irving H. Tifft, Esq., referee. The property was sold as a result of foreclosure proceedings to satisfy a lien of $37,145 with interest and taxes.

Realty Notes.

The Merzon Realty Company has taken title to University Court, a seven-story apartment on the north corner of 117th Street and Morningside Avenue. The property was transferred by the Major Realty Company subject to a $200,000 mortgage.

Maximilian Zipkes, architect, has moved his office to 405 Lexington Avenue, northeast corner of Forty-second Street, in the Long Beach Building.

Plans have been filed for a one-story store and dance hall on the south side of 135th Street, 20 feet west of Madison Avenue, for the James Everard Estate. It will have a frontage of 176 feet and a depth of 88 feet. Louis A. Sheinart, the architect, has placed the cost at $25,000.

CHARGE CITY IS LAX IN TRACK REMOVAL

WANT 'CONSISTENT POLICY'

Action by Legislature Urged if the New York Central Fails to Come to Terms.

Charging that the city has not been active enough in trying to do away with the New York City Railroad tracks along the west side, and that it has not put forward the right solution of the freight and terminal problems on Manhattan Island, twelve prominent civic organizations, acting together, sent a letter yesterday to Controller Prendergast and the members of the Committee on Port and Terminal Facilities of the Board of Estimate suggesting that the matter be taken up with the next Legislature.

Representatives of the organizations also conferred with the Controller and the members of the committee and urged it was of the greatest importance that the city prepare a general plan of its own for the solution of the freight and terminal problem on Manhattan Island, which would afford the New York Central Railroad, on reasonable terms, an opportunity to remove its tracks from the streets. It was suggested also that if the railroad company rejected the proposal of the city, the next Legislature should be asked to repeal the law passed in 1911 authorizing the preparation and agreement on plans by the city and the railroad company and that legislation be enacted forbidding the further operation of the railroad at grade upon city streets.

Dr. John P. Peters was made Chairman of the Committee on Conferees. The organizations represented were the City Club, the Citizens Union, the Independent Club of the West Side, the West End Association, the Twenty-Third Street Improvement Association, the Chelsea Neighborhood Association, the Women's Municipal League, the League to End Death Avenue, the Merchants' Association, the West Side Taxpayers' Association, the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, the Greenwich Village Improvement Association. In its letter to the Committee on Ports and Terminal Facilities of the Board of Estimate the Chairman of the combined civic organizations said:

"Since the public hearing on June 24 a year ago before the Committee of the Board of Estimate having in charge the matter of the tracks of the New York Central Railroad Company along the west side, of which committee his Honor the Mayor was then Chairman, nothing seems to have been done by the city authorities to secure the removal of the tracks from Eleventh Avenue and the elimination of the nuisance in Riverside Park. In his opinion, rendered on June 24, 1913, the Corporation Counsel stated that as to the portions of Twelfth Avenue between Seventy-second and 129th Streets any doubt as to the title of this property should be resolved 'in favor of the city until it is otherwise judicially determined.'

"In the report of the sub-committee of the Board of Estimate under public discussion in the Spring of 1913 it was made clear that the sub-committee was endeavoring to solve two problems simultaneously—the elimination of the operation at grade of the present tracks of the New York Central Railroad Company and the solution of the freight terminal problem upon Manhattan Island. The public discussion disclosed beyond doubt that the effort to solve these two problems at the same time without the city having a general plan of its own had resulted merely in complicating the situation, confusing the issues, and leading to the acceptance of certain legal and business propositions advanced by the railroad company, which did not, and could not, meet with the approval of the civic organizations.

"The history of 'Death Avenue' is a history full of legislation and litigation, in all of which the city has been under the disadvantage of having no consistent policy, while the railroad company has had the advantage of a consistent and determined policy from the passage of the original Saxe law until the present day. It has been the view of the civic organizations interested in the problem that the remedy lay in the exercise by the Legislature of its power to compel the discontinuance of the operation of the railroad at grade. That this method is constitutional was frequently pointed out and now has been confirmed by the decision of the Court of Appeals. By making propositions to the city from time to time, and securing additional legislation, the railroad company has successfully tied the hands of the city now for over ten years, and we are today no further on in the solution except that the Statute of Limitations is running against the city's rights."

As a basis upon which the city could proceed, these features were suggested as essential: That the railroad tracks be removed from the surface of Eleventh Avenue and other streets and public parks; that Riverside Park, as a park, be developed to its full extent by the improvement of park lands west of the present railroad right of way; that the title of the city to lands along the water front be investigated and that no such lands owned by the city be alienated; that title to the streets and avenues now owned by the city from Fifty-ninth to Seventy-second Street be retained by the city and that such of them as convenience demands be opened as public thoroughfares by means of viaducts over the tracks; that instead of continuing the freight yard north of 134th Street, a yard for terminal and market facilities, adequate for the needs both of the railroad and of Harlem, be developed east of the railroad and south of the north side of 134th Street; that any additional facilities for the railroad company south of Sixtieth Street be upon such terms as will neither block the water front nor give the railroad company a monopoly of freight facilities on the west side; that under no circumstances must any arrangement permit the railroad to establish a stock yard upon Manhattan Island or a railroad yard or terminal on or along Riverside Park or Washington Heights or the Inwood section; that such terminals be established at Manhattanville and Dyckman Valley, and that the right of way of the railroad north of 135th Street be either covered or put in a tunnel except at Dyckman Valley.

"We are of the opinion," the letter continued, "that, in view of the power of the Legislature to enact mandatory legislation and the repeated failure of the railroad company to make reasonable proposals to the city, the time has arrived when it must do away with the nuisance it has operated for so many years; that it must not be permitted by capitalizing its present obnoxious situation to secure additional franchises or to block the way to a solution of the freight terminal problem of New York. The most that the railroad company has the right to expect from the city is an opportunity to remove its tracks from operation at grade, upon reasonable business terms adequately safeguarding the future rights of the city."

GIRLS CAPTURE WALL ST.

Four Young Suffragists Draw Crowds and Get Cash for the Cause.

Four attractive girls, some suffrage arguments, and a big bass drum, all representing Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's Political Equality Association, pretty nearly drew the entire financial district into the suffrage fold yesterday at noon.

A big crowd gathered around the automobile during its stops at Broad and Wall and Broad and Beaver Streets and for two hours the girls made speeches and answered arguments, while the crowd alternately listened in respectful silence or cheered and laughed at telling responses to questions.

The girls who spoke were Miss Florence Harmon and Miss Rose Sanderman, and while they were making addresses Miss Carol Harmon and Blanche Schlessinger sold buttons and suffrage literature.

"You see," said Miss Rose Sanderman, "they thought that young girls didn't want the vote—that it was only the older women who wanted it. But when they saw us they realized their error, and they were so nice, and they said we had made a number of converts."

Miss Harmon, of whom some of the men said she was the most logical speaker they had ever heard, settled one question the Wall Street men seemed anxious about.

"How about prohibition?" they wanted to know. "The women will all be prohibitionists."

"Oh, no," replied Miss Harmon, "we shan't have anything to do about that. The men will do it all for us. West Virginia, not a woman's State, has just gone for temperance by many thousands. Only one of the States in which women vote is a prohibition State, and that is Kansas, which went for prohibition before the women voted. Maine, Mississippi, and Tennessee, and all the other dry States, were made so by men."

There was much laughter at this and also at the reply Miss Sanderman gave to a man who wanted the question of suffrage referred to the women of the country, all those who did not vote to be counted as opposed.

"We shall be very glad to do that when the men, in any big question they are voting on, are willing to have the voices of the men who do not vote counted in the negative," she said, and the crowd shouted with laughter.

Miss Harmon sounded the drum call on the big bass drum which brought the crowds together. Miss Sanderman is a bugler, but she reserved her bugling for a time when there were no other attractions. The crowd not only gave applause to the speakers, but a generous amount of cash.

RE-ENACT BALLOU'S FALL.

Coroner Starts Tests of Mrs. Angle's Theory of Death.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 15.—Coroner Phelan made some interesting tests this afternoon to determine the plausibility of the story that Waldo R. Ballou was killed by a fall down stairs. Coroner Phelan visited the rooms of Mrs. Helen M. Angle, where Ballou was a caller on the night of the tragedy. Patrick Rabbitt, a carpenter, who lived in the Rippowan building, says that on the night of Mr. Ballou's death he heard a sound as of falling furniture. It is the theory of the lawyers who are defending Mrs. Angle that the sound he heard was made by Mr. Ballou's fall.

Coroner Phelan did not complete his tests today. While State's Attorney Cummings and Dr. Charles B. Meade listened Coroner Phelan and Dr. Bruce Weaver ran up and down the stairs from Mrs. Angle's apartment to the landing near Mr. Rabbitt's room. Their footballs could be heard distinctly in Mr. Rabbitt's room. Mr. Cummings and the Coroner then tried to talk to one another from opposite sides of the partition. They shouted and their voices reached one another indistinctly. The tests satisfied both as to the plausibility of Mr. Rabbitt's story.

Other tests will be made. A dead weight will be dropped on the landing and a weight will be dropped in Mrs. Angle's apartment above.

The inquest will be resumed on Monday afternoon, and it is likely that Mr. Rabbitt will be the only witness. Mrs. Angle, it is likely, will not be called. Judge Finch says important evidence in behalf of Mrs. Angle will be offered.

It was said today that the analysis made by Dr. Weaver, who is the State's expert, showed that many stains found in Mrs. Angle's apartment were not blood stains. It was admitted tonight that the State's investigation is now being conducted on the theory that Mr. Ballou was struck outside Mrs. Angle's apartment and pitched down the stairway. It is not admitted by the State that he could have received his injuries by falling down stairs.

BEEF SUPPLY SHORT, PRICES GO SOARING

Rate to Retailers Increased from 30 to 70 Cents a Hundred Pounds and it May Go Higher.

WEST CAN'T MEET DEMAND

Swift Manager Says New England and the South Must Be Depended Upon to Relieve Situation.

The price of beef to the retailers has been advanced since last week from one-quarter to three-quarters of a cent a pound by the wholesalers, making beef prices higher than they ever were before. In some parts of the city it is reported that retailers are charging three or more cents a pound more than they charged last week, but these prices, according to the wholesalers, are unwarranted.

A reporter who interviewed wholesale dealers got the impression that higher prices than those quoted yesterday might prevail before the end of the Summer. There seemed to be no reason to believe though the increase in the price of beef would be more than a cent a pound. The only reason assigned for the rise in price was a falling off in the supply in the Western markets.

The unprecedented rate of 10.65 cents a pound for beef on the hoof was reported from New Jersey this week and in Chicago the rate was 10 cents. A year ago much comment was aroused when beef brought 10 cents a pound on the hoof in Chicago.

According to the latest reports received by Swift & Co. in this city, the price for beef on the hoof in Chicago this week is from 15 to 35 cents more a hundred pounds than was paid last week. The range of prices for all kinds of beef in Chicago, according to these figures, was from 7.85 to 10 cents a pound on the hoof as compared with 7.75 to 9.65 cents a week ago. The range in prices a year ago was from 7.15 to 9.15 cents.

W. H. Noyes, General Manager for Swift & Co., explained that the increased prices paid by his firm in Chicago were being passed on to the retailers here. Taking into consideration that 100 pounds of beef on the hoof yields only 55 to 58 per cent. of dressed beef, the increase to retailers in this city for this week amounts to from 30 to 70 cents a hundred pounds, depending on the grade of beef, or from one-quarter to three-quarters of a cent a pound. Mr. Noyes would not discuss the prices charged to consumers by butchers. He denied though a report which had been published that wholesalers had increased the price of meats four cents a pound.

Mr. Noyes produced the reports of his company for the daily receipts of live stock in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul, Fort Worth, Milwaukee, and Sioux City, the principal live stock markets of the country. Taking Monday, which is a big buying day in the stock yards, as an example, Mr. Noyes showed that only 15,000 head of cattle were brought to Chicago last Monday, as compared with 21,362 on the corresponding Monday a year ago. The other cities showed a similar shrinkage in the receipts. The total receipts of six of the nine markets named for last Monday were 37,100, as against 25,000 a week ago and as against 53,500 a year ago. The receipts for 1914 up to last Monday in these six markets were 2,965,000, as compared with 3,340,000 for the corresponding time a year ago.

"The figures tell the story," said Mr. Noyes. "There is a scarcity of beef and prices will not drop until the scarcity is overcome. We must look to New England and the South for an increase in the cattle supply. The West cannot supply the demand. The arrival of Argentine beef helps to keep prices down and its importation is a good thing for the country. I cannot forecast what will happen in the future but this talk about an enormous jump in the price of beef is silly. I see by one of the newspapers that notices have been sent by some wholesalers to retailers warning them that there will be another rise in prices later in the Summer. Our firm has sent out no such notice. The supply of beef is the index of prices."

The price of pork has increased and the rate is the highest charged this year. The increase is slight, however, and not as pronounced as the increase in beef. The hog market is in much the same condition as it was in the Spring of 1913. A considerable decline in price is reported in the sheep market, due it is said to heavy shipments of sheep and lambs to the markets.

YACHT YARDS BURNED OUT.

Midnight Fire on the Harlem Also Destroys Stephens Coal Plant.

Patrolman Hyands of the Highbridge Police Station discovered a fire at 12:30 o'clock last night in the big plant of the New York Yacht, Launch & Engine Co., along the Harlem River front at 177th Street. Before the fire which ensued had been gotten under control it had practically destroyed the plant of the New York Yacht, Launch & Engine Co., and the coal yards, stables and trestles of the O. J. Stephens Coal Company, next to the yacht building concern on the north side.

Several New York Central trains were held up during the time of the fire on the main line of the raod, which passes next to the burned plants.

All the buildings which took fire lie between the railroad and the Harlem River shore. The flames spread north from the yacht company plant to the Stephens Coal Company yards. This plant has several large frame buildings, some stables, and some large trestles that reach out into the river and are used for the unloading of coal. The fire traveled the length and breadth of the plant, and it will be almost a total loss.

To the south of the yacht company plant lies the plant of the Leonard Construction Company, with stables which house 100 horses. The reserves of the Highbridge and Kingsbridge stations turned to the rescue of the animals as one of their first tasks and succeeded in getting all of them out safely, though it was done with difficulty.

Beyond the coal yard to the north lies the Morris Dock Viaduct, a heavy frame structure which leads traffic above the railroad tracks to a dock almost under High Bridge. Beyond this is the Charles L. Seabury & Co. plant, where several famous yachts have been built. The firemen directed a heavy stream on the viaduct and the Seabury plant, and it was said at 2 o'clock that there was very little chance of the fire getting to either of them.

In the New York Yacht, Launch & Engine Co. yards were, among others, E. P. Tarmadge's Theresa, which was badly burned, and a yacht belonging to R. E. Owen. Another whose owner's name was not known, was said to have been designed by Ernest Lorillard. In the Seabury yards among other yachts, are Frank Gould's 150-foot Hiawatha and John Bouzine's Kanawha.

Patrolmen Hynes and Henry of the Highbridge Station saved four yachts from possible destruction, by making a dash through the burning yards to the water's edge, where the policemen cut their moorings and a tug boat pulled them into the river. The boats thus saved were the Rowena, a ninety-foot house boat, and the Elsie, Katydid, and Traffic, forty-foot launches.

Whitman's Secretary Under Knife.

Lloyd Dorsey Willis, Secretary to District Attorney Whitman, was operated on yesterday for the removal of his appendix. His physician, Dr. Herman Reis of 306 West Ninety-ninth Street, said last night that the operation had been entirely successful, and that Mr. Willis would be out in about ten days. Mr. Willis had not been seriously ill, but had had recurring appendix troubles for a year.

GUILTY PLEA STOPS WHITE SLAVE TRIAL

ELEVEN MORE TO BE TRIED

Girl of Sixteen Tells How She Was Lured from Home by Prisoner's Love-Making.

Fredrico Carfaro, one of the persons accused in recent white slave cases in the Bronx, astonished his own attorneys and the prosecutor by interrupting his trial before Judge Gibbs yesterday to enter a plea of guilty. The plea was accepted and Carfaro was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Eleven others are awaiting trial on similar charges and it was rumored that Carfaro would be a witness for the State and would tell the whole story of a white slave organization operating throughout the city.

Carfaro's father and his older brother Chris are among the eleven still awaiting trial. Chris Carfaro, in the opinion of the police and the District Attorney, is the head of the gang. He is known as the "Mayor of Little Italy" in the Bronx and is alleged by the police to be regularly in the business of sending women to resorts. An application to have his bail reduced from $10,000 failed after District Attorney Martin had entered objection on the ground that the prisoner was too powerful politically in the Bronx to make it safe for him to be at large.

Fear was expressed that witnesses would be intimidated and there seemed to be ground for the fear yesterday, when City Marshal John C. Hoefling appeared in court with parts of a non-explosive bomb that had been sent to him by mail. The bomb, while non-explosive, was filled with threatening letters wrapped up into a bundle, and Hoefling reported that three threatening telephone calls had come to him after he received the bomb.

It was Hoefling who found Mrs. Delia Hanson of Bridgeport in a Bronx flat on July 5. She is counted on as the State's best witness against the ten men and one woman still awaiting trial. She did not appear yesterday, as the specific charge against Carfaro was that of luring a sixteen-year-old girl to a flat in East 146th Street on the night of June 5 last. Josephine Wahler, the complaining witness, was called to the stand after four hours had been consumed in obtaining a jury.

The girl said she was born at 301 East 104th Street on Feb. 4, 1898, and so was just over 16 years of age. Attorney William A. Keir for the defense attempted to show that the girl had told persons at various times that she was more than 17 years old. Her denial that she had ever made such a statement brought an order from Judge Gibbs that cross-examination on this point be abandoned.

Miss Wahler described wooing scenes in which she said that Carfaro told her how much he loved her and how he planned to marry her.

On account of her affection for the young man, the witness said she consented to go with him to the house where the police found her. She was introduced there, she said, to a number of other girls, three of whom she identified in the courtroom. These three girls, Nora O'Connell, Corine Housen, and Frances Perez, were held as material witnesses in the white slave cases still to be tried.

The second witness, Mrs. Elizabeth Ormond, sister of Miss Wahler, told of her interest in the young girl and her effort to keep her at her home at 1,073 Washington Avenue. The proprietor of the flat to which the girl was taken by Carfaro was about to testify when Carfaro brought the trial to a sudden close with his plea of guilty. As each of the eleven prisoners demanded a separate trial, the trials will occupy several weeks. The second case will begin on Friday.

Wants Her Boy Taken 6 Years Ago.

Mrs. Clarice Viola Adele Sickles Innes, who said she was a cousin of the late Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, motored to Police Headquarters yesterday and requested the Missing Persons Bureau to aid her search for her 10-year-old son, James Sickles Innes. She said he had been taken from her six years ago by her husband, Lavourne Victor E. Innes, a lawyer, whom she married in 1903 when she was his stenographer.
